Laden with Tons of Supplies

BY WILLIAM MOORE

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12—Generals' stars and admirals' gold braid glistened beneath the chandeliers this evening as the senate war investigating committee at a hearing dug out the story of the waste of war in army and navy shipping.

It was a story of idle ships and idle men, of untold treasure in supplies on "floating warehouses" in the Pacific and of navy gun crews on cargo vessels which the navy admits need no protection now that the war has ended.

Mead Lectures the "Boys"

Enough high officers of the services were present to fight a war. After Chairman Mead [D., N. Y.] had lectured them about their bookkeeping and operating methods [he called them "you boys"], Committee Counsel George Meader and Assistant Counsel Francis Flanagan gave them the conclusions:

While the nation awaits the return of such critical material as lumber, 190 ships are idle in the Pacific.

Their idleness is costing the nation $380,000 a day and depriving this country of the services of 9,500 merchant seamen while other ships stand loaded in American harbors, unable to sail for lack of crews.

All Are Criticized

The army, navy, and war shipping administration all came in for criticism at the committee hearing, called as part of an investigation of surplus property. Mead reprimanded spokesmen for all three services for not carrying out previous instructions to coördinate their records, telling the WSA official that he must have left early at the committee's previous secret session, which Mead called a "briefing."

The inquiry was marked by a tale as fascinating as that of the ancient mariner—the odyssey of the good ship John Martin Miller with a cargo of bombs nobody on earth wanted. Mead told the assembled brass hats:

"The John Martin Miller left Baltimore last April 15 for Europe. The European war ended while she was at sea and she was re-routed to Charleston, S. C., arriving there June 3. After three days of delay, it was discovered she should have been sent to Tinian in the Central Pacific. On arriving at Panama June 12, orders were issued to sail to Eniwetok atoll, where she arrived July 11. Upon arrival there, it was found she was not expected and after four days' delay she was dispatched to Saipan.

From Island to Island

"Arriving at Saipan July 17, she remained at anchor until July 25, when she was dispatched to Tinian. There it took 25 days to discharge less than 1,500 tons of a 7,700 ton cargo. On Aug. 31 she was back at Saipan, where there was no need for her cargo. After five days she was sent to Okinawa, arriving Sept. 11 and remaining 26 days. She then proceeded to Batangas in the Philippines.

"Port authorities there said they

Cash, Stocks in Vault Under Name of Mate

Columbus, O., Dec. 12 [Special]—The bulk of the missing fortune of Mrs. Delora Krebs Cline, 73, former wealthy Chicago widow who disappeared in October, 1944, was found today in the Huntington National bank here in the name of A. L. Cline, the man she married in Chicago in May, 1944.

A safety deposit box held in Cline's name was drilled open on a court order and yielded stock in the Commonwealth Edison company valued at $165,000 and two packets of currency totalling $6,300.

An additional $20,000 in currency and a quantity of jewelry was found in a package held in a vault at the bank in Cline's name and which bank officials said had been mailed to the bank by Cline from Dallas, Tex., on Nov. 4, 1944.

Evidence of Dallas Death

This discovery came as evidence was mounting in Dallas that an elderly woman who died at the Scott hotel there Oct. 17, 1944, under the name of Mrs. Alice W. Carpenter was actually Mrs. Krebs Cline.

Probate Judge Dana F. Reynolds ordered the opening of the safety deposit box and the package at the request of attorneys for Edward S. Griffiths of Columbus, a nephew of the former Mrs. Krebs and ancillary administrator for her estate in administration proceedings begun last week in Chicago by the Cook county public administrator.

Atty. Frank H. Ward, representing Griffiths, said the Commonwealth Edison stock was inherited in 1936 by Mrs. Krebs from her late husband, Charles E. Krebs, Chicago manufacturer. He said it had been re-registered as the joint property of Alfred L. Cline and E. Delora Cline.

Several $1,000 Bills

The currency in both the box and the package was in bills of large denomination, Ward said. There were several $1,000 and $500 bills and the balance in $100 bills. He described the jewelry as two diamond rings and a diamond wristwatch.

Cline, 56, and an ex-convict, is now held by San Francisco police on a forgery charge in connection with the manipulation of the estate of the former Mrs. Krebs. He was arrested last week after he had notified relatives of Mrs. Krebs Cline in the middle west that she had died last Nov. 29 in Portland, Ore.

Linked to Eight Mysteries

Since his arrest, Cline has been linked closely with the deaths or disappearances of eight persons, six of them women, in a career of cultivating the friendship of elderly women which began in 1931. Evidence that he married three of these women and may also have married the other three has also been uncovered.

Significance of the discovery that Cline shipped a package of currency and jewelry from Dallas Nov. 4.

OUR HERO

Couple Roam College Halls; Admit Thefts

Greeley, Colo., Dec. 12 [Special]—A young Chicago couple who toured universities and burglarized dormitories of jewelry, clothing and other valuables were held here tonight on a charge of larceny after signing a confession.

They are Eugene William Magner, 27, former student at the University of Illinois and professional baseball player, and his wife, Shirley, 26.

Police said part of the couple's loot had been shipped to Chicago and to Evanston, Ill. Papers in the couple's possession, police said, indicated they had paid visits to colleges and universities in Illinois, Iowa, Wisconsin, and Minesota, but it was not immediately learned whether they had committed thefts there.

Seized on Basketball Floor

Magner was arrested on the basketball floor of the Greeley State Teachers' college here as he practcied with the college team while he purportedly was deliberating enrolling at the institution. He was seized Monday shortly after his wife had been arrested after she was seen emerging from a co-ed's room in a dormitory.

Police said they found in the young couple's hotel room much of the $500 worth of loot the pair confessed taking from college dormitories here. They said the Magners also admitted taxing $300 worth of clothing and jewelry from dormitories at Colorado college in Colorado Springs and several hundred dollars worth from dormitories at the University of Colorado in Boulder.

Police Chief C. C. Hunter and Detective Paul Close gave the following account of the couple's activities as disclosed by their confessions:

Magner was a junior at the University of Illinois this fall but left there because of trouble over professionalism. He had played baseball with the Toledo team of the American association. He and his wife left Chicago on Oct. 1 and hitch-hicked here, arriving Oct. 28. Thefts at the Teachers' college began immediately after their arrival.

Husband The Lookout

In most of their thefts, Magner acted as a lookout while his wife prowled thru girls' dormitories, picking up whatever she could find of value. They covered their brief stays at each college by slowly making preparations to enroll, Magner usually seeking out athletic coaches and "selling them" on his athletic prowess.

Shirley was arrested Monday afternoon as she emerged from a college dormitory in which coeds reported they had seen her entering several rooms on two floors. She explained she was looking for a lost pen but confessed thefts. Her husband, taken away from his basketball playing, confessed yesterday.

Thus far they have been charged only with the theft of a student's $45 watch, but police said more extensive burglary charges were being prepared. Meantime, Chicago police were notified of a Chicago address where receipts found in the couple's possession indicated they had sent some of the loot.

PATTON'S CONDITION 'REMAINS GOOD'; WIFE 'NOT LEAST WORRIED'

HEIDELBERG, Germany, Dec. 12 (AP)—A medical bulletin tonight said the condition of Gen. Patton, "remains good," and Mrs. Patton, after seeing her husband again today, declared herself, "not the least worried" and "he looks very well."

Further optimism over the condition of Patton, paralyzed after his neck was broken in an auto crash near Mannheim on Sunday, was evoked by the departure of three of his consulting surgeons.

The night bulletin, saying Patton's condition "remains good," added that there had been "no significant changes since morning." The morning bulletin had described his condition as "grave," altho it reported he had spent a good night, but added that there had been "no improvement in paralysis."

KARL COMPTON HAILS M'ARTHUR POLICY IN JAPAN

Spokane, Wash., Dec. 12 (AP)—Dr. Karl Compton, president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, tonight urged that Gen. MacArthur be given "a chance to work out his present difficult problems with full support and without interference."

In a speech at a public meeting here, Dr. Compton reviewed his mission to Tokyo as head of an investigating team of scientists.

Dr. Compton said Gen. MacArthur's program in Japan "has thus far succeeded beyond the most optimistic expectation."

84 Navy Men Hurt in Troop Train Wreck

Eighty-nine men, most of them Negro sailors, were injured last night, only a few seriously, when a troop train was rammed from the rear by a Pere Marquette railroad passenger train at 36th and Rockwell sts. Five of those injured were on the Pere Marquette train.

The injured were taken to south side hospitays, where the majority were given first aid. The navy later removed most of them to Westley Memorial hospital for further examination. Several white sailors and white and Negro rail employes were among those hurt.

Train Carrying 253

The troop train, operated by the Chicago and Alton railroad, was carrying 243 Negro sailors and 10 white naval escorts, from the naval base at Bainbridge, Md., to the naval depot at Shoemaker, Cal.

It was switching over from Baltimore & Ohio tracks to Alton tracks when the Pere Marquette train, pulled by two engines, and headed for Grand Rapids, Mich., struck it. Four troop coaches and a sleeper were derailed and a sleeper overturned.

J. W. Covington Jr., of Baltimore, Pullman conductor, who was in the overturned coach, emerged as the hero of the accident. He kicked out windows to enable the sailors to escape, aided the injured and calmed others, said Capt. B. W. Gutheil, an army medical officer, of Waukesha, Wis., who was on the train.

Engineer Tells of Crash

Justin Ebach, 59, of Grand Rapids, engineer of the Pere Marquette train, said he did not see the troop train until he was within 300 feet of it. "I was going about 40 miles per hour, and I put on the brakes, slowing down to 15 when we hit," he said. He asserted he had the all clear green lights. Police said a railroad employe told them that the switch at the point of accident had been out of order during the day.

Most of the injured were taken to St. Anthony's hospital, where 67 were treated. Eight were taken to County hospital; five to St. Luke's, four to Southtown hospital, and five to Evangelical hospital.

Most seriously hurt included Rufus W. Barton, 60, Bloomington, Ill., troop train conductor; John Weaver, Negro porter, Baltimore, and Fred M. Jones, Negro porter, Baltimore.

An on the scene description of the wreck was broadcast over W-G-N at 10:30 p. m. The description was recorded by Harry Creighton and Gene Filip of the special events department.

Truman to Ask Price Ceilings on All Houses

Protests Exporting

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12 (AP)—Rep. Landis [R., Ind.] urged today that exporting of lumber be stopped so long as the nation's housing shortage remains critical. In a letter to Reconversion Director Snyder he protested shipment of approximately 750,000,000 board feet of lumber to foreign countries in 1945. Landis told a reporter that the lumber exported was "enough to build 75,000 dwelling units."

BY ROBERT YOUNG
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12—President Truman today ordered reinstatement of priorities on building materials and said he will ask congress for legislation fixing price ceilings for new and old houses.

Wilson Wyatt

The President's housing program, which he announced at his news conference, is aimed primarily at curbing inflation in the home building and real estate markets, stimulating construction activity, and relieving the housing shortage. The President's action was in the form of an approval of a report on housing and recommendations made to Mr. Truman by Reconversion Director Snyder.

Simultaneously, Mr. Truman announced the appointment of Wilson W. Wyatt, former mayor of Louisville, Ky., as government housing boss. Wyatt's title will be housing expediter. He will work under Snyder.

Indorses Pending Bill

The program will be put into effect as soon as possible, the President said. He indorsed legislation now pending before the house banking and currency committee which provides authority for maximum prices on the sale of old and new residential dwellings.

One of the major objectives of the program is to give special aid to war veterans in need of housing.

Mr. Truman's decision to reinstate government controls on building materials and ask congress for price ceilings on house sales represented a victory for Price Administrator Bowles. The removal of controls over building materials on Oct. 15 was opposed by Bowles as premature. For several months, Bowles has been seeking legislation giving the office of price administration authority to fix house price ceilings. He contended such measures were necessary to head off a "boom and bust" cycle in the housing market.

Would Allow Profits

Last September, when Bowles explained the price ceiling legislation he was seeking, he said the proposed maximums on new and old houses would be "about" current price levels. As far as possible, he said, ceilings would be based on regional and local wage rate and material costs. He promised that any maximums established would allow sellers a reasonable margin of profit.

In addition to material priorities and house price ceilings, the third

TEN JAPS CONVICTED OF KILLING TEN U. S. FLYERS AND FILIPINOS

MANILA, Dec. 13 [Thursday]—(AP)—Six Japanese accused of killing and burning two American flyers and five Filipinos at Cebu last March were found guilty by a military commission today.

Lt. Col. Isamu Morimoto and Capt. Kestaro Tsuruyama were sentenced to death by hanging. Sgt. Takeo Kawai also was sentenced to be hanged but mercy was recommended because he turned prosecution witness. Kawai testified he had orders to hack the flyers to death. A fourth was sentenced to life imprisonment and two others to 10 years each at hard labor.

Executed Three Flyers

KWAJALEIN, Dec. 12 (AP)—Four Japanese officers were convicted of murder today for the execution of three United States flyers on Jaluit atoll in the Marshalls in 1944.

The military commission which convicted the four will announce tomorrow whether they will share the fate of six Japanese who yesterday were condemned to be hanged for similar crimes.

BILL PROVIDES PENALTY OF 20 YRS. FOR VIOLENCE

Schwellenbach and President Confer on Strike Plan

BY WILLARD EDWARDS
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12—An "anti-violence act" aimed at labor unions was passed by the house late today as the capital continued to seethe over strikes crippling the nation.

The measure, given overwhelming approval on a voice vote and sent to the senate, provides a maximum penalty of 20 years imprisonment for violence or threats in the obstruction of interstate commerce—methods charged in the debate against the AFL International Teamsters union in the collection of fees from nonunion truck drivers entering large cities. The senate failed to act on a similar bill in its last session.

Meanwhile, President Truman and Labor Secretary Schwellenbach held an emergency conference, Schwellenbach announced, later that an endeavor would be made to put pressure upon congress for passage before Christmas of the White House formula for dealing with industrial unrest.

Calls for 30 Day Ban

The Truman plan calls for a 30 day ban on strikes while fact finding boards study labor-management disputes. Congressional leaders are doubtful they can get the speedy action requested in view of the violent opposition of labor and the half-hearted support of business.

House passage of the anti-racketeering act was hailed by several speakers of both parties as a rebuke to the Supreme court. In a decision March 2, 1942, an opinion read by Justice Byrnes [now secretary of state] held that acts of violence by a New York teamsters union local were not illegal in the pursuance of "legitimate" labor activities.

The court, whose decision was sharply criticized during house debate, upheld a Circuit Court of Appeals judgment reversing the conviction of the New York local and 26 individuals on charges of conspiracy to violate the anti-racketeering act of 1934.

Leads House Opposition

As passed by the house, the bill omits the section depended upon by Justice Byrnes in his ruling.

The house opposition was led by Rep. Marcantonio [A. L., N. Y.], who shouted that the measure was aimed at strikes in general. Marcantonio is the favorite congressman of the New York Daily Worker, official communist daily.

Rep. Hoffman [R., Mich.], noted in the debate that the teamsters union working out of Grand Rapids, Mich., had refused to deliver supplies to grocery stores in southwestern Michigan in an effort to compel the unionization of store employes.

"The contention may seem far fetched," he said, "but we may next see a refusal to deliver groceries to stores unless the customers also obtain union membership cards."

"Methods of Gangsters"

"Members of the teamsters' union in my district want nothing to do with the methods used by the gangsters in New York, Detroit, and Chicago," declared Rep. Vursell [R., Ill.].

President Truman told his press conference that he was confident of congressional approval of his strike plan in the few days remaining before the Christmas recess.

OUTPUT OF CARS LIMPS THRU 1945 AT 50,000 MARK

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 12 [Special]—Only 50,000 of the 500,000 passenger cars originally scheduled for this year have been produced in the strike handicapped automobile plants of the nation, a survey revealed here today. Shortage of essential parts due to strikes in suppliers' plants was the major factor in preventing the industry from attaining volume production.

As a result of the General Motors strike, only Ford—of the big three—is now in production. Chrysler has not yet shipped a passenger car to a dealer, tho it is in production on Dodge trucks. Lack of help as well as of parts is preventing car production.

More Than Half by Ford

Ford has produced more than half of the industry's output to date, with a total of 25,294 passenger cars produced up to yesterday from all its divisions. Henry Ford II., president, has expected the company to produce 75,000 passenger cars by Christmas and 50,000 trucks.

They may yet attain 50 per cent of the passenger car schedule, officials said today, and will likely fulfill the truck schedule.

Peak peace time production of the industry was 134,000 cars and trucks a week. Now it is unlikely that December production will reach 20,000 altho shortly after V-E day industry spokesmen set this month's production schedule at 250,000 units.

Packard is producing 25 to 100 cars a day. Nash will not produce more than 9,000 cars by the end of the year, against a planned 26,000.

Calls for 120 a Day

Hudson suspended operations but hopes to resume next week. Its schedule called for 120 cars a day, but nothing like that has been attained.

Studebaker's operations are on a limited basis with a complete shutdown in prospect on account of a shortage of parts. Willys-Overland's production of jeeps has been suspended for the last nine weeks. Its schedule called for 8,000 jeeps by the end of the year, but only 2,000 have been produced.

ASSERTS BRITISH CLUB JEWS IN GERMAN CAMPS

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12 (AP)—Capt. Robert S. Marcus, Jewish chaplain in the United States army, said today that British troops in Germany "club Jews in the concentration camps for displaced persons because the British want them to get disgusted, change their minds about going to Palestine and return to Poland."

Marcus told a news conference sponsored by the World Jewish Congress that he had investigated conditions under which Jews are living in displaced persons camps in the American and British zones of Germany. He declared the conditions "continue gruesome despite President Truman's directive and Gen. Eisenhower's orders to improve them."

"These orders," said Marcus, "have been ignored."

CHARGES POLISH SLAYERS WANT ALLIES TO ACT

WARSAW, Poland, Dec. 12 (AP)—Vice Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk said today in an interview that a wave of political murders in Poland was being committed by enemies of the nation who are seeking to provoke intervention by American and British armed forces.

The ministry of public security said "scores" of persons had been killed "in the last three weeks." The vice premier's own right-hand man, Boleslaw Scibiorek, secretary of the general Polish peasant party, was the most recent victim. He was shot by unidentified men who entered his apartment in Lodz last week.

Mikolajczyk urged all Poles to observe the laws during the difficult period thru which the country is passing.

SENATE GROUP FAVORS OPENING UP PALESTINE

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12 (AP)—Over the opposition of President Truman, the senate foreign relations committee voted 17 to 1 today for a resolution in favor of opening Palestine to free entry of Jews "to the maximum of its agricultural and economic potentiality."

Chairman Connally [D., Tex.], who cast the only opposition vote, said the President made it clear to the committee that passage of any resolution on Palestine at this time would "greatly embarrass him in his international conferences seeking a solution."

The President and Prime Minister Attlee of Great Britain have set up a commission to study the Palestine situation and report within 120 days.

D'ORSAY PALMER WIDOW WITNESS IN HOTEL SUICIDE

Ex-Mate of Constance Bennett Ends Life

Mrs. Jack Moran, 25, widow of Potter D'Orsay Palmer, will be a witness at an inquest at 10 a. m. today into the death of Chester Moorehead, 42, former husband of Constance Bennett, who died yesterday after taking a handful of sleeping pills in his room in the Wilmar hotel, 11 W. Division st. The inquest will be at 716 N. State st.

Chester Moorehead

Mrs. Moran, Miss Irma Caserio, 29, and Miss Sharon Lynn, 22, a blonde tap dancer, all of whom live in the hotel, were questioned by police yesterday as having seen Moorehead die. Miss Lynn said she hurried to the room when she heard Moorehead was going to end his life, but arrived after he was dead.

Clerk Told of Plans

Grant Barthorp of 5329 Lake Park av., hotel clerk, said Moorehead telephoned him that he planned to commit suicide. Barthorp called the women, whose rooms were close to Moorehead's.

Mrs. Moran, wife of a son of George [Bugs] Moran, dry era hoodlum, said Moorehead told her, "I'm going to go to sleep, and please don't try to stop me." He swallowed an overdose of pills, she said, then borrowed a pencil to write a note to his mother, Mrs. Frederick Moorehead, of 25 E. Delaware pl., widow of a widely known oral surgeon on the staff of the Presbyterian hospital. Moorehead collapsed after writing, "Dearest Mother—"

Wed Miss Bennett When 17

Moorehead had lived in the Wilmar hotel five years and had not been known to work in that period. He was a former advertising copywriter, but had been inactive because of illness. He and Miss Bennett were married in Greenwich, Conn., June 16, 1921, when he was 17 and she was 16. The marriage was annulled in January, 1923. Moorehead was divorced Oct. 24 this year by Miss Ria Rich, 33, of 1816 N. Clark st.

Mrs. Moran, the former Pluma Louise Lowery Abatiello, a waitress in Florida, and Potter Palmer, grandson of the original Potter Palmers, were married in December, 1938. He died May 15, 1939.

CHILDREN'S PLEA TOUCHES JUDGE; FREES THEIR DAD

Chief Justice Harold G. Ward in Criminal court harkened to the pleas of three children yesterday and vacated a 1 to 2 year prison sentence imposed last week and Stanley Kurek, 31, of 2218 Orchard st., a maintence man, for bigamy.

The children—Dolores, 11; Rosemary, 10, and John, 9—testified that their daddy was a nice man, took them to church, and was good to them.

"Please, judge, can't we have Daddy back for Christmas?" they chorused.

When Mrs. Katherine Kurek said she wanted him back and Kurek said he wished to be with his family at Christmas, the judge vacated Kurek's prison sentence and put him on probation.

Kurek was charged with bigamy for marrying Ruth Mathis, 5137 S. Washtenaw av., June 12, 1944. Ruth is charged with marrying a bigamist, a misdemeanor, and will appear in Felony court tomorrow.

Waukegan High School to Be Closed All Week

The Waukegan Township High school, closed Monday afternoon because of many absences on account of influenza and colds, will remain closed until next Monday, school authorities said yesterday. When classes were dismissed Monday afternoon, 519 of the 2,392 pupils were absent. Cancellation of this week's school schedule made it necessary to call off the senior play tonight and Saturday and the basketball game and dance planned for tomorrow night.

GUERNSEY BULL SALE AT $37,000 DISCLOSED HERE

A record price of $37,000 for a Guernsey bull has been paid for Curtiss Franchester Levity Ace, the sellers, Otto Schnering and Charles B. Bolton, disclosed yesterday.

Schnering, president of the Curtiss Candy company, and Bolton, owner of the Franchester farms, Cleveland, O., said the purchaser was Charles G. Lang of Langvalley farms, Glen Arm, Md. The previous high for a Guernsey was $35,000, paid in 1929 by William H. Williams of Lyon Mountain, N. Y., for Langwater Eastern King.

Curtiss Franchester Levity Ace was calved Aug. 10, 1943, at the Curtiss Candy farms near Chicago.

COURT DENIES CITIZENSHIP TO THREE ALIENS

Judge Walter J. La Buy in federal District court yesterday denied the citizenship petitions of Adam Kesslering, 64, of 616 Dickens av.; Mrs. Sophia Zinke, 52, of 1816 Wellington av., and Mrs. Elisabeth Bruns, 45, of 1944 Burling st. Atty. Dewey Hutchinson of the immigration service recommended the denial on these grounds: Kesslering had been convicted of throwing acid in a woman's face; Mrs. Zinke had kept nazi propaganda material in her home; Mrs. Bruns had invested in nazi securities. Kesslering came to America from Hungary, and both women came from Germany.

ADS LIFE BLOOD OF CIVILIZATION: COL. McCORMICK

Tribune's Part in Atomic Bomb Aid Revealed

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE, said last night that advertising is the most important single element in our civilization in that it stimulates every item of private enterprise. He spoke at the annual banquet of THE TRIBUNE advertising department in the Drake hotel.

"Everybody knows that the totalitarians in government positions tried to use the war in every way to advance their purposes," Col. McCormick told his audience. "In particular they tried to get away from advertising and substitute for free will their authoritarian methods. How singularly they failed was shown when they found they could not carry on their activities without the aid of advertising.

Federal Departments Aided

"Among those who turned to advertising in their activities were the war man power commission, the navy department, the United States service forces, the office of transportation, the ordnance department, the signal corps, the railroad retirement board, and the treasury department."

Altho news print rationing limited the size of help wanted advertisments, THE TRIBUNE printed more than 7,000 larger advertisments for critical war plants on special request from various branches of the government, Col. McCormick said.

In relating The Tribune want ad department's part in developing the atomic bomb, he said that a representative of du Pont de Nemours came to Chicago, disclosed the importance of the project, and four-fifths of the employes obtained from this section of the country were found by Tribune want ads.

Praised for Assistance

"Concerning the services of the want ad department," Col. McCormick continued, "Mr. H. C. Duke of the du Pont company said to his chief, H. M. Miller, 'I should like to call to your attention that the wholehearted support given us by THE TRIBUNE organization is anything but one with a mercenary motive, as our national advertising contract with them is the smallest permitted. I believe the enclosed records taken here during November, December, and January, plus the fact that THE TRIBUNE has consistently given priority space, should be forwarded to the proper authorities.'

"The widespread use of advertising is borne out by the fact that last year we printed 1,350,000 individual want ads. For the first 10 months of this year we averaged about 3,500 individual ads in each daily issue; over 8,000 in each Sunday issue, or nearly 30,000 individual ads a week. From Dec. 7, 1941, to V-J day we published more than 2,000,000 help wanted ads.

Two Million Yearly

"Over 2 million replies to want ads are received thru THE TRIBUNE office each year. We have no way of estimating how many replies are sent directly to the advertiser or by personal contact."

Col. McCormick pointed out that the want ad columns do much more than sell and find employment; that they help losers of articles of all kinds. More than 13,000 lost and found items were advertised and an incalculable quantity of property returned to owners. He told of the human interest side of advertising.

"One instance," Col. McCormick told his listeners, "is in connection with an ad in the Tribune personal column many years ago: 'John is 11 years old today. Call broken hearted mother.'

Story Behind the Ad

"Some time later the mother phoned our adtaker and told her the story behind the ad: When their son was less than a year old, she and her husband quarreled and the husband left and took the boy with him. For years she could find no trace of them.

"One day she hit upon an idea. She inserted a personal ad in THE TRIBUNE on the boy's birthday, gave her name and address and asked for news of the boy.

"The husband saw the ad, altho he was in a small town in Texas. He wrote, giving a full account of the boy's progress; but said it would be of no use to try to locate them as they were moving. He said, however, that each year on the boy's birthday he would watch THE TRIBUNE for the mother's address and send her news about her boy.

Answers Every Year

"Year after year the same ad appeared in THE TRIBUNE on the same day and the mother told us that her husband had never failed to see it and write to her about the boy.

"While THE TRIBUNE is the largest want ad medium in the country or the world, similar replies are found with descending scale all thru the newspaper world."

Col. McCormick told of a recent survey of 11,000 housewives and 2,000 dealers in electrical appliances in Chicago, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, and Wisconsin. The survey showed, he said, that there are 20 million appliances in 30 categories owned by families resident in Tribune territory, including 2 million electric hand irons, 2 million radio sets, almost 2 million gas ranges, and 1,700,000 washing machines.

Want 3,800,000 Items

He said the survey disclosed that a substantial number of the items are ready to be replaced by reason of age and condition, and that housewives reported they are in the market for 3,800,000 items the first post-war year they are available.

The most wanted article listed by housewives is a washing machine and they reported their determination to buy 600,000. Other articles sought by buyers, according to the survey, are 400,000 electrical refrigerators, 280,000 combination radio-phonographs, 185,000 radio sets, 80,000 television sets, 234,000 hand irons, and more than 200,000 gas ranges.

Col. McCormick said the total retail value of the indicated purchases of 3,800,000 articles is 415 million dollars.

60 Per Cent Read Tribune

"The statistics cover people who read THE TRIBUNE and people who do not," Col. McCormick continued. "Thus we are able to point out that Tribune readers account for better than 60 per cent of the articles owned and better than 60 per cent of the articles which will be purchased. Out of the 20 million articles owned, Tribune readers own 12 million. Out of the 415 million dollars to be spent, Tribune readers will account for 263 million dollars."

Estimated volume of display advertising in 1945 is more than 55,000 columns, Col. McCormick said, and added an estimate that in 1946 advertising will be placed with THE TRIBUNE by 1,100 retail display advertisers and by 1,500 national display advertisers. He said the total number of display advertisers in weekday issues during 1945 will be almost 1,600, and in Sunday issues, 1,700.

Big and Little Advertisers

Tribune display advertisers, Col. McCormick told his audience, range from neighborhood stores to loop stores, from retailers operating stores with a 10 foot frontage to those occupying a city block, from advertisers doing a business of $10,000 yearly in retail sales to others doing a business of 90 million dollars yearly. He said some use less than a column of advertising a year while others run close to 3,000 columns.

Tribune advertisers offer merchandise in more than 100 classifications of goods and services; some used THE TRIBUNE the first time in 1945, while others have advertised in THE TRIBUNE for more than 50 years.

"The Chicago market has great sales potentials for advertisers and Tribune readers are prime prospects," Col. McCormick concluded, "all of which shows you are in the right place and, I will add, you are the right people."

Chesser M. Campbell, Tribune advertising manager, introduced Col. McCormick.

Writer Tells of Policy

Earlier in the day the concluding session of the 44th annual advertising department meeting in W-G-N studios heard Leon Stolz, Tribune chief editorial writer. He said his listeners may have heard that THE TRIBUNE is an aggressive newspaper that does not fear to make enemies.

"As a rule," he said, "they come in the bigger sizes. Some people think that we don't know any better, and in a way, that's true, tho not in the way they mean. Their thought is that when, for example, we attacked the New Deal in the '30s, we did so in the belief that we were on the popular side. They didn't read our mail in those days or they would have known better.

None Appears Too Big

"We haven't hesitated when the occasion seemed to warrant it, to take a draw with the CIO, with its hundreds of thousands of members in our own community," Stolz continued, "or with the teachers' unions with their tremendous influence on the subscribers of tomorrow, or with the church organizations that gave us prohibition, or with an almost endless procession of scoundrels in public office who have had the power of government at their backs.

"Sometimes we are on the popular side and sometimes we are not. Sometimes we have won our point and sometimes we haven't, but we haven't backed out of any quarrel because the other guy looked too big."

COURT MARTIAL MAY HEAR JAP TESTIFY TODAY

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12 (AP)—Iko Hashimoto, Japanese submarine skipper, will be offered as a witness for the prosecution tomorrow in the court martial of Capt. Charles B. McVay III., commander of the lost cruiser Indianapolis.

There was every indication, however, that the unusual move would meet vigorous opposition from the defense. McVay's attorneys are expected to challenge credibility of the witness and legality of admitting testimony from an enemy alien not subject to the courts' jurisdiction for punishment of perjury. The seven man court has final discretion on admitting his testimony.

Hashimoto was commanding officer of the submarine I-58, which purportedly sank the Indianapolis shortly after midnight on July 30, as she was en route from Guam to Leyte.

Capt. McVay is being tried on charges of negligence and inefficiency. A total of 880 lost their lives in the sinking.

The primary purpose of offering the Japanese as a witness is to establish that the Indianapolis was sunk by an enemy submarine.

UNABLE TO PAY 30 PCT. BOOST, FORD REPEATS

Cites an Output of Only 20,000 Cars So Far

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 12 (AP)—The Ford Motor company today reiterated its inability to grant a general 30 per cent wage rate increase requested by the CIO United Auto Workers but a union official said the firm "indicated it might be willing to talk over a lesser amount."

Ford told the union the company had expected to produce 80,000 automobiles by this time, but that actually it had made only about 20,000.

The company in a letter to the union earlier today called on the UAW to approach the wage problem with "constructive thought," and Richard T. Leonard, UAW's Ford director, said, "I am certain this does not mean a break in wage negotiations."

Leonard quoted a Ford official as saying, "Working from two extremes we may reach a middle ground on the issue."

Fact Finders Named

The UAW official told newsmen the union would "give serious consideration" to scaling down its wage demands if the company offers an annual wage proposal.

While this development in wage negotiations between Ford and the union was taking place, President Truman took a hand in another auto industry dispute over the union's 30 per cent wage increase demand by naming a fact finding board to facilitate settlement of the 22 day old General Motors strike.

Mr. Truman's action today in the G. M. walkout idling 213,000 workers brought the government directly into the dispute for the first time. The fact finders scheduled their first meeting for Dec. 19-20.

The fact finding board has no subpena power, and information obtained by it would have to be volunteered by the parties concerned.

From the striking CIO United Auto Workers, who have assailed the President's legislative plan to halt a wave of strikes, came a prompt offer of coöperation with the General Motors fact finders.

G. M. Comment Hinted

General Motors indicated a comment would be made later.

"The President's fact finding committee," said a union statement from President R. J. Thomas and Vice President Walter P. Reuther, "may be assured of the union's coöperation in getting all the facts in the dispute.

"We will place before the committee all of the facts and figures in our possession relating to the corporation's ability to pay a 30 per cent wage increase."

Named by Mr. Truman to the fact finding body were Chief Justice Walter P. Stacy of the North Carolina Supreme court, Chairman Lloyd K. Garrison of the war labor board, and President Milton Eisenhower of Kansas State college, brother of Gen. Eisenhower.

Justice Stacy was named chairman. The group will hold its first meeting in Washington.

Parley to Resume

Negotiations between General Motors and the union will resume tomorrow. The corporation has indicated a desire to reach an agreement over picketing practices at struck plants before going ahead to a solution on the wage issue.

While stating its views on the union's wage increase demand, the Ford company also announced that it was giving "sincere and careful study" to a union proposal on company security. Leonard commented that he believed the proposal "will guarantee increased productivity."

Leonard said he was "not happy" with all details of the proposals outlined in the company's letter today.

The company, in a statement issued this afternoon after the negotiating sessions were adjourned until Friday, declared it was "willing to discuss the wage issue with you [the UAW] as long as is necessary to reach a reasonable conclusion."

Cites Conditions at Ford

"We understand why the whole UAW strategy has been to come forward now when things are critical and when we really are not in production and demand more wages," Ford said in its statement signed by John Bugas, director of its industrial relations division.

"Conditions at the Ford Motor company will not improve in the next 60 or 90 days. They probably will get worse if there is a steel strike," Bugas added.

"We would like to offer you [the UAW] a wage increase and in those months past we thought by now we would be able to come here with a more pliable attitude on the wage question but circumstances over which we have no control have changed that picture. We don't feel that it is reasonable for you to press your demands now just because such a move subscribes to over-all union policy," he concluded.

Bugas, in the letter sent to the UAW earlier today, said the company was "paying the highest wages in the automotive industry."

Leonard termed the letter "a provocative act on the company's part" and said he objected to the release of the letter now "because the temper of the workers is not too good now."

Sees Loss on Every Car

Bugas wrote to the union that it "must consider our joint ability to increase employe productivity and "our ability to get into full production."

Without wage increases and if maximum production is reached with a 16 per cent boost in individual productivity during 1946 the company at present OPA prices will "lose about $27 on every motor car and truck we make—or a total of about 35 million dollars," Bugas said.

He declared that wage increases between January, 1941, and July, 1945, totaled 36.65 per cent, not including "increases" in the form of vacation pay and shift premiums.

"We are today paying on the average wages 7 per cent higher than the average wage of the next highest among our major competitors," Bugas said.

Quotes from Letter

Bugas quoted from a Nov. 14 letter by M. B. Lindquist, company labor relations superintendent, declaring that a general increase "would amount to a very heavy mortgage on the future of all of us."

"Today our materials are costing us more than they ever have before. More important, our work productivity per man is at the lowest mark ever," Lindquist wrote.

Calls It "Vile Sell Out"

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 12 (AP)—Lester Washburn, international president of the AFL-United Auto Workers, today denounced the management security clause offered to the Ford Motor company by the CIO-United Automobile Workers as "the rawest and vilest labor sell-out in history."

Washburn made the statement in commenting on the UAW-CIO plan under which Ford workers participating in wildcat strikes would be fined $3 daily for a first offense and $5 daily for subsequent offenses.

"The idea of trading off the basic rights of workers; of injecting into a contract an abhorrent clause which even the most vicious anti-labor employers wouldn't dream of proposing to a company union and then calling it 'readily acceptable' to the company, represents a double-cross unparalleled in labor history," Washburn said.

"Above all, the clause is illegal since it abrogates the rights of workers under the Constitution which guarantees Americans the right to strike.

"The decadent UAW-CIO, torn with dissension and splitting politics and frantic to acquire revenues which never match expenditures, is trying to save its union. In its proposal it admits that it cannot control its membership, and admits it cannot furnish the workers with able and forthright leadership."

PAC DENOUNCES TRUMAN'S PLAN TO END STRIKES

New York, Dec. 12 [Special]—The Citizens Political Action committee, which last year supported the re-election of President Roosevelt, today attacked President Truman's proposals for legislation to settle industrial disputes as a threat to the whole labor movement and the welfare of the nation's working people.

The broadside against the Truman plan was issued at the offices here of the Citizens PAC, which it shares with Sidney Hillman's CIO-PAC. It echoed the attacks by Philip Murray, president of the CIO. Hillman is honorary president of the Citizens PAC.

The statement, signed by Dr. Frank Kingdon, steering committee chairman, said the Citizens PAC owed allegiance to no political party. This assertion was regarded as significant in view of the praise bestowed recently by Elmer A. Benson, president of the Citizens PAC, on former Gov. Stassen of Minnesota, regarded as a potential candidate for the Republican nomination for President in 1948.

WALKOUT TIES UP BUS SERVICE IN CITY OF 40,000

Drivers and Mechanics Refuse to Work

Cumberland, Md., Dec. 12 (AP)—The transportation system in this city of 40,000 was paralyzed today when 60 bus drivers and 15 mechanics failed to report for work at the Potomac Edison company.

James H. Morrison, president of local 1110 of the AFL Amalgamated Association of Street Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes of America, characterized the interruption of service as a "continuous meeting" of the union in which a contract with the company was being discussed.

"Refuse to Arbitrate"

Henry W. Price, district manager of the firm, said: "Call it what you will, the present work stoppage is a strike and in violation of the existing agreement" between the company and the union.

Morrison said that company refusal to arbitrate resulted in the break-down of negotiations. The drivers and mechanics are seeking a wage rate of $1.10 an hour, and time and a half pay for holiday work, he said. The present scale calls for 87 cents an hour.

200,000 to Vote on Strike

New York, Dec. 12 (AP)—A union estimated 200,000 workers in plants of the General Electric, Westinghouse, and General Motors companies from coast to coast will take a strike ballot tomorrow.

Members of the United Electrical, Radio, and Machine Workers of America, third largest CIO affiliate, will determine whether they will walk off their jobs some time after Jan. 1 in an effort to gain a $2 a day, or approximately a 30 per cent, wage boost.

The general executive board of the union has said there will be no walkout before the first of the year.

Fail to Settle Truck Strike

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12 (AP)—Truck operators and representatives of the AFL teamsters union tonight adjourned joint conferences without settling the midwestern trucking strike.

Representatives of both groups said "some progress" was made during two days of meetings with federal conciliators but that "things still are in the discussion stage."

The strike, which has tied up frate truck transportation in Nebraska, Minnesota, Kansas, North and South Dakota, Iowa and Missouri, began Nov. 15.

End Michigan Walkout

Holland, Mich., Dec. 12 (AP)—Unionized drivers at the Holland Motor Express company, whose owner threatened to go out of business because of a labor dispute, were instructed to go back to their jobs today following settlement of their nine day strike.

The strike was ordered after non-union drivers for the Standard Grocery company here, picketed by other strikers, were permitted to pick up merchandise at the express company's docks.

PARIS TIED UP AS 2,000,000 GO ON TOKEN STRIKE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, Dec. 12—France is threatened with a general strike as the next step in the General Confederation of Labor's demands for a wage increase of 1,000 francs [$20] a month for all public service and government workers. The workers went on a token strike today, paralyzing Paris and all the large French cities from 3 to 6 p. m.

The strike was called by the public service unions as a warning of what could happen. It involved almost 2,000,000 workers and had the curious aspect of being invoked against a government in which socialists and Communists dominate.

All subway and bus services were discontinued for about two hours. Postal services were stopped and telephone operators knocked off between 4 and 5. Railways operated, but office and other employes of the state railways stopped work. Police remained on their beats, traffic policemen worked in reduced numbers, and police office employes struck for an hour. Paris is in the midst of a crime wave.

Troopship Asks Aid

Position (arrow) of troopship Joseph Hooker which radioed distress message yesterday.

New York, Dec. 12 (AP)—The air-sea rescue office, eastern sea frontier, said tonight that the navy transport Le Jeune and an ocean-going fleet tug were en route to aid the troopship Joseph Hooker which had sent out a distress call from a position 270 miles east southeast of Nantucket light vessel.

The Hooker, carrying 526 army personnel, sent out the following message, the air sea rescue office said:

"Taking water in number three hold. Request vessels stand by in case cannot keep pumps going."

The Le Jeune, which left New York yesterday for Bremerhaven, Germany, with 4,400 soldier replacements for European veterans, radioed that she was 68 miles north of the Hooker and speeding toward her at 18 knots. The ocean going tug Papago has left Newport, R. I., and is steaming toward the Hooker at 10 to 12 knots.

Corvette Aground

Boston, Mass., Dec. 12 (AP)—The Venezuelan corvette Independencia flashed a distress call tonight after going aground on Davis shoals, 15 miles southeast of Nantucket. The navy and coast guard dispatched rescue craft toward the spot.

Fog Stops Sailings

LONDON, Dec. 12 [Reuters]—Fog was so dense on the approaches to Southampton today that two United States warships were held up. The aircraft carrier Lake Champlain, which left Southampton with 5,000 United States service men, anchored off Cowes, and the battleship Washington halted in The Solent, between the Isle of Wight and the mainland, and will try to go on to Southampton tomorrow.

JOHNS-MANVILLE STRIKE PARLEY SET FOR TODAY

Officials of the Johns-Manville Products corporation plant at Waukegan and representatives of local 60 of the International Chemical Workers union [AFL] will meet today at Waukegan in an attempt to settle a strike at the plant which started Nov. 20. Benjamin F. Marshmen of the federal conciliation service announced that he had arranged the meeting.

The $14,500,000 plant has been shut down by the union's strike, which has prevented more than 1,300 employes from working. The strike was called because the company refused to grant the union's demand for a 12 cents hourly wage increase.

JOB OUTLOOK BRIGHTENS; CUT IDLE ESTIMATE

See 3 Million Fewer Out of Work

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12 (AP)—The national job outlook brightened today with indications there may be 3 million fewer unemployed by spring than the government had figured.

Government experts, acknowledging that they overestimated the bearish impact of reconversion on employment, now believe that not more than 5 million will be seeking work by March, instead of the 8 million officially forecast in October.

The 5 million level may be sustained until mid-1946; then joblessness may decline as civilian production hits full stride—but officials now are wary of forecasting beyond the middle of next year.

New Estimate of Idle

One official described current unemployment as "amazingly small," probably ranging between 2,500,000 and 3,500,000. The war man power commission had estimated that 6 million would be unemployed by the year's end.

Census estimates for November—which cover only actual job hunters, not discharged veterans and others voluntarily idle for a time—support the trend. The newly issued census report indicates November unemployment was 1,580,000 over the nation, or an increase of only 40,000 from October.

Numerous Reasons Given

The reasons given are numerous. They include heavy withdrawals of women from the labor market, and an unsuspected demand for workers among small, nonwar businesses which apparently had been getting along with inadequate help.

Two other factors now loom as unexpectedly important: first, the lightness of layoffs in reconverting industries and second, the high, sustained level of consumer purchasing.

Big companies—those in the excess profits tax brackets—have found they can keep workers on the pay rolls at small cost as long as that tax is in effect. It expires Jan. 1.

EXPECTED WAR 'ANY MOMENT,' SAYS MARSHALL

Missed 'Opportunity to Intervene,' He Admits

BY PHILIP DODD
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12—Gen. Marshall, former army chief of staff, told the congressional Pearl Harbor committee today his personal opinion during the last week of November, 1941, was that war with Japan was imminent and that Japanese hostile action was likely to break out "at any moment."

Marshall reiterated his earlier testimony that he was fully responsible for the war department's failure to follow up on the warning sent to Maj. Gen. Short, Hawaiian commander, on Nov. 27, 1941. Short's reply on the 28th indicated he was taking measures against sabotage only.

"You were chief of staff at that time," Rep. Keefe [R., Wis.] said. "I am asking you your present recollection of your opinion on the 28th day of November, 1941. Were you of the opinion that war was imminent in the Pacific?"

At Any Moment

"My personal opinion was that Japanese hostile action was ready to break out at any moment," Marshall replied.

"And that meant war?"

"I thought that, sir."

Keefe then asked if it was not Marshall's responsibility to see to it that the orders of the chief of staff were carried out by the commander of the Hawaiian department.

"I have said earlier," said Marshall, "that Gen. Gerow [chief of the war plans division in 1941] had direct responsibility and I had the full responsibility . . . I stated that I accept full responsibility . . .

Not "Bookkeeping Machine"

"I was responsible for all matters in the general staff. I was not a bookkeeping machine. In this case a very tragic thing occurred. I am not attempting to evade my responsibility as chief of staff. I had an opportunity to intervene and did not take it."

Marshall added that "a large number of people" had seen Short's reply and that its brevity had made no impression on them. He recalled that ever since Short had assumed command in Hawaii, Short had stressed the need for air defenses, the war department had supplied most of his wants, and that it had been assumed air defense was uppermost in the minds of the Hawaiian commanders.

"What should have been done to place Gen. Short's command on the alert, along the lines of your warning?" Keefe asked.

Overwater Reconnaissance

"He should have been in full contact with the navy to make arrangements for overwater reconnaissance," Marshall said. "His intercepter planes should have been armed, the pilots ready, and some of the ships in flight. Radar should have been operated 24 hours a day—as was done at Panama. Troop dispositions should have been carried out."

Marshall asserted that radar operation, air reconnaissance, readying of interceptor planes, and even the issuance of ammunition could have been carried out without alarming the civilian population. Marshall's Nov. 27 warning had stipulated no steps should be taken that would excite civilians or would be regarded as overt acts.

"Responsible Commander"

Asked by Keefe if some one could have been sent out by the war department to check on Short's preparations, Marshall said Short was a responsible commander of long experience and had been given a definite order to alert his command.

Keefe asked if the success of the Japanese attack had changed the course of the war.

"If the attack had been repulsed successfully," Marshall said, "the Japanese would have had to proceed more conservatively. Instead of striking south [to Malaya and the Dutch East Indies] without regard for protecting their lines of communication against flank attacks, they would not have dared to proceed as they did—a major part of the United States fleet would have still been in effective condition."

FBI and Navy Row

The investigators also were told today that the navy, after a row with the federal bureau of investigation, stopped listening in on Japanese telephone conversations in Hawaii five days before the Dec. 7 attack.

The FBI continued tapping one Japanese consulate line up to the moment of the assault, and in this way learned that the consul in Honolulu was destroying his codes. The tapped line led to the cook's quarters in the consulate.

This evidence was included in a report by Lt. Col. Henry C. Clausen, assigned by War Secretary Stimson to make an independent inquiry in 1942. Col. Calusen obtained evidence of the dispute principally from Lt. Donald Woodrum, naval intelligence officer at Pearl Harbor when the attack came. Woodrum told this story:

The FBI set up a telephone tap about Nov. 1, 1941, on a line leading to a suspect who occupied quarters in the same building that housed the FBI. Telephone company employes discovered it and reported it to naval intelligence. The FBI complained to the company about that.

Officer Is Incensed

A Capt. Mayfield, district intelligence officer, was "incensed" because the FBI had not consulted with him before protesting to the telephone company. He considered the FBI action "a serious breach of security."

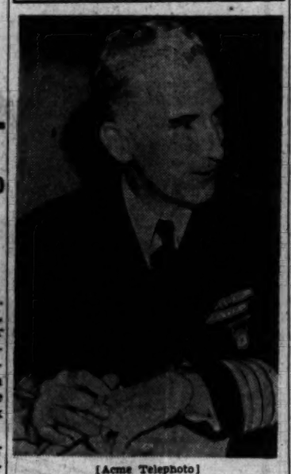
"Cognizant of his instructions from the chief of naval operations to avoid any possibility of international complications and thoroly aware of the explosive potentialities of the surveillances being conducted, Capt. Mayfield ordered the immediate discontinuance of all telephone surveillances. This was on Dec. 2, 1941. Surveillances were not resumed until the morning of Dec. 7, following the Japanese attack."

Gave Warning



[Acme Telephoto]

Capt. Alwin D. Kramer at congressional inquiry in Washington, D. C., yesterday. He heard testimony that he had transmitted a memorandum warning the late Navy Secretary Knox of impending Jap attack on Pearl Harbor.

WARNING TO KNOX

BY LAURENCE BURD
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12—A warning that Japan planned "a sunrise attack on Pearl Harbor" on Dec. 7, 1941, was transmitted to the late Secretary Knox by naval intelligence several hours before the actual Jap raid, according to testimony placed before the congressional Pearl Harbor inquiry committee today.

The testimony, quoted in a hitherto secret army report, says that Comdr. [now Capt.] Alwin D. Kramer predicted the sunrise attack in a memorandum to Knox. Kramer based his prediction, the report explains, on a Jap message intercepted and decoded early Dec. 7, which disclosed Japan's intention to deliver its war message to State Secretary Hull at 1 p. m., which coincided with dawn at Pearl Harbor.

Judge Advocate General

The report containing the account was made Nov. 25, 1944, by Maj. Gen. Myron C. Cramer, the army's judge advocate general, but was not made available until late last night. It states:

"Capt. Safford testified that Comdr. Kramer told him in 1943 that when he submitted . . . the message to the Jap ambassadors to present the Japanese reply at 1 p. m. to Secretary Knox, he sent along a note with it saying in effect, 'this means a sunrise attack on Pearl Harbor today and possibly a midnight attack on Manila.'"

This report did not state the precise time the 1 p. m. note was given to Knox but previous testimony has placed the time at approximately 10 a. m. Washington time, Dec. 7, or 3 hours and 55 minutes before the Pearl Harbor attack.

Head of Security Division

The Capt. Safford mentioned is Laurance F. Safford, who as head of the navy communications security division, received and cleared intercepted broadcasts and messages. He and Kramer, who was senior language officer for navy intelligence, already are scheduled to be questioned by the committee about Japan's mysterious "winds" message. Safford has testified that he first saw the message on Dec. 4, three days before Pearl Harbor. The message was received the previous evening, according to handwriting on it, by Kramer. The message, when translated, disclosed Japan's intention to make war on the United States and England.

Gen. Cramer, the judge advocate general, said in his report that there is no testimony indicating the "sunrise" attack warning went to the war department. He declared "action upon this information, if believed credible, was a navy responsibility."

Missed 'Opportunity to Intervene,' He Admits

His report went on to say, however, that "keener perception by either army or navy intelligence of information on hand might have led report.

to the advance conclusions that Japan would attack Hawaii at the hour it did.

"The most that can be said relative to the top secret information available in Washington" the report read, "is that a keener and more incisive analysis by the intelligence sections of either service of the over-all picture presented by these intercepts, along the lines of Comdr. Kramer's deductions, might have led to an anticipation of the possibility at least, of an attack on Pearl Harbor at or about the time it actually occurred."

The "danger" in saying Washington should have predicted the dawn attack, the report added, is that such an estimate is "unconsciously made from hindsight" and involves reading into messages a significance "not obvious at the time of receipt."

The report declared, "We are in the realm of conjecture" in trying to decide whether Gen. Short, army commander at Pearl Harbor, would have ordered fuller defense measures than he did, if the had known about the 1 p. m. message.

The Kramer-Safford testimony that the "winds" message was intercepted by the navy on the night of Dec. 3 was being restudied by committee members today in the light of seemingly contradictory word from other witnesses whose testimony is cited in portions of the army's top secret report.

Three Days Before

The newly-released section of the three-man army board of inquiry's report took the Safford-Kramer testimony at its face value and declared receipt of the winds broadcast should have told Washington officialdom of the imminence of war by Dec. 4, three days before the Japs struck.

Along with this document, however, the committee received three other top secret army reports, all by Judge Advocate General Cramer.

The last two Gen. Cramer statements, addressed to War Secretary Stimson Sept. 14, discussed testimony on the winds message, as taken by Lt. Col. Henry C. Clausen. Clausen made a special inquiry at the direction of Stimson after the army board completed its study.

The full Clausen report has not yet been made public, and Gen. Cramer quoted only excerpts and his own inferences.

Series of Affidavits

According to these excerpts, Clausen took a series of affidavits from various army [but not navy] officers, who denied ever seeing a winds message. [Kramer and Safford were navy officers.]

Clausen reported that Col. Otis K. Sadtler of the army signal corps modified his earlier statement to the army board that a winds message was received.

Sadtler told the board that on the morning of Dec. 5, Adm. Leigh Noyes, chief of naval communications, called at 9:30, saying "Sadtler, the message is in," and that this referred to the winds message.

Sadtler said he reported this at once to Lt. Gen. L. T. Gerow, chief of the war plans division, and Col. Bedell Smith, secretary to the general staff.

According to the later Clausen report, as quoted by Gen. Cramer, Sadtler told Clausen he did nothing to ascertain the wording of the message Noyes reported, and decided, on reflection, that he did not discuss the matter with Gerow and Smith.

Naval Capt. Safford told the army board the actual copy of the winds message was turned over to Noyes shortly after Pearl Harbor. All trace of the message has now disappeared, the army board reported.

Statement by Cramer

Portions of the Clausen report quoted by Gen. Cramer do not carry any statement from Adm. Noyes on this point.

Gen. Cramer's report indicates that Safford was not interviewed by Clausen but that he testified before Adm. Hewitt, who conducted a followup inquiry after the navy board's report, similar to that made by Clausen for the army. The Hewitt report has not been published. Referring to the winds message, Gen. Cramer reported that "I understand the testimony of Capt. Safford has been qualified considerably by testimony of himself and other naval personnel before Adm. Hewitt."

Gen. Cramer's chief conclusion on the winds message is that available evidence fails to show it was "ever received by the war department."

His report, based on the Clausen inquiry, draws no conclusion, however, as to whether this vital document was in the hands of the navy or the White House before the Jap attack, as the army board report indicated.

In the opinion of some committee members, what is now known of the Clausen report leaves open the possibility that a winds message was intercepted by the navy, on Dec. 3, and that the copies have been destroyed. They note that radio logs, that would show reception of the broadcast, have all been destroyed within the last year.

Given Lie Test

George Catraboni, who was given lie detector test yesterday in connection with the pistol-knife slaying of Miss Frances Brown.

JACK THE RIPPER TYPE SOUGHT AS WAVE'S SLAYER

Police disclosed last night that a Jack the Ripper type of slayer is being sought in the murder of Miss Frances Brown, 33, attractive secretary and former WAVE, who was found shot and stabbed Monday in her apartment in the Pine Crest hotel, 3941 Pine Grove av.

Chief of Detectives Walter G. Storms said investigators were impressed by the similarity of Miss Brown's murder to the slayings of two other women during the last two and one-half years within a half mile of the Pine Crest.

The other victims were Mrs. Josephine Ross, 43, stabbed in the neck last June 3 in her apartment at 4108 Kenmore av., and Miss Estelle Carey, 34, dice girl, whose throat was slashed Feb. 3, 1943, in her apartment at 512 Addison st.

Similarities in Crimes

Points in common among the three slayings were that the victims were women without marital ties, had their own apartments, and were stabbed or slashed with knives. In two cases, those of Mrs. Ross and Miss Brown, the slayer washed blood from his victims' bodies.

London's Jack the Ripper of 1888 and 1889 was so named because of his use of a knife. He had no apparent motive except a lust for bloody killings. No motive ever was established in the Ross and Carey slayings and police so far have been unable to establish a motive in the death of Miss Brown.

Storms announced that police have gathered at least 35 clews in Miss Brown's murder. He refused to list them, but it is known that one he considers most important is the lipstick legend on the wall of Miss Brown's apartment, which read: "For heaven's sake catch me before I kill more; I cannot control myself."

Doubt Woman Slayer Theory

In order to have sufficient space for this note, it was learned, the slayer removed a picture from the wall. This point was taken as supporting the belief that the killer went about his crime with care and method.

While some investigators held to the theory that the slayer may have been a woman, tests by the police scientific crime detection laboratory indicated the warning message was written by a man.

Only one strange finger print was found in the apartment, police said. This was a blurred impression apparently from a finger joint. It was discovered near a hinge of the bathroom doorway.

Suspects Are Freed

George Catraboni, 41, of 648 Grace st., a butcher who was arrested for questioning Tuesday night, was given a lie test which police said was "inconclusive" because of his conflicting answers to questions. Catraboni once served a jail term in Buffalo, N. Y., for a sex offense, but police admitted there was no evidence to link him to the slaying.

Other suspects were cleared almost as rapidly as they were brought in for questioning. These included Francis Purkiser, 35, whose address, 836 Windsor av., as given by police, was found to be erroneous. He was found to have no "inside knowledge" as he had boasted in a tavern.

Handbook Robber Suspect Accused in U. S. Warrant

Renoto Lolli of 6311 Eggleston av., a member of the handbook robbery gang trapped by police last week, was charged yesterday with violations of the federal firearms act in a warrant issued by United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker. He is accused of illegal possession and transportation of a submachine gun and a shotgun.

Body of Missing Boy, 14, Found in Kankakee River

The body of Michael Polfer, 14, son of a Lake County [Ind.] farmer, was found yesterday by sheriff's police dragging the Kankakee river. The boy disappeared Tuesday while visiting his line of small game traps. The boy's gun and coat, lying 150 feet from the river, led later to discovery of the body. The boy was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Polfer.

DECREE GRANTED TEMPERAMENTAL ARTIST'S WIFE

Wallace Rodgers, 30, a commercial artist, was divorced yesterday in Superior court by his wife, Florence, 20, of 842 S. Wolcott avenue, who charged him with desertion. Questioned by her attorney, Antonia Rago, Mrs. Rodgers told Judge Edwin A. Robson her husband left her May 28, 1944, after informing her that married life clashed with his artistic temperament. Mrs. Rodgers was given custody of Diane, 2, and $12 a week for Diane's support.

U. S. DRIVES HARD BARGAIN IN LOAN, COMMONS TOLD

Britain Entitled to Gift of Billions, Dalton Says

BY E. R. NODERER
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Dec. 12—The United States, which gave Britain billions of dollars in lend lease supplies and has agreed to lend England $4,400,000,000 on easy terms, tonight was subjected to British attack in the house of commons.

Hugh Dalton

Conservative Robert Boothby, who was Winston Churchill's private secretary when the former minister was chancellor of the exchequer, led the onslaught on the United States. Even Hugh Dalton, Laborite chancellor of the exchequer, who favored approval of the loan, asserted that the United States had driven a hard bargain. He said that what Britain really wanted was the gift of billions which he felt was due this country for "all we suffered in the common cause."

Refusal Means Disaster

If the loan is rejected, however, Dalton warned, Britain will be plunged into hunger and "disaster to the whole future of international coöperation" will result.

"We should have to undergo greater privations and hardship in the terms of our economic life than even during the war," he continued. "And all those bright hopes of better times in the hour of victory would be dissipated in despair and grave disillusion."

Over and over again the theme was sounded that Americans were ungrateful to the British for the part they had played in saving the world by fighting alone for one year.

Boothby in particular contended that Britain had sacrificed its own economy to save the United States. Calling the loan an "economic Munich," he said, "We are exchanging the empire for a packet of cigarets."

Approval Is Expected

Despite fierce criticism of the American loan and the Bretton Woods monetary agreement by elements in both Laborite and Conservative parties, there was no doubt, however, that both will be approved. Other speakers frankly admitted that Britain needed the money and would take it, even tho there is great likelihood that it can never be repaid.

Some American circles were suggesting tonight that the loud outcry against the loan terms was a British propaganda effort to convince the United States congress that the Americans had put a fast one over on the British.

That belief was highlighted by John Anderson, chancellor of the exchequer in the Churchill government, who said it is not necessarily true that when Americans and British get together, the Americans are always outsmarted. Anderson announced that Conservative leaders will not oppose the loan but neither will they vote for it.

In No Position to Repay

Boothby, head of the group of Conservative M. P.s who have submitted a motion for rejection of both the Bretton Woods agreement and the loan, said Britain is not in a position to repay the loan.

Dalton himself made the point that under the waiver clause, Britain was to be the sole judge of whether the country was able to pay interest on the loan after a five year free ride, during which no interest will be charged.

He said the government would recommend acceptance of the Bretton Woods plan, "irrespective of the dollar loan."

2 Inch Fall of Snow Predicted in City Area

Chicago's heaviest snowfall of the winter began at midnight. The forecast was for two or more inches. Forecaster H. A. Downs said that it is part of a storm coming from Missouri, Iowa, and Nebraska, where snow was general. Local blizzards are predicted for some areas of the Dakotas and heavy snows in Kansas and Missouri.

HOUSE WARNED LOAN TO BRITAIN IS HATE BREEDER

Told Those We Spurn Will Resent It

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12—Rep. Reed [R., N. Y.] predicted in the house today that a 4.4 billion loan to Great Britain will make an enemy of every nation in the world to whom we may refuse a similar loan.

"We will either have to give Russia 6 or 7 billions under the same conditions," he declared, "or else further increase whatever suspicion, distrust, not to say enmity, that may exist in Russia against us now. Every other nation in the world will move into the line of seekers when they see that Britain has played us for fools successfully.

Billions in Gifts

"France, Poland, and China want billions in gifts from us. There is no reason why, as a matter of logical conclusion, every bankrupt nation in the world, ally and axis alike, should not come to the United States and demand a handout of billions if we make this gift to Great Britain, of which, of course, not a dollar will be paid back.

"Who is there in the house who doubts that in a couple or three years Britain will be back asking for another 4 or 5 billions—and if she gets this 4½ billions, why shouldn't she?"

War Debts Cited

Reed noted that the United States has spent 250 billion dollars on the war while Great Britain spent 100 billions and Russia 100 billions. The war debt of the United States is 260 billions, he added, while the war debt of Great Britain is 50 billions and the war debt of Russia and all the other allies is 250 billions.

"Never has history seen," he concluded, "such a spectacle as a nation like Great Britain interfering with our world transportation plans by air; arrogantly asking us to forego our foreign markets; demanding a thousand ships; setting up a socialized government which is the first step from democracy to communism—and then having the arrogance to say that we finance it all for them."

Begin Selection of Jury in Sailor's Trial for Rape

Selection of a jury got under way yesterday in the Lake county Circuit court of Judge Ralph J. Dady in the trial of Ernest H. Pugh, 18, a sailor at Great Lakes Naval Training center, on a charge of raping a 20 year old student nurse Aug. 10 in Waukegan.

Receive Citations

Miss Edith Abbott, dean emeritus of the graduate school of social service administration at the University of Chicago, and Edward L. Ryerson, chairman of the Illinois public aid commission, were honored yesterday at a luncheon meeting of the Illinois Welfare association in the Palmer House. They were awarded citations for outstanding welfare activities during a period of more than 10 years. Presentation of the citations was made by George B. McKibbin, chairman of the Illinois board of public welfare commissioners.

BYRNES FLYING TO MOSCOW FOR BIG 5 SESSION

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12 (AP)—State Secretary Byrnes left by plane this morning for Moscow where he plans to tackle half a dozen critical issues on which Big Three coöperation has been stalled. Among these issues are atomic energy and an eventual European peace conference. Gen. Eisenhower, army chief of staff, showed up unexpectedly to tell him good-by.

The flight schedule calls for Byrnes to arrive in the Russian capital by Saturday for a meeting with Soviet Foreign Commissar Molotov and British Foreign Secretary Bevin.

At his press conference today, President Truman said the Moscow conference was planned a long time ago as part of the program of meetings among the big power foreign ministers which was laid down at the Yalta Big Three conference last winter. The President added that he expected that the next meeting may be held in Washington in March or April.

2 FORMER FLEET CHIEFS RELIEVED OF ACTIVE DUTY

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12 (AP)—The navy today relieved from active duty two former fleet commanders who were called out of retirement during the war.

They are Admirals James O. Richardson, 67, and Arthur J. Hepburn, 68.

Richardson, of Paris, Tex., recently testified in the Pearl Harbor investigation that he understood he was removed from command of the fleet in February, 1941, because he had hurt President Roosevelt's feelings by disagreeing with him on disposition of the Pacific fleet.

Adm. Hepburn of Carlisle, Pa., was commander of the fleet from June 24, 1936, to Jan. 29, 1938. His last assignment was chairman of the navy's general board.

DEMOCRAT SAYS HIS PARTY SINKS 'TO A NEW LOW'

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12—Rep. Granger [D., Utah] told his colleagues today: "My party has never sunk so low as now in all its history."

This outburst illustrated the deep split in the majority party between conservatives and liberals. Granger is classified among the latter.

"I heard something in the debate [on the labor bill] about Republicans being in a hot frying pan," he began. "But some of us on the majority side have been on a hot seat for five years.

"I have been sitting here listening to Democrats from the south assail the Supreme court. It seems that all the distinguished lawyers from the south like to malign the court.

"You Republicans could certainly accuse the majority of incapability in carrying out the administration's program because in reality we have two parties on this side. Certain members are like a millstone around the neck of those of us who favor progressive action."

West Point and Annapolis Age Limit Raised for Vets

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12 (AP)—Legislation extending maximum age limits for eligibility to enter West Point or Annapolis was signed today by President Truman. Applicable only to World War II veterans with one year of service, it boosts the maximum admission age for West Point from 22 to 24 years and for Annapolis from 21 to 23 years.

URGES STATE AID TO EASE ACUTE VETS' HOUSING

Board Chief Favors Use of Slum Funds

Temple MacFayden, chairman of the state housing board, said yesterday he would recommend favorable action by the board on a request by the Chicago housing autohrity for the city's share of state slum clearance funds to be used for acquisition of land for three housing projects for veterans.

The CHA's request thus far is only in memorandum form, and was submitted by Miss Elizabeth Wood, executive secretary of the CHA, MacFayden said. When formal application is made, he added, the board will be called into session and urged to take action on it. Chicago's share of the fund amounts to about $4,300,000, he said.

Vets' Housing More Acute

President Truman's plan to establish priorities in building materials for veteran housing, MacFayden said, are in line with the pplicies of the state housing board. He said he believed actual construction of the emergency housing can get underway at an early date.

Chicago's housing shortage, meanwhile, grew more acute as letters from veterans poured into the headquarters of the committee on the housing crisis at 69 W. Washington st., and the absence of Mayor Kelly from the city prevented appointment of an "expediter" to procure an additional 10,000 units from the federal government. Orville Olmsted, regional director of the federal housing administration, had warned that Chicago must hurry if additional temporary housing from the government's war time surplus is to be obtained.

Several hundred letters from veterans, explaining their critical situation were received by the metropolitan housing council, said Mrs. Frederick Rubel, acting director.

Crowd In with In-Laws

The following are excerpts from typical letters:

"I have been out of service two months and since that time my wife and I have been living with in-laws. Enough said about why we need an apartment."

Another said: "We would like a place to live. We have no children but we are eating, sleeping, and fighting in one small housekeeping room."

A third said: "We have been living with my parents. Any flat is too small for 2 families, especially where there are only 2 bedrooms for six people."

TRUMAN TO ASK FOR CEILINGS ON OLD, NEW HOUSES

Orders Priorities on Building Materials

basic provision of the President's program is speeding the release of surplus housing units and building materials held by the government.

In his report, Snyder said this phase of the program makes surplus government property suitable for housing, including army and navy barracks and dormitories, available immediately to states and communities.

Wherever possible, these government housing facilities, many of which are near crowded cities, will be used on their present locations to house veterans and their families. If necessary, the facilities will be moved to new sites and remodeled.

Snyder estimated that 100,000 such dwelling units will become available in the next few months. Release of building materials will be expedited by special teams which will locate government surpluses and sell them on the spot, he continued, and disclosed that arrangements are being made to channel at least 70 per cent of this material into houses, with preference for veterans.

Snyder announced that he has requested the army and navy to suspend all construction not immediately needed to eliminate the military drain on building supplies.

Preferences for Vets

The regulation for priorities on building materials is expected to be put into effect within the next few days, Snyder said. Diversion of materials from less urgent industrial and commercial construction and from high cost housing thru such a priority system is one of the few ways to increase home building supplies immediately, he said.

In general, Snyder explained, the regulation will set up priorities for dwelling units costing $10,000 or less per unit. This will mean that about half of all building materials will be channeled into this type of building and the rest will be available for all other kinds of construction—private residential, commercial, and public. The regulation also will provide preferences for veterans in buying or renting such housing.

In connection with new and old house price ceiling legislation, Snyder said such a measure is necessary "to avert further sky rocketing of home prices." He said sharp increases in house prices already have occurred, and that the threat of inflation in this field "is the most menacing in our economy."

Million Families "Double Up"

Snyder told the President in his report that the current housing shortage has been building up over a period of years, and that immediate demand for new housing is far in excess of the nation's capacity to build in 1946. He said more than a million families are living "doubled up" with other families because of the scarcity of housing, and many more, including hundreds of thousands of veterans, will have to double up next year.

Nothing less than several years of peak construction will solve the housing problem, Snyder asserted. Altho residential building already has risen sharply, he reported, it will take "some time" for the construction industry to get into full operation. The industry will do well if more than 500,000 dwelling units are built in 1946, he said.

In his letter of appointment to Wyatt, President Truman ordered him to break housing bottlenecks at every level of industry and government. Wyatt was directed to "make the machinery of housing production run as smoothly and speedily as possible."

Calls Program "Drastic"

Omaha, Neb., Dec. 15 (AP)—Van Holt Garrett, president of the national association of real estate boards, in an interview today termed President Truman's housing program "very, very drastic action," and said the proposed ceiling on housing would be a "very dangerous step."

SUSAN SMILES HER WAY ACROSS OCEAN TO DADDY

Susan Zipper, one of the youngest of young women who have flown the Atlantic, smiled her way into the hearts of 24 other passengers and was rated as the best air traveler of all here yesterday. She is 6 months old and arrived with her mother on the American Overseas Airlines' London to Chicago flagship.

Susan, her mother, Mrs. Ruby Zipper of Stanmore, England, and her half-sister, Shirley Flegg, 10, are en route to join her father, Maj. Harry Zipper, of the air corps, stationed at Staten Island, N. Y.

Other passengers included five war brides, a playwright, a Danish war correspondent, a movie producer, and an official of an American cheese company.

Fellow passengers said Susan did not cry during the entire trip of 25 hours. Only two stops were made to refuel, one at Shannon air field in Ireland and the other at Gander, Newfoundland.

2,000 PAROLEES HELD REDEEMED BY WAR SERVICE

Parole and probation authorities, who enabled more than 2,000 offenders to join the army or navy, yesterday exempted their former wards from responsibility for Chicago's growing crime rate.

At least, they said, there is no proof that parolees or probationers of recent years have returned to the practices that brought them into Criminal court. Unless there is specific proof, they intend to hold to the belief that the war redeemed those men and wiped out their pasts.

Lawrence Breen, assistant chief probation officer, said that about 1,200 of the probationers under his jurisdiction were accepted by the selective service officials during the war.

Entered As Free Men

"It is probably true," Breen said, "that some were granted probation to go to war who wouldn't have been granted probation in peace time. But it shouldn't be understood that entry to the army was a form of punishment. We arranged it so the men were taken into the army as free men, not with anything hanging over their heads."

If accepted as a selectee, a court order would be entered terminating the period of probation. Therefore, even if the soldier committed a misdeed, he could not be sent to prison as a probation violator.

"We heard of only two or three probationers who went wrong in the army," Breen said.

Win Discharge in 6 Months

In the cases of men paroled from Joliet or Pontiac penitentiaries, they were listed as discharged from parole if no complaint was made against them by army authorities within six months.

Figures prepared by Rudolph Dvorak, assistant director of the Chicago Crime commission, showed that 761 convicts from Cook county were paroled from Joliet, Pontiac, Dwight, and Menard prisons in 1944, as compared with 1,104 in 1943, 696 in 1942, and 1,279 on the 1941 dockets. So far this year, Dvorak reported, there have been 627 parolees granted to Cook county convicts.

The rate of parole violations is about the same, Dvorak said. He added that he had no data to show that any of the parolees who went into the army betrayed the trust reposed in them.

AUTO THEFTS UP 400 THIS YEAR OVER ALL OF '44

An increase in automobile thefts, which began when gasoline rationing was lifted in August, brought the total in the city for the first 11 months of this year to 3,947, Capt. George A. Teeling of the stolen automobile detail reported yesterday. The number stolen during all of 1944 was 3,589. The largest number of thefts this year took place in August, when 457 cars were stolen. The heaviest month in 1944 was October with 357 stolen.

AAF TO INSPECT 20,500 PLANES TO CURB ACCIDENTS

Experienced Crews to Make Tests

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12 (AP)—Experienced flight test crews have been ordered to inspect approximately 20,500 army planes in the United States to check a rising accident rate, the army air forces announced today.

The accident rate in the United States rose from 39 per 100,000 flying hours in the last quarter of 1944 to 47 per 100,000 hours in August, September, and October of this year.

Announcement also was made that all United States air units in the Pacific have been combined into a new "Pacific air command" under Gen. Kenny, who was Gen. MacArthur's top air commander.

Permanent Strength

Kenny was chief of the war time far eastern forces which included the 5th, 7th, and 13th air forces. Under the new setup, he will have this former command plus the 20th and 8th air forces which operated B-29s.

An official spokesman at the same time disclosed details of the army air forces' idea for a permanent strength of 8,200 planes and 400,000 men, with a supplemental national guard air force of about 6,000 planes.

The spokesman, who would not permit his name to be used, emphasized to a news conference that the pattern is only a planning measure and must be coördinated with over-all plans of the war department and chiefs of staff before action can be sought.

Land Based Aviation

As outlined by the spokesman, the air force would take over all functions of land based aviation, apparently leaving the navy and marine corps with only carrier based activities.

The 400,000 figure was a downward revision from the 500,000 men mentioned by Gen. Arnold, chief of all army air forces, before a congressional committee. The 400,000 would include 50,000 officers and warrant officers.

ALL POWs IN U. S. TO BE HOMEWARD BOUND BY MAY

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12 (AP)—The war department today reiterated its intention to withdraw all prisoners of war from all employment in the United States within the next few months.

Secretary Patterson said there has been "considerable pressure for the retention of prisoners of war in this country as a source of labor," but that the army will adhere to its plans to end the program by March and have all prisoners homeward bound by the end of April.

He said there are approximately 1,800,000 persons drawing unemployment insurance and that retention of prisoners to work in the United States would aggravate the unemployment problem.

NEW PROPOSAL FOR SITE OF UNO IS 'SHIP AT SEA'

BY WILLIAM FULTON

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Dec. 12—The most recent suggestion for a permanent site for the united nations organization [UNO] is a "ship on the high seas." This was revealed today in an unpublished list of 59 localities which have sent invitations to the united nations preparatory commission now meeting in London.

The ship proposal found no favor from the rapidly growing secretariat of the new global machinery. The hired help is envisioning an elaborate world capital with a fleet of 24 Constellation land planes to fly diplomats around the globe and also a powerful radio station. The author of the ship idea was not disclosed.

Forty Invitations from U. S.

Today's list, circulated privately among the delegates from 51 nations in session here, contained 40 invitations from the United States, including Chicago, Milwaukee, and Beloit, Wis. There were also five Canadian bids, and the remainder were scattered around the various parts of the earth.

A subcommittee of the preparatory commission has heard 12 American deputations so far and is getting ready to receive three more on the way. They are from Cincinnati, St. Louis and the state boundary between New York and Connecticut.

May Have Vote Saturday

Today there was a lull in the fight, but the debate will be resumed in the preparatory commission tomorrow. Friday the commission will decide whether it should follow the Canadian recommendation for secret balloting on the site.

It is possible that a vote on the question of whether the site of the new world capital will be in Europe or the United States will be held Saturday night, but the final decision on the specific city may not be made until after the general assembly convenes here Jan. 10.

PROBERS REVEAL 190 IDLE SHIPS LOLL IN PACIFIC

Gun Crews Are on Some; Huge Waste Cited

had no use for the cargo and did not know why the ship was there."

Mead also read the assemblage a radiogram from the officers and crew of the victory ship Vanderbilt. They said their pay aggregates $3,000 a day and asked to be brought home from Honolulu to testify regarding another strange odyssey that left them idle four months in Saipan.

Cites Other Idleness

Mead told the officers present he has a list of 241 ships that have each been kept in port in the Pacific 30 days or more, and called off a number of instances of idleness in port that went as high as 171 days.

Army, navy, and WSA officials testified to the general effect that these agencies now have 1,239 cargo ships in the Pacific, 629 assigned to the army, 518 to the navy and 92 to WSA. The officials conceded that 190 may be classified as idle and that many of the total number rank as floating warehouses.

The navy admitted that many of the cargo ships are still carrying 25 man gun crews, altho it insisted they are being removed. The navy had no figures, nevertheless, on how many gun crews are assigned to cargo ships.

Charge 99 to Navy

A navy statistician was telling how the navy had reduced the ships it is using by 150 when Meader asked if this were not merely a bookkeeping procedure. The witness admitted it was, explaining that the navy transfers ships back to WSA after unloading them, for the records.

The statistician insisted that no more than 22 navy ships could be called idle, and he wouldn't call them that since they were merely "awaiting orders," until Meader came across an item of 77 more awaiting orders.

The witness explained that they have some army cargo, but the committee upped the navy figure on idle ships to 99, ignoring the statistician's explanation.

Tons of Cargo Aboard

Meader said the cargo ships in the Pacific are laden with one million tons of material, much of it critically needed to meet shortages at home. Among the material, witnesses said, is 25 million board feet of lumber.

They went on to explain that the navy has 255 million feet of lumber in the continental United States, but said it is declaring the lumber surplus as rapidly as possible.

Rear Adm. W. M. Callaghan had an explanation for part of the navy ships. He said they are carrying ammunition and must await their turn to be unloaded or the ammunition must be dumped into the ocean.

Unloading ammunition, he said, is too dangerous to be done in congested ports. There are only 13 ship berths on the whole west coast, he said, where unloading can be attempted.

Deputy WSA Administrator Granville Conway told the committee that 43 ships in this country are idle, altho loaded and ready to sail, because crews cannot be provided for them.

When the committee inquired into complaints of delay in returning veterans from war zones, Maj. Gen. W. S. Paul said 1,042,000 army and navy men were brought back from all theaters in November and estimated that 1,063,500 will be returned this month.

Paul said 635,000 men will remain in Europe and a million in the Pacific by the end of the month. He said there are now 1,588,000 in the Pacific. Paul said Gen. Eisenhower has just ordered all his commanders to cut personnel "to the core."

Also wounded were young Dennis' cousins, Wayne Ravellette, 18, and his brother, Leonard, 11, of East Chicago Heights.

CHIANG'S TROOPS ENTER MUKDEN AND CHANGCHUN

Move Aided by Russians' Withdrawal

CHUNGKING, China, Dec. 12 (AP)—Central government troops moved by road into Mukden and by air into Changchun today in two giant strides toward restoring China's sovereignty over Manchuria, a Tientsin dispatch said.

Chinese military sources in Tientsin said Lt. Gen. Tu Li-ming's forces of the 13th and 52d armies entered Mukden, Manchuria's largest city, without incident.

Some of Tu's troops pushed on to Sinmin [Hsingmin], on the Tientsin-Mukden railway, 34 miles northwest of Mukden.

The 5th division of Chungking's 94th army began landing by plane at Changchun, the capital, 170 miles to the northeast of Mukden. Lt. Gen. Yao Keh-min, chief of staff of the division, said on his return from Changchun to Peiping that Russian troops were guarding the air field and soon would turn it over to his forces. Yao found Chinese Communists had disappeared from the vicinity of Changchun.

Industrialized Territory

Tientsin sources reported the moves were made in an agreement with Russia under which Chungking forces will occupy most strategic areas in the vast and partly industrialized territory seized by Japan when she began her era of Asiatic conquest in September, 1931.

These sources said Russian troops had cleared the way for the entry of Chungking divisions whose possession of Manchuria has been contested by Chinese Communist forces.

A Chinese civil mission was reported operating jointly with the Russians the railway between Changchun and the northern Manchurian city of Harbin and between Changchun and the southern free port of Dairen.

China Has 34 Provinces

A message from Nanking charged that Communists had formed a "Kiangsi-Anhwei border government" in those two provinces lying east and south of Nanking. The report alleged the Communists had set up their border rule along the lines of that centering around Yenan, the North China headquarters of the Communists.

Cabinet Spokesman P. H. Chang told correspondents today that with the inclusion of Manchuria's nine provinces, there now were 34 provinces in the republic of China.

The others, he said, were 22 in China proper and three in Inner Mongolia—Jehol, Chahar, and Suiyuan. [China considered Jehol part of Inner Mongolia, but Japan seized it in 1933 and added it to Manchuria.]

Mayor Mao Chao-chun of Nanking confirmed that the national assembly, which will consider a new constitution for China, would meet there beginning May 5.

TRUMAN HINTS LONG STAY FOR MARINES IN CHINA

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12 (AP)—President Truman said at his press conference today that United States marines will remain in China until surrender terms with the Japanese have been carried out.

Presumably this means that as long as there are any important forces of defeated Japanese left in China the marines will stay there, since State Secretary Byrnes recently declared that under the surrender terms the United States is committed to help get the surrendered Japanese units home. Diplomatic informants estimated this means the marines will be there at least 4 or 5 months and possibly much longer.

The question of the marines came up when Mr. Truman was asked specifically when they would be taken out of China.

At a later date, the President added, he will announce the complete American policy on China for the guidance of Gen. Marshall, his new special ambassador to Chungking. The announcement will be made at a news conference, the President said, when Gen. Marshall leaves.

Jap Booby Trap in Burma Perils Governor's Train

RANGOON, Burma, Dec. 12 [Reuters]—An unexploded Japanese booby trap, which might have derailed the special train of Gov. Reginald Dorman Smith, was discovered today. Engineers removed the trap and the governor's train reached its destination safely.

FIGHTS FLARE IN SCATTERED PARTS OF JAVA

BATAVIA, Java, Dec. 12 (AP)—Fighting flared again at scattered points thruout Java today and tension mounted with the arrival in Tandjong Priok harbor here of British reinforcements despite a nationalist warning that any attempts to land more troops would be met with all-out resistance. They were on the troopship Salween.

A convoy of British Indian troops called for tank support after being attacked by Indonesians near Buitenzorg, 30 miles south of the capital and largest town on the 110 mile supply road to Bandoeng. Another supply convoy en route to Bandoeng was halted by a roadblock, which was strafed by supporting British planes. British patrols took eight prisoners and captured three Japanese aircraft armed with machine guns. A supply train escorted by picked Indonesian peace preservation corps police, however, reached Bandoeng safely.

[Maj. Gen. Yamamoto, chief of staff of the Japanese 16th army, has admitted he was mainly responsible for fostering the Indonesian independence movement, southeast Asia command headquarters said in Singapore. Yamamoto was in command of Japanese forces in Java. He was arrested and jailed last month and is awaiting trial.]

DIANA ROOSEVELT HURT IN FALL

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12 [AP]—Diana Roosevelt, 18, daughter of the late Hall Roosevelt and niece of Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, is in a hospital here with a fractured skull and a broken jaw suffered in a fall from a horse. Hospital authorities reported today she is doing well.

PRESSES POUR BANK NOTES INTO JAP INFLATION

TOKYO, Japan, Dec. 12 (AP)—Japan's printing presses are feeding a mounting stream of banknotes into the nation's currency inflation. The Kyodo news agency said today the note issue of the Bank of Japan, which lately has been climbing at the rate of 2 billion yen [about $130,000,000] in 10 days, would reach a total of 56 billion yen [about $3,640,000,000] by Jan. 1. The bank's total issue in November, 1943, amounted to eight billion yen [about $520,000,000].

NAVY DECLARES ARMY MERGER PLAN IS INFERIOR

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12 (AP)—The navy department today argued that the army plan for merging the armed forces under a single civilian cabinet member is inferior to the navy's alternative "plan for national security."

The navy plan was submitted to the senate military committee in an elaborate brochure, which summarized army proposals on comparable points. The committee, which was not in session today, will consider the document when next it meets.

Rear Adm. Thomas H. Robbins Jr. declared the broad reorganization of national defense under this security plan—with army and navy still separate—"could save dollars where, comparatively, the army plan might save pennies."

The former commander of the carrier Lexington, in a statement which accompanied the navy brochure, made these comments:

1. The army would reduce the number of cabinet members by one and provide no new assistance for the President. The navy would provide him with a national security council, to deal with foreign and military policies, and a national security resources board, to handle domestic and economic matters.

2. The army would weaken civilian control of the military establishment by reducing the number of civilian executives. The navy would strengthen civilian control by creating new policy making agencies.

3. The army would provide no plan for integrating foreign and military policies. The navy would accomplish this thru the national security council composed of the President, secretary of state and secretaries of the military departments.

4. The army has no proposal to integrate a military program and civilian economy. The navy's national security resources board would do so by bringing together such functions as those of the war production board, war man power commission and office of defense transportation.

Gen. Sutherland to Come Back at Own Request

TOKYO, Dec. 12 (AP)—Lt. Gen. Richard K. Sutherland, Gen. MacArthur's chief of staff in Manila, Corregidor, Australia, New Guinea and all the way to Tokyo, is returning to the United States at his own request. Supreme headquarters announced today that the veteran of more than eight years of continuous service in the Pacific theater would be succeeded by Maj. Gen. R. J. Marshall, also of MacArthur's command.

THIS DAY IN HISTORY

Dec. 13—Defeat at Fredericksburg

THIS is the 83d anniversary of the disastrous battle of Fredericksburg, Va., in which Gen. Ambrose E. Burnside's Union army of the Potomac suffered 12,650 casualties while vainly striving to push the Confederates from the heights bordering the Rappahannock river and to open a way to Richmond.

Gen. Robert E. Lee's Confederate army of northern Virginia, about 78,500 strong, had been able to reach the vicinity of Fredericksburg and fortify the ridges south of the Rappahannock while Burnside's much stronger force—some 122,000 men—was wasting precious days on the far side of the river awaiting the pontoons with which the stream was to be bridged.

When Burnside finally succeeded in getting five bridges across the river and moving the bulk of his army over, he was confronted with a Confederate entrenchment running along the bases of the hills behind Fredericksburg.

On Dec. 13, 1862, Burnside made a futile attack on the enemy's right, then ordered a major assault on Marye's hill, a formidable position. Confederate riflemen stood behind a stone wall along a sunken road and before them lay 600 or 700 yards of open plain. Union division after division bravely advanced across this terrain, only to be cut to pieces by the deadly fire from the well protected Confederate positions. Burnside sent no fewer than seven divisions against the enemy line at this point.

When the bloody day was done, the despairing Union commander, conscious of failure and tortured by the thought of the thousands of men who had been killed or who lay groaning on the ground below Marye's hill, decided that he himself on the following day should lead an assault over the same terrain. He was dissuaded by his subordinates, however. On the night of Dec. 15 the Union army recrossed the Rappahannock.

PLAN $2,500,000 OFFICE BUILDING FOR EVANSTON

BY AL CHASE

The Evanston club has under consideration plans for a 2½ million dollar seven story building to replace its present sprawling two and one-half story building at the northwest corner of Chicago av. and Grove st., Evanston, Leon Cranz, president, said yesterday. Under the proposed setup a modern structure would be erected by outside interests who in turn would give the club possession of penthouse quarters rent free for 50 years.

Shops on First Floor

The club would have 15,000 square feet of floor space, considerably more than it now has, Cranz said, and all of its facilities would be enlarged. Its four bowling alleys, for example, would be increased to six. The club rooms probably would be air conditioned, it was said.

Tentative plans call for shops on the first and possibly the second floors with the upper floors to be rented to physicians and dentists who are members of the club. A majority of the club roster is made up of members of the medical and dental profession, Cranz said. There are enough such members to assure rental of all office space, he added.

In addition to penthouse space, the club members would have the free use of a large garage in the basement of the proposed new building, Cranz said.

Contract Sought by Two Firms

Two groups of financial interests have submitted almost identical plans to the club members. Both are being considered. One is headed by the Thorgersen & Ericksen company, and the other by Ragnar Benson, Inc. Both are Chicago contracting firms.

The present rambling club house was erected 60 years ago. It occupies a lot which fronts 210 feet on Grove st. and 132 feet on Chicago av. It long has been considered one of the outstanding business corners in Evanston and has been studied by prospective builders for several years. All offers, heretofore, have been turned down by the club.

President Cranz is director of physical education at Northwestern university in Evanston.

HORRORS OF NAZI SLAVERY BARED AT WAR TRIAL

'Work Them to Death' Order Revealed

BY HAL FOUST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

NUERNBERG, Germany, Dec. 12—Prosecution of 21 high Nazis before the international military tribunal today became history's biggest murder trial, with not one victim, but uncounted millions. It became the most extensive kidnaping case in all human experience, with uncounted millions of laborers conscripted from occupied countries by the Nazis.

The now familiar story of these crimes was documented for future generations to read of the price of total war, and for history to know what happened to European civilization in World War II.

United States Prosecutor Thomas J. Dodd introduced captured German documents to show that concentration camp prisoners were worked to death as a matter of policy, just as the Jews were exterminated as a matter of Nazi policy.

Slave Hunts Revealed

The documents revealed that slave hunts in occupied countries in response to periodic orders from the reich for hundreds of thousands of more male and female laborers to replace losses from overwork, undernourishment, punishment, disease, and murder. The evidence covered the barbaric deprivation, exactions, and penalties suffered after impressment.

Presiding Lord Justice Geoffrey Lawrence called attention of the court to a line in an order to SS kidnapers from the security police in March, 1943, concerning the recruitment of workers from Poland and Russia.

"As a rule, no more children will be shot," the order said.

The day also produced evidence that the Nazis forced prisoners of war into arms jobs in violation of The Hague conventions and on some occasions made them man guns aimed at compatriots.

Krupp Plant Named

The day's evidence indicated that at least one of the big industrialist war mongers, the Krupp munitions family, could have been appropriately included in the prisoner panel as advocated by the American prosecution and successfully opposed by the British.

Dodd read this document from the files of the Krupp works: "During the last few days we have established that food for the Russians employed here is so miserable that the people are getting weaker every day."

The prosecutor's finger was pointed today mainly at Albert Speer, successful businessman type, middle aged at 40, who was reichs minister for armaments and war production, and at Fritz Sauckel, 58 and bald, with Hitler type mustache, who was the labor mobilization chief. One needed men for war plants, and the other supplied the demands.

Hermann Goering was involved as reich marshal and deputy fuehrer.

6,691,000 Employed

A partial conception of the number of victims involved is contained in a survey introduced into the record estimating that in January, 1945, there were 6,691,000 foreigners including 1,873,000 prisoners of war, employed in arms and munitions plants in the old reich. This does not include millions employed in occupied territory, nor millions who died.

Prosecutor Dodd read from a September 18, 1942 directive of SS-Chief Heinrich Himmler that "anti-social prisoners" in concentration camps were "to be worked to death." "Anti-social elements" were described as "Jews, gypsies, Russians, Ukrainians, Poles with more than three year sentences, and Czechs and Germans with eight year sentences."

Villages Raided

Evidence of recruitment of men and women for labor was voluminous. Documents authenticated that whole villages were raided for men and women. Houses were burned when men fled to the woods. Aged parents were held as hostages and sometimes killed when they failed to produce fugitive sons or daughters for forced labor.

One record said that babies born on slave trains were being thrown out of train windows. One document was a complaint from the Nazi administrator that trainloads of sick and incapacitated slaves being returned to their native lands should not be allowed to dump their dead in view of trains passing in the opposite direction with replacements for German factories. This is bad for morale, said the complaint.

"A fine thing, you teaching the kid how to knit just before Christmas."

WAR CRIME TRIAL TEST MAY BE IN U. S. OR BRITAIN

Can Arise on Attempt to Call Witnesses

BY HAL FOUST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

NUERNBERG, Germany, Dec. 12—The authority of the international war crimes tribunal, based mainly on its own charter declaration, may be tested by an established court of law before final disposition is made of the high nazi defendants.

The test will not come in an appeal of the verdict, because the only review provided by the setup is to the allied control commission in Germany, with its function limited to passing upon the severity of the punishment.

However, the qualifications of the tribunal may be challenged in a court of England or the United States, if there is any attempt to subpena unwilling witnesses from one of these countries.

Arrested Under Military Law

The present defendants and group of witnesses in custody for major war crimes trials were arrested by American, British and Russian armies in their respective zones under the authority of military law, not by an assumption of authority by the tribunal. As a practical matter, additional witnesses may be arrested at the request of the tribunal in Germany by any one of the allied armies.

The charter establishing the tribunal, adopted by representatives of the executive branches of the American, British, Russian and French governments meeting in London last summer, authorized the court to subpena witnesses anywhere. The American prosecution staff, headed by Justice Robert H. Jackson, has given assurance that the courts of these four countries will help execute processes of the tribunal. The assumption also extends to 16 other countries which have formally indicated adherence to the charter.

Two Would Be Reluctant

The British and French staffs here, however, believe that their country's courts would be reluctant to recognize the jurisdiction of the international tribunal within their respective territories. They are inclined to doubt that either a British or French court would compel attendance at Nuernberg by a witness subpenaed from one of the empires.

The tribunal to date has avoided bringing the issue to a head. Defense attorneys a couple of weeks ago requested subpenas for several British peers. The court held that the defense could submit interrogatories to the tribunal for questioning of these men and that the men named would be given the opportunity to come to Nuernberg if they chose, but that no subpenas would be issued.

There was also a request for subpena for a German Jewish banker now in New York. His full identity was not given. The tribunal held that this request lacked in not showing that the testimony would be material. There have been no other requests for witnesses from America.

Suit of Habeas Corpus

However, the tribunal announced recently that the defense was invited to submit requests for witnesses at the close of the prosecution's case, probably about mid-January. It is considered likely that requests will include prospective American and British witnesses if not Russians. The Russian position in such cases could not be learned.

Jackson's office contemplates that a supena served in America upon an unwilling witness probably would be followed by the respondent suing in a state or federal court for a writ of habeas corpus on the contention that the international tribunal, notwithstanding its charter, lacks jurisdiction. This would decide the issue of whether the tribunal has its foundation in established jurisprudence.

The defendants at the opening of the trial four weeks ago challenged the tribunal's jurisdiction, but were overruled by an arbitrary provision of the charter which says the defense cannot challenge the jurisdiction of the tribunal.

MUSSERT, DUTCH NAZI LEADER, SENTENCED TO DEATH AS A TRAITOR

Anton Mussert

THE HAGUE, Dec. 12 (AP)—Anton Mussert, 51, leader of the Dutch Nazi party, was sentenced to death by a special court today following his conviction on charges of collaborating with the Germans. He was tried before a special tribunal in a courtroom that once was the ballroom of Princess Juliana's palace.

Mussert, who founded the Dutch National Socialist party and was its fuehrer, was appointed by Hitler in December 1942, as "leader of the Netherlands people."

He was arrested last May. He testified at his trial in November that he still had unwavering faith in Hitler, and that he once proposed to Hitler that the Netherlands become part of a "league of Germanic peoples."

Find Wreckage of Army Plane in Which 44 Died

CALCUTTA, India, Dec. 12 (AP)—Searching parties today identified the wreckage of an army transport plane in which 40 homeward bound American soldiers and four crewmen lost their lives last month. Army transport command headquarters reported that deep snow was hampering the search for bodies of the victims. The plane crashed Nov. 3 against the side of an 8,200 foot mountain in an isolated Himalayas section.

MILITARY COURT CONVICTS ALL 40 DACHAU ACCUSED

Officials and Guards Learn Fate Today

DACHAU, Germany, Dec. 12 (AP)—Forty officials and guards of the notorious Dachau concentration camp were convicted today by a United States military court on charges of murder, torture, and starvation. They will be sentenced tomorrow.

The court, deliberating 90 minutes, found Martin Weiss, camp commandant, and all the other defendants guilty of a regime of horror at the camp, overrun by American troops last April 30. Dachau then housed 32,000 men and 350 women. The trial lasted 24 days.

Five Doctors Among Guilty

Defendants sentenced to die will be hanged. The accused took the verdict stoically, altho a few flushed when their names were read.

The convicted included five camp doctors and three prisoners who had collaborated with the SS. One physician, 74 year old Dr. Klaus Schilling, was accused of killing hundreds of inmates in malaria experiments. He had begged on the witness stand to be allowed to finish the paper work on the results which he claimed indicated an anti-malaria vaccine.

Two others, Fritz Hintermeier and Paul Walter, were charged with conducting "pressure experiments" on prisoners for the benefit of the German air force.

Most Feared of Camps

Dachau was one of the most odious and most feared of the concentration camps set up by the Hitler regime for political prisoners. Witnesses at the trial said 5,000 Jews were killed in one camp at Dachau, that inmates were brutally beaten, that naked men were immersed in ice water in experiments, that some prisoners were sent to the crematory while still alive, and that the nazis bleached human heads for souvenirs.

At another trial in Dachau Richard Drauz, nazi kreisleiter of Heilbronn, was sentenced today by a military court to be hanged for killing a captured American flyer by shooting him in the back of the head while the latter was handcuffed.

"I'm getting tired. I'll scratch one of my relatives off the list if you'll do the same to one of yours."

1,000,000 BERLIN CIVILIANS TO GET RATION INCREASE

Seek to Prevent Huge Winter Death Toll

BY HENRY WALES
(Chicago Tribune Press Service)

BERLIN, Dec. 12—In a belated desperate effort to prevent wholesale mortality among Berlin's civilian population this winter, the four power coördinating committee today instructed the allies' command to increase rations of the lowest category, No. 5, from 1,248 to 1,500 calories as soon as possible. No. 5 includes mostly housewives and other adults not employed in outside work.

The recommendation came after American, British, French, and Russian health officers in their respective garrison confirmed a warning conveyed by German physicians. They warned that a minimum of 25 per cent of 1,000,000 Berliners holding No. 5 ration cards were doomed to death this winter because the caloric content of the food allowed them probably is insufficient to enable them to withstand the bitter cold in unheated homes, offices, working places, schools, homes for the aged and infirm.

Russians Have Heat

The increased ration is a victory for Americans and British who have constantly urged its necessity. The five categories were established last summer when the freezing factor was not involved. But the revision was contested by the Russians who point out that the lowest Moscow food ration is only 1,250 calories.

The decisive Anglo-American argument today was that the Moscow populace have heat, whereas Berliners will lack fuel.

German doctors said the augmented ration will save some lives but that frigid weather will take heavy toll of people whose vitality and resistance is shattered by war, hopelessness, and malnutrition.

Dig 100,000 Graves

One hundred thousand graves in various Berlin cemeteries have been dug before frost makes excavation more difficult in order to inter a portion of the fatalities expected from malnutriton, starvation, and freezing.

Many large pits for mass burials have been prepared, as in these days of shortages bodies are removed from coffins and interred in shrouds.

The crematorium in the British sector is working overtime to dispose of bodies and usually is 300 corpses behind.

WOULD SPEED UP SURPLUS GOODS SALES TO VETS

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12 (AP)—Wholesale dealers thruout the country would be authorized to sell surplus goods to veterans under a plan recommended today by Surplus Property Administrator Symington.

Symington told a senate military subcommittee that veterans "are not getting the property they want" under the present system of channeling surpluses thru 31 regional offices of the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

He also recommended that veterans be granted a priority over state and local governments and that they be permitted to buy surplus property for personal use, instead of for business purposes only.

SET ASIDE FUND IN BRITAIN FOR COLONIAL WORK

LONDON, Dec. 12 (AP)—The British government today allocated $480,000,000 for colonial development and welfare. A white paper announcement said the sum included $94,000,000 for research and $342,000,000 allocated to colonial territories, leaving a general reserve of $44,000,000.

George Henry Hall, secretary of state for colonies, said the allocations were not authorizations to spend but represented what could be spent provided proposed projects were approved.

In another white paper published today the government proposed a joint high commission and central legislature for the three East African colonies of Kenya, Uganda, and Tanganyika. A colonial office spokesman said the plan would provide a means for common handling of colonial problems, particularly those affecting transportation and communication, instead of referring them to separate legislative councils.

FIND $191,300 OF MRS. CLINE IN VAULT BOX

Trace Husband's Trail Thruout U. S.

was enhanced by the statement today in Dallas by B. J. Williams and J. W. Christian, undertakers, that a photograph of Mrs. Krebs Cline "very strongly resembled" the woman who died Oct. 17, 1944, as Mrs. Carpenter.

Body Cremated Next Day

The undertakers arranged the funeral of the supposed Mrs. Carpenter at the request of Cline, who was posing in Dallas as Mrs. Carpenter's business manager. The body was cremated, Williams said, the day following death at Cline's orders.

Identification of Mrs. Cline's photograph by the undertaker supported a similar identification made last night from the same photograph by Dr. W. E. Haley, who attended the supposed Mrs. Carpenter before her death and issued a death certificate for heart disease. Dr. Haley now says his examination of the woman was superficial and that she may have been under the influence of drugs.

Trace Cline's Movements

Police of Dallas threw themselves into a many sided investigation of the relation of the death there to the bizarre career of Cline.

Nine cities including Dallas were coöperating in the investigation—Columbus, O., Tampa, Fla.; St. Petersburg, Fla.; Portland, Ore.; San Francisco, Cal.; Los Angeles, Cal.; Bloomington, Ind., and Chicago.

The unraveling trail of Cline's movements after his release in 1942 from Folsom penitentiary in California where he served nine years for the robbing and drugging of Martin Frame, 60, a Los Angeles business man, indicated that in 1943 he met Mrs. Elizabeth Hunt Lewis in Santa Ana, Cal. She disappeared after leaving with him on an automobile trip. Her Santa Ana relatives now charge he appropriated her property in Oakland and Richmond, Cal.

Death Indicated

Developments tonight indicated that a woman known as Elizabeth Hannah Klein, who died in Jacksonville, Fla., Oct. 22, 1943, may have been Mrs. Lewis.

In St. Petersburg, Fla., in January, 1944, Cline made the acquaintance of the real Mrs. Alice W. Carpenter of that city.

She dropped from sight after going away with Cline in February, 1944, police said, and in May Cline appeared in Chicago and married the former Mrs. Krebs. Her disappearance the following October was followed by the appearance of Cline and a sick elderly woman in Dallas whom he registered at the Scott hotel there as Mrs. Carpenter.

Dallas police said Cline told courts of that city that Mrs. Carpenter was without relatives and had himself appointed administrator of her estate, valued at $10,000.

San Francisco police took up the story with Cline's appearance there in November of this year and his whirlwind courtship of Mrs. Isabelle Van Natta, San Francisco widow.

Cline left San Francisco with Mrs. Van Natta last Nov. 17 and appeared in Portland Nov. 24 with a sick, elderly woman with whom he registered at the Heathman hotel as Mr. and Mrs. Alfred L. Cline. When this woman died, Nov. 29, he had the body cremated as that of the former Mrs. Krebs and notified her relatives in the middle west she had died.

Portland police have stated that descriptions and photographs of the woman who died there tally with those of Mrs. Van Natta.

In Florida, police of St. Petersburg and Tampa bestirred themselves to find out what has happened to Mrs. Carpenter who up to now was presumed to have died in Dallas.

From Bloomington, Ind.

Mrs. Carpenter, 66, was a former resident of Bloomington, Ind., and was the widow of Dr. E. C. Carpenter, Bloomington veterinarian. She has a brother-in-law, George Carpenter, and a nephew, George Carpenter Jr., now living in Bloomington. Police said she moved to Florida in 1926 and lived in Tampa and St. Petersburg until she met Cline.

Mrs. Mabel Chase of 507 S. Willow st., Tampa, with whom Mrs. Carpenter lived for three years, said today Mrs. Carpenter visited her in February, 1944, and told her she was planning to marry Cline and was going on an automobile trip with him.

"Mrs. Carpenter introduced me to Cline, and the two of them drove away from my home," Mrs. Chase said. "From that day to this neither I nor any of her other many friends in Florida ever heard a word from her. The following October I learned her death had been reported in Dallas and that Cline was trying to have her estate probated."

Made a Will in 1943

Mrs. Chase said she recalled that Mrs. Carpenter had gone to a St. Petersburg attorney in 1943 and made a will. She located this attorney and he showed her a copy of the will, which left her property to her Bloomington relatives and named Mrs. Chase as executrix.

"We had the copy of the will validated by witnesses and started probate proceedings in Florida," Mrs. Chase said. "I went to Dallas in May of this year and after I established my rights as executrix the administration begun in Dallas courts by Cline was withdrawn."

Mrs. Chase said she recovered $5,000 in cash of Mrs. Carpenter's estate from Atty. O. D. Brundidge, who had been retained by Cline in the Dallas administration proceedings. This money, he said, was the proceeds of the sale of five registered $1,000 bonds belonging to Mrs. Carpenter.

She said Cline never accounted for a $1,000 negotiable bond, or several items of valuable jewelry, and that he claimed and collected a $200 fee for his services as administrator.

Mrs. Chase said she also learned that in February, 1944, Cline visited two banks in St. Petersburg where he closed out two bank accounts Mrs. Carpenter had maintained. There was $457 in one account and $444 in another, she said.

She said Cline succeeded in obtaining this money from the banks by presenting orders written on a typewriter and signed with the purported signature of Mrs. Carpenter. Her attorneys have examined these signatures and pronounced them forgeries, she said.

Murder Warrant Refused

In Dallas, it was learned that at the time the Cline administration of the Carpenter estate was terminated, Atty. Richard Humphrey, representing Mrs. Chase, appealed to the Dallas district attorney for a murder warrant against Cline. The request was refused on the grounds of insufficient evidence.

Humphrey disclosed that the United States navy made an investigation of the death of the supposed Mrs. Carpenter at the request of George Carpenter Jr. who last year was a sailor stationed at the naval supply barracks in Oakland, Cal. Young Carpenter was a $1,000 beneficiary in Mrs. Carpenter's will.

The naval investigation, Humphrey said, resulted in the filing of a report with Dallas authorities stating grounds existed for believing the body cremated there was not that of Mrs. Carpenter.

Six Suspicious Facts

"It is well to consider the possibility that the woman who died in Texas was not Mrs. Carpenter but some other person to whom the same sort of treatment had been given by Cline," the naval report concluded.

Humphrey explained the naval investigation was made under regulations permitting navy men to ask assistance of the navy's legal department in personal legal problems. He said the report listed six facts as "suspicious circumstances." These were:

1. Altho Cline began his acquaintanceship with Alice [Carpenter] by offering to hire her at $250 a month to look after his western property he almost immediately began handling her property and business affairs.

2. Alice never replied to any letters sent her by Florida friends but only when they sent her registered letters were such letters returned unclaimed.

Used Three Names

3. Cline gave two different names and three addresses, A. L. Cline of San Francisco, A. L. Cline of St. Petersburg, and Fred Cline of Cleveland.

4. Cline disavowed knowledge of Alice's relatives to Dallas undertakers, but called relatives on the telephone two days later.

5. Alice never used a typewriter but her stock certificates were transferred on typewritten order.

6. Cline denied knowledge of Alice's will in talking to relatives but told Atty. O. D. Brundidge in Dallas that Alice had destroyed her will because she objected to some of its provisions.

Woman Ill on Arrival

Jack Spillman, manager of the Scott hotel in Dallas, today recalled the arrival there of Cline and an elderly woman on Oct. 13, 1944. He said Cline signed the register as "Alice Carpenter and one, Reno, Nev.," and that Cline and the woman were assigned adjoining rooms.

The woman was ill, Spillman said, and did not leave her room before her death. Cline brought her any food she may have had. Maids were not permitted to enter the room, even for the purpose of cleaning it.

Do you throw a party — or does a party throw you ?

WE TAKE your social life seriously, so that you can take it more lightly.

That's why you seldom open Good Housekeeping without finding some original suggestions for party menus or other phases of entertaining.

And they're practical suggestions, too. Many are prompted by your own requests. And all are tried out with your needs in mind.

It goes without saying that you want things to taste good and look good.

But you want a lot more than that—as your constant letters tell us.

Our practice makes you party-perfect

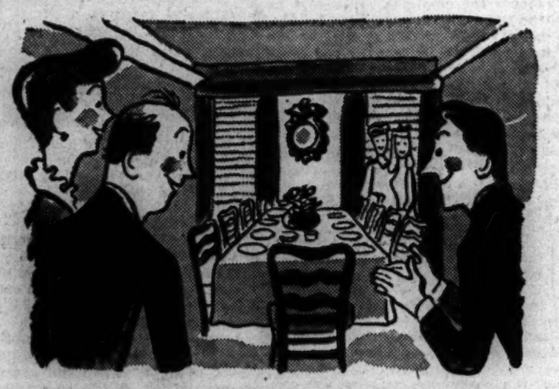
We give you exact cooking or baking time in our recipes. That takes the guesswork out of planning. You know when to start cooking different dishes so that they'll all be ready to serve at the same time.

When we tell you a recipe will give a certain number of portions—we've checked, to be sure they are satisfying portions. Skimpy portions never built any woman's reputation as a good hostess.

We don't suggest dishes unless we're reasonably sure that the ingredients will be easy to get. That saves you a lot of looking, and any disappointment.

And we're careful not to strain your budget to the bursting point—though your guests will never suspect you've been economical.

It will please you to know that we keep all those things in mind, constantly, when we try out party ideas for you.



High Anticipation makes for happy guests, as every hostess knows. But we watch the expressions on the faces of our departing guests—in order to be sure realization matches expectation. Then we tell you how we make 'em happy.

And try them out we certainly do—all the way from the market to the table.

We're always entertaining on your behalf

To be sure your guests will enjoy the dishes you set before them—we serve those dishes, first, to guests in our own dining room.

Yes, we invite guests with diverse tastes to partake of our hospitality. And only if they smack their lips do we hand on the recipes to you.

Thus, when we give you suggestions for Christmas-time entertaining—as we do in the current issue of Good Housekeeping—you can feel pretty sure they'll make a hit. And permit you to be happy, though a hostess,

From pies to pots and pans

What's true for entertainment tips holds good for any other advice you read in Good Housekeeping Magazine, whether it's how to bake a pie or scour a pot or pan.

For it's our habit to study, analyze, and try out products, methods, and ideas, before telling you about them in our pages.

That's one of the reasons you've learned to count on Good Housekeeping. And we want to keep the faith we've spent years in winning.

Getting several dishes ready to serve at the same time is one of the greatest problems to housewives who do their own cooking. So we time operations, to give you dependable advice.

Therefore—along with our Merry Christmas wishes—we make you a pledge. And we'll go on making it, too, as long as we live. It is this:

That at no time, and not for any reason, or any profit, will any page of Good Housekeeping—editorial or advertising—trade unfairly on your trust.

THE IDIOCY OF POTSDAM

The state department's new program calling upon the United States "and other nations" to finance German imports, chiefly of food for the present, represents a belated reaction to the growing public horror at the Potsdam occupation policy. Secretary Byrnes' final recognition of the desperate conditions that prevail in Germany as winter approaches confesses the blunders which he and President Truman committed at the Potsdam conference.

The Potsdam policy, which put into effect the harsh Morgenthau plan to reduce Germany to a cabbage and cuckoo clock economy is a failure. The measures proposed by Mr. Byrnes to undo the mischief can only alleviate in a small degree the misery and starvation which already prevail under the occupation. The original mistake cannot be rectified as long as the administration persists in carrying out the Potsdam policy of spoliation, as Mr. Byrnes says it will.

This policy has already proved costly. It has stored up in Germany a reservoir of hate which some day will seek explosive expression. But beyond that the Potsdam program is going to impose a continuing drain upon the American treasury. We are calling upon "other nations" to assist us in financing food imports to relieve starvation in the reich. The other signatories to the Potsdam declaration are Britain and Russia. What help can we expect from them?

The British have just confessed insolvency by tapping America for 4.4 billion dollars. Will a bankrupt contribute to the relief of its defeated enemy? Hardly. The British are going to use whatever funds they lay hands on to help themselves. That leaves Russia, which is a candidate for an even larger American loan. The Russians aren't interested in financing German rehabilitation. They are only interested in looting German industry of equipment which will benefit Russia.

The allied control council has just announced that the first batch of factories in the western zones of occupation controled by this country, Britain, and France have been stripped of their equipment and that 47.8 per cent of the equipment has been turned over to Russia. In the face of this Mr. Byrnes talks about putting Germany on a footing where it will be capable of balancing imports with exports and starting to repay financial assistance to the allies by February, 1948.

It does not take an economic expert to see that this is a pipe dream. No country can be stripped of its industrial potential and remain self-sufficient in the production of manufactured goods, let alone have enough left over to sell abroad. Such elementary facts seem beyond the grasp of Mr. Byrnes, who tries to say that Germany will be left with its "peaceful" industries but deprived of its heavy industries. No such separation can be made if anything like an ordered and balanced economy is to remain.

What the Byrnes proposal boils down to is that the United States is going to be compelled to pay out of its own pocket in a futile endeavor to escape the consequences of Mr. Byrnes' and Mr. Truman's own follies at Potsdam. We are going to have to pay for the food to save Germans from complete starvation. We are going to have to pay for new equipment to replace that which we are permitting our rapacious allies to remove. We will be extending a form of lend-lease to a nation which we were only recently fighting.

Our economic illiterates and lackwit leaders have thus managed to place the United States once more in its customary position of holding the bag. Mr. Byrnes is off for Moscow to consult with the British and the Russians. It is unlikely that he will get them to disown the Potsdam program when he is unwilling to disown it himself. The only remaining hope is that public opinion will force the Truman administration to get our armies out of Germany and let the other despoilers face their responsibility for the brutal and immoral course they persist in following.

THE DRUM BEATING STARTS

Philip D. Reed, board chairman of the General Electric company, is out beating the drums for the so-called loan to Britain.

Mr. Reed's principal point in his speech before the members of the Illinois Manufacturers' association was that the British need the money. If they get the money they can continue to buy from this and other countries. He didn't touch very strongly, if at all, on the possibility of getting the money back. Any merchant knows that he can get business if he is indiscriminate about granting credit. He also knows that he can go broke in a hurry that way.

Mr. Reed speaks for big business. General Electric is Wall street business and international business. Its views are the views of Wall streeters who hope to share with the British in the continued exploitation of the empire, including the exploitation of enslaved peoples all over the world.

The Reed speech is one of the opening guns of the high pressure campaign on behalf of the gift to Britain which the administration has been planning in great detail for months. The propaganda plan was discovered and made public some weeks ago by the Wall Street Journal. Mr. Reed is just back from two years' residence in England. His assignment in the propaganda campaign is to convince the little business men who provide most of the jobs in the United States that if the "loan" is a good thing for Wall street business, it is likewise a good thing for little business. That, of course, doesn't follow. Little business isn't going to be cut in on the profits of British colonial slavery and most small business men wouldn't sleep well at night if they had that kind of money in their pocket.

Mr. Reed speaks for a special interest, the same eastern interest that seeks to control the finances and policies of the Republican party. It is not a leadership that the rest of the country will find profit in following either in international finance or domestic politics.

CAREER MAN

Gen. Marshall testified before the congressional investigating committee that Joseph McNarney, then a lieutenant general and deputy chief of staff, ordered that code-cracking secrets be withheld from the army board of inquiry which investigated the Pearl Harbor disaster.

At the time of the Roberts commission investigation of Pearl Harbor almost four years ago, McNarney was appointed to the commission by President Roosevelt. He was the only army and navy man named to the commission who was on active duty. At the time McNarney was an ambitious brigadier general. He did what was expected of him—blamed Adm. Kimmel and Gen. Short and allowed no breath of scandal to touch the White House circle.

McNarney found the way to promotion and pay. He was subsequently jumped three grades to four star general, made deputy chief of staff, second only to Gen. Marshall, and now has succeeded Gen. Eisenhower as chief of American forces of occupation in Europe. In this capacity he has distinguished himself by prohibiting soldiers from giving Christmas candy to German children.

When he tried to hamper the investigation of the army board McNarney knew who his employer and patron was. The spectacular rise of this political general carries its own moral.

MR. BOWLES AS HIS OWN CLIENT

Chester Bowles is conducting a vigorous campaign to keep OPA in existence. His job will end the middle of next year, and he doesn't want to quit. In his lifetime nothing has ever happened that gave him so much satisfaction as regulating the affairs of other people. His story is that he and his agency are indispensable. If he is put out of business, chaos will result. Price control has to be kept going until such time as his branch of the government finds that "competitive conditions are again established."

It is easier to understand this peculiar character if we understand who he is and how he works. His whole experience has been in sales promotion. Those who engage in that line of work are not noted for judicial weighing of all the facts bearing on the service they are trying to sell. Thus we may know in advance how Bowles will conduct his campaign to sell himself. As this is the open season for conventions, he will make many personal appearances. He will use newspapers, magazines, the radio, and all the other media which he used to win public acceptance for products and services in the past. He will insert leaflets in the checks other government bureaus send out, to veterans and their dependents, farmers, and others.

Now the fact is that Bowles, the advertising man, has a very shoddy article to sell this time. The greatest need of this country after the war ended was the largest possible production of civilian goods, as soon as possible. OPA has been the principal barrier to this goal. He and his agency have delayed reconversion by refusing to permit legitimate increases in selling prices, made necessary by higher labor and material costs.

Last August the war production board said that 3½ million radios could be made by Christmas. The manufacturers said that they could do it. They had every reason to bend every effort toward that, because the Christmas season always sees the peak of radio buying. It is a highly competitive business, and the race to get to market was bound to be intense. But instead of 3½ million there will be less than a half million. The reason for the radio shortage in the stores is the failure of OPA to act promptly in pricing sets, and its refusal to permit sufficient increases in the price of parts to enable the manufacturers to operate.

Bowles accused the manufacturers of holding back production to avoid paying the excess profits tax. This excuse by Bowles will disappear on Jan. 1, on which date the market should be glutted with the radios held back to save some tax money. Any one acquainted with the industry knows that this condition will not exist. Bowles makes a critical error in using an excuse which can be proved false in so short a time.

Bowles and his OPA have invariably stood in the way of the reconversion which has been made possible by the relaxation of the controls by WPB and other agencies. With producers poised for a race to the market and raw materials and labor available in the greatest abundance, there is no danger of soaring prices, if the producers are permitted to operate. But if Bowles is permitted to dam the flow of goods, while the government continues to add to the supply of money, heaven help us.

DEMOBILIZING DOCTORS

Sen. Reed of Kansas has shown that the navy has 406 more physicians in uniform now than it had 11 months ago, altho the war with Germany ended in May and the war with Japan in August. The navy on Dec. 1 was holding 13,299 physicians. The situation is unconscionable. While one of its departments holds the doctors in captivity the administration weeps crocodile tears about inadequate medical attention for the public and says that the only solution is state medicine. If the navy—and the army, too—would release thousands of doctors whom they have no justification for holding in service the people would start getting the medical care they need. The New Deal has tried to stack the deck again. The doctors have done their duty. Now let them get back into practice.

RED LETTERS ON A WALL

The most famous wall inscription by a murderer on the scene of his crime was found in a vacant villa at 3 Lauriston Gardens, off the Brixton rd., London, on March 4, 1881 [?], by a Scotland Yard detective named Lestrade. You may refresh your memory of it by re-reading "A Study in Scarlet," the first Sherlock Holmes story, published at Christmas time, 1887. We refer to it because in this Christmas season Chicago is reading about another example of gruesome and mysterious writing on a wall.

Lestrade discovered the clew, RACHE lettered in blood, while Holmes was measuring footprints on the floor, and gloated a bit because he was jealous of the unofficial detective's skill. He promptly interpreted the inscription as standing for the name Rachel, unfinished because of some interruption, and as testimony that there was a woman in the background of the case. He was right in the latter deduction, but his announcement caused Holmes to laugh in his face—a breach of manners for which an apology was promptly offered.

After Holmes had completed his examination of the premises, he gave Scotland Yard a description of the murderer:

"He was more than six feet high, was in the prime of life, had small feet for his height, wore coarse, square-toed boots, and smoked a Trichinopoly cigar. . . . In all probability the murderer had a florid face, and the fingernails of his right hand were remarkably long." Then he tossed this remark over his shoulder to Lestrade:

"'Rache' is the German for 'revenge,' so don't lose your time looking for Miss Rachel."

STAY-AT-HOME WISH

The silver sands of Waikiki
Were never, never meant for me.
And I suppose I'll never know
A land where yellow orchids grow.
I wonder what it would be like
The English countrysides to hike;
Will post-war Rome have neon signs
That warn us to: "Keep off the vines"?

Chicago's such a dull old place,
She wears a too familiar face.
I yearn for moonlight, cameo-pale,
Along the lovely Navajo trail.
So, Santa, just this gift I choose.
A leisurely 'round-the-wide-world cruise.
A magic carpet's all I lack.
(But make sure it will bring me back!)

SANTA CLAUS—Hmm! Unusual request.

ELEVATOR OPERATOR—And I wad it before Christmas, too.

DECEMBER DUSK

The world a wistful canvas spreads tonight;
A silver sky with pale stars blinking thru,
Like white narcissus in a web of dew—
And yon a veiled moon hangs, whose ghostly light
More pallid makes the silent earth below,
Where frozen fields await December's snow.

From sunset's west where still a warm tinge lies,
Of late-banked fires, chill blows December's wind;
Now fitful, wild; now sudden, finely thinned
To wailings of a bagpipe—then it dies
In harp-sweet, sighing thread of song until
Its echo is a whisper on the hill.

How to "Break" a Code

In World War I. the German army brought out a new code in the fall of 1918. They considered it undecipherable. On the first day they used it, Sept. 12, the American signal corps "tapped in" and heard a message to a German command post.

The receiver told the sender that the message was incomprehensible. When told that it was in the new code, he stated that he did not have the book. Headquarters then said, "We will give you the new code in the old code," and proceeded to do so.

Gen. Pershing supplied Marshals Foch and Haig with the key to the code within 24 hours, but would not tell them how he got it until after Armistice day. E. C. A.

The French expression for a rooster's crow [Dec. 8] is not "coquelicot," which means "poppy." A Gallic rooster says "cocorico." Incidentally, my students think that "cocorico" represents the call of Mr. Hen more closely than the English "cock-a-doodle-do." Margot

Friend of the Yanks

[The Friend of the Yanks will answer questions of service men, veterans, and their dependents by mail if a stamped envelope is sent to 435 N. Michigan av. The Tribune's veterans' bureau, 1 S. Dearborn st., Superior 0200, gives personal interviews.]

K. L. M. asks: "How many points will navy enlisted men have to have to be eligible for discharge in January? Will the ratings that have been frozen up to this time be declared eligible for separation soon? How many points must navy officers have?"

Navy enlisted personnel, except certain specialists such as punch card accounting machine operators, shore patrolmen, key punch operators, transportation men, disbursing storekeepers, and hospital corpsmen [pht and ot] are required to have 38 points as of Dec. 1 for discharge. On Jan. 1 the score will be reduced to 36, but those who have 37 points as of Dec. 15 will be eligible for release. The specialists do not become eligible until Jan. 1, when they will need 44, except shore patrolmen and key punch operators, who can get out with 38 points. Male officers, except doctors and naval aviators in flight status, need 44 points for release in December and 43 in January. Doctors need 53 points in December and 51 in January. Ensigns in flight status are eligible for release if they have 20 points. Officers in flight status above the grade of ensign need 34 points this month and 30 next. Most WAVES need 29 points, and those who have not been eligible will be for the first time in January. Under a recent navy order, personnel eligible for separation no longer may be held beyond the day they become eligible unless they request in writing that they be retained on active duty or apply for enlistment or reënlistment in the regular navy or unless military necessity requires their retention. Military necessity may not be for the convenience of the commanding officer.

MENTAL DISORDERS RESPOND TO SHOCK THERAPY

THE medical profession has been striving for years to remove the stigma associated with mental illness. Many people consider this type of disorder unlike those which involve organs elsewhere in the body. They are not convinced that these sufferers are sick in the strict sense and that their misfortune is comparable to tuberculosis or ulcers of the stomach. We are hoping that in the future a more tolerant attitude will be assumed.

Serious cases need care in institutions equipped to handle the situation efficiently. The majority are victims of a psychosis, signifying that they have a tendency to withdraw from reality and live in a world of their own. Many types are recognized. The manic depressive, as the name implies, is either extremely active and happy at one time or hopelessly sad at another. Now and then one phase predominates.

A typical case is reported by Kraines of a 27 year old woman who lived an uneventful life in a small town. She possessed a quiet and pleasant manner. Soon she became restless and began to be quite conversational. Almost over night she became a different person—from an unknown individual to a popular leader. She slept very little and never complained of fatigue, for her energy was phenomenal. Following an argument, she departed to a larger city and accepted a position in selling. Before long she surpassed all other employes in sales. Moreover, her vivacity, constant laughter, and rapid speech made her the life of every party.

In time the picture began to change. The tempo of talking and laughing was increased and speech was becoming nonsensical—drifting from one topic to another. This overactivity became so extreme that it was obviously abnormal. Institutional care was ordered and following eight months of therapy, she was pronounced well enough to be released. Once again natural conduct was restored.

A more common form of psychosis is schizophrenia [dementia precox]. These individuals escape reality by withdrawing into a fantasy. Those who are mildly afflicted often escape detection. They appear lazy and do not care to concentrate. All they do is day-dream. Others are irritable, moody, and anti-social. A few assume a silly or childish behavior, accompanied by incoherence in thinking and hallucinations.

When they become catatonic, they appear to be in a state of stupor and refuse to eat and talk. The belief of being persecuted is the way of thinking in the paranoid. Consequently, he is suspicious and certain of being pursued by persons who want to harm him.

Why these changes develop is not understood clearly. Now and then they follow childbirth, injury, or infection. In others they may be associated with hardening of the arteries. The majority, however, occur spontaneously, and in these we must look to heredity and the constitutional make-up and early training of the patient.

Thus far our most successful agent to rehabilitate these sufferers is shock treatment with insulin, metrazol, or electricity. Best results are obtained in early cases. It is hard to understand why the technique works, but apparently it shocks the emotions. Inasmuch as the procedure is safe and the outcome excels all other remedies, we can regard it as one of the great discoveries of our time.

GUM SWALLOWING

A. C. L. writes: My little girl chews gum continuously and swallows bits of it from time to time. Is this harmful?

REPLY

In my opinion, it is not, as gum loses its stickiness when it mixes with food and the stomach secretions. The fact that the practice is so common indicates that the possibilities for danger are minimal.

STRAINING THE EYES

E. S. writes: Is reading on a street car or other moving vehicle hard on the eyes?

REPLY

It probably does no permanent damage. But in some individuals the strain results in headache, dizziness, nausea, even vomiting.

MAY OR MAY NOT

C. L. writes: Is sinus trouble catching?

REPLY

When associated with an ordinary cold, it may be. The chronic forms are not contagious.

The Thorny Path

One soldier writing of another in the 83d Thunderbolt, weekly paper of the 83d infantry division: "The closest Alky ever came to milk was at a party where they played spinning-the-bottle."

This, Too

With every passing day our disillusion about China becomes more complete. Now comes word that the jinrikisha, like chop suey, was an American invention. The National Geographic society says it didn't even originate in China, but in Japan, and that the inventor was a Baptist missionary, the Rev. Jonathan Goble, who had been a United States marine under Commodore Perry. There are two versions of how the first riksha came to be built. [1] The missionary had an invalid wife and needed something to get her outdoors. He thought a modified baby carriage would solve his problem and showed a picture of one in Godey's Lady's Book to a Japanese carpenter. [2] The missionary suggested it to a high Japanese official as a solution to Japan's current [1871] unemployment problem. Whichever the case, the first license for a riksha was issued in Tokyo, and Shanghai, which had 70,000 on its streets, has just ruled them all out—man power shortage.

Christmas in Khaki

The first Christmas card to come this way arrived a week ago from Tokyo. The second, just here, is from a member of the Stars and Stripes staff in Korea. It shows a bespectacled corporal, a pencil behind his ear, a lei around his neck, a flag beside his typewriter, a volcano in the background. The corporal's trousers have slipped to his ankles, exposing his polka dotted [not government issue] undershorts. The greeting, in green ink: "We were caught with our points down this year. But, here's hoping you all have a very merry Christmas and a joyous New Year."

America's Christmas Needs?

[A letter which appeared in 1916 in a New York paper.]

There are a good many things that America needs if Santa Claus could only give them!

Here are a few of them.

1. That every molly-coddle, professional pacifist, and man who is "too proud to fight" when the nation's quarrel is just, should be exiled to those out of the way parts . . . where the spirit of manliness has not yet penetrated.
2. That every decent young man should have a family, a job, and the military training which will enable him to help keep this country out of war by making it dangerous for any ruthless military people to attack us.
3. That every youngster may have a good and wise mother; and every good woman a child for her arms.
4. That we may all of us become an efficient, patriotic, and nobly proud people—too proud either to inflict wrong or to endure it.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

Those Pies Again

Anent Christmas mince pies with the crust impressed by a key [from J. F. Christ]:

"Your comment about keying pies made me recall that: [a] My German grandmother used to press down the edges of her pies with a thumbnail, by means of which she made delightful crescents; [b] my English grandmother and my mother sometimes used a fork, sometimes [more often, I think] the hook of a buttonhook, and sometimes the handle end of a door key. I never heard it called keying a pie, but I've seen it done. After all, the top crust must be stuck to the bottom one, around the edges, in some way, mustn't it?"

DO YOU HEAR THEM, CONGRESSMAN?

BATANGAS, P. I., Nov. 27—Here's a report on the most successful direct-mail campaign in advertising history!

You'll recall that a couple of weeks ago I sent a flock of letters to GI outfits thruout the Pacific. At this moment, I have in my possession the actual signatures of 17,797 service men, pledged to vote against all senators and representatives now in office, unless action is taken within 30 days to speed their return to the United States. These signatures represent 158 stranded outfits.

I have been averaging from 2,000 to 3,000 signatures daily, and the mail has been running heavier each day—so by the time you receive this letter I should have in the neighborhood of 30,000 signatures. SGT. M. G. MUNN

SELF-DEFEATING POLICY

Lime Ridge, Wis., Dec. 5—I am glad THE TRIBUNE is acquainting its myriad readers with the facts about conditions in Germany. Your thesis is eminently sound. Aside from the manifest brutality of the Potsdam agreement and the incredible suffering it has imposed upon the German people, this insensate policy is frustrating the rehabilitation of central Europe. A prostrate Germany is an economic menace to the prosperity of bordering states. Even America will be adversely affected. As a subscriber to your excellent newspaper, may I commend you for your forthright editorials on this and other matters of major importance. THE REV. JOSEPH P. HAUGH

LET'S ALL GO ON STRIKE

Chicago, Nov. 27—My son, a returned veteran of five major battles, said to me, "If every one would go on a strike to end strikes, maybe people would come to their senses." Imagine such a condition. We could not go anywhere or buy anything. We would not have lights, water, or gas to cook food, if we had food. All we could do would be sit home in the dark—cold, hungry, and quiet. It might bring some people to their senses. It is surprising how much more sense some people have in their stomachs than in their heads. O. B. STUMPF

DO THE PEOPLE WANT IT?

Chicago, Nov. 21—Our President has determined a federal plan for subsidized medical care that will result in a tax which will work undue hardship upon the small salaried individual as well as cause many other conditions unfavorable to the general welfare. Therefore, we would greatly appreciate having you take a poll of your reading public. It would give an opportunity to many citizens to express their views which otherwise would be impossible because of their inability to put their opinions in letter form. ARTHUR E. KOHL AND 20 OTHERS

OPA SAYS THE OWNER CAN'T LIVE IN HIS OWN BUILDING

Chicago, Nov. 29—Some veterans can't find a place to live. I am a veteran and have a place, but can't live in even one of the six flats I own.

I served 36 months overseas and sent my money home. My wife also worked, and between us we were able to save enough for a down payment on a flat building which would provide us with a home. My wife has filed the forms required by the OPA and we are awaiting their decision. My money is tied up, not the OPA's. I have six flats, but not one can I have.

I thought we were fighting to suppress dictatorship? While we boys were away, how did you real estate dealers and property owners let this dictatorship get such a strong hold?

WAITING SINCE APRIL

Chicago, Dec. 6—You have performed a near miracle by getting a response from E. J. Barrett, secretary of state [in your column Dec. 5]. I don't like to impose, but can you help me get my driver's license?

On April 26, 1945, I mailed a proper application and money order, and for the last seven months I have written at least a half dozen letters, but with no success. At the present time Mr. Barrett has my money, two applications, and even the number of my license [as appears on the back of the canceled money order], but I don't have by license. R. D.

THE MOTHER COUNTRY

Chicago, Dec. 6—Our mother country needs us again—our aged, ailing, self-named mother. So we are going to "ease the winter!" A 4.4 billion ease. No doubt by Easter she'll need a new hat for the parade. But we can easily starve our children by telling them it is all for grandma's sake, and our duty to have the money ready. Any day now we can expect the old I gave-you-the-best-years-of-my life routine. H. M. F.

DEPOSIT, THE SELLER'S PROTECTION

Chicago, Dec. 6—[1] I advertised a car for sale and had good results. A man gave me a $200 deposit and said he would go to the bank and bring the balance within two days. After he went away I had several other good buyers for the car. A week later the man who made the deposit came back and told me his father bought him a car in Michigan; therefore, he didn't want mine. So I am left holding the automobile which I could have sold after I took his deposit. [2] Does he forfeit his deposit after 30 days? [3] Do I have to refund the money? [4] How long do I have to hold the car before I can sell it again? D. G.

1. In general, the purpose of an earnest money deposit is to protect the seller against the buyer's changing his mind. This would mean that you would be entitled to retain enough money to cover your loss, including the difference if you sell at a lower figure and including the cost of reselling, but he would be entitled to the balance.
2. Only in part. See 1.
3. See 1.
4. There is no definite statutory period. We suggest that you notify him in writing that unless he carries out his agreement within a reasonable, named time, you will resell

38 NEWS OFFICES ACCEPT FRENCH HOTEL SUBSIDY

Tribune Rejects Grant Called 'Indemnity'

BY JOHN THOMPSON
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, Dec. 12 — THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, it became known today, is the only newspaper or news agency which has refused to accept the French government's "indemnity" of 400 francs [$8] daily offered to defray the increased cost of rooms in the Hotel Scribe, which was vacated by the United States army as a requisitioned building Dec. 1.

Representatives of two magazines, the Saturday Evening Post and Colliers also have declined the subsidy. The government, however, has been paying 400 francs per day on the room rent of 38 other foreign correspondents representing American, British, Chinese newspapers, news agencies, broadcasting systems, magazines and other news disseminating organizations.

Post-war Rates Sour

The French ministry of information arranged the subsidy after several correspondents complained that the cost of civilian rooms in the Scribe would be prohibitive. The cost is the same as that of any similar Parisian hotel, three to five times more than the nominal fee charged when the hotel was operated by the army as billets and newsroom for newsmen, beginning immediately following the city's liberation a year ago last August.

Following are organizations whose employes are listed on the hotel records as having accepted the ministry of information subsidy:

Associated Press, United Press, International News Service, London Daily Mail, London Evening News, New Yorker magazine, Newsweek, Associated Negro Press, Reuters, Daily Worker, Newspapers Enterprise association.

Old Office in Spring

London Sunday Times, Columbia Broadcasting system, Christian Science Monitor, London Daily Telegraph, Times [London], Vogue magazine, Overseas News agency, Observer [London], New York Times, Chicago Daily News, National Broadcasting company, Time and Life magazines, Central News agency of China, Daily Express [London], Mackay Radio, Atlantic Monthly, and the British Broadcasting system.

The 400 franc indemnity makes most of the hotel bills for single correspondents nearly what they were during the army tenure. THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE is leasing a hotel suite in the Scribe as an office until spring, when the former ground floor office becomes available.

Kraut Canner

Mrs. Margaret Odewald, whose 1,000 quarts of sauer kraut was the subject of a judicial decision in a divorce case yesterday.

JUDGE IS FED UP BY FAMILY FIGHT FOR SAUERKRAUT

So He Takes Action So Nobody Gets It

Circuit Judge Elmer J. Schnackenberg, who doesn't like sauerkraut, listened patiently yesterday while Herman J. Odewald, 49, a Channel Lake farmer, and Odewald's wife, Margaret, 39, of 1749 N. Mason av., wrangled in a rear room about what to do with 1,000 quarts of it.

The wrangling grew so loud that it drowned out another case the judge was hearing in the interim. From behind the closed door issued shouts and imprecations. The clamor made Judge Schnackenberg wince.

"Call those people out here," he ordered. "This racket has gone on long enough." The couple was ushered out before him.

He Doesn't Like Sauerkraut

"Since this case came up in court," Odewald told the judge, "all my neighbors have started calling me the Sauerkraut Kid. I don't like that, and I don't like sauerkraut."

Judge Schnackenberg observed that for a man who doesn5t like sauerkraut, Odewald was putting up a spirited fight to get 1,000 quarts of it. Odewald replied that he didn't like the idea of his wife's "star boarder," named as co-respondent in his counter-suit for divorce, gorging himself on it.

"He's crazy about sauerkraut," Odewald said. "That's the real reason my wife canned so much of it."

"That's not true," Mrs. Odewald broke in. "I'm very fond of kraut. In fact, it's my favorite winter food. And it's simply unobtainable in the stores."

Nobody Gets the Kraut

Judge Schnackenberg grimaced. "I've heard all that I want to hear about sauerkraut," he said. "Since you two can't agree on an equitable division of the cans, I'm going to enjoin both of you from touching them."

"What about the star boarder?" Odewald wanted to know.

"I'll enjoin him, too," the court added. "If anybody touches that sauerkraut without the court's permission, he or she will be held in contempt."

Judge Schnackenberg also directed Odewald to return his wife's winter wardrobe by noon Saturday, after her attorneys, Joseph H. and Norman Becker, reported he had failed to obey a prior court order to do so. Mrs. Odewald in her pending suit charges her husband with cruelty.

'ALSO RANS' IRK GUS, SO HE PUTS BITE ON BOOKIES

Uncle Sam Grabs Him at Post(office)

BY THOMAS MORROW

Gus F. Johnson, 52, of 3025 George st., a furniture packer, has not found a way to beat the horses. He has, however, worked out a system to defeat the handbooks.

This came to light yesterday when four bookmakers, wounded in their pocketbooks, put to one side the legend that their activities are illegal, and wailed loudly to federal authorities. As a result, Gus was called in for a good talk with federal folks when he applied at the general delivery window for a letter. William Plath, chief postal inspector, said this letter contained a particularly succulent bite of $140 that Gus had put on a handbook operator.

Just a Sucker, He Finds

Gus' story, Plath said, went something like this: For five and one-half years Johnson applied himself diligently to the task of selecting horses that he believed would run ahead of other horses. He backed these selections with investments of Johnson capital and was in regular attendance at various handbooks.

This went on until one day, taking an accounting, Gus discovered that the horses he selected to run ahead of other horses were more often running behind other horses. His losses mounted to $3,000.

At this point, Johnson said to himself something as follows: "This is not intelligent. I should not be giving my money to the bookies. They should be giving me their money."

With Gus, to think is to act. So he sought out several handbook operators and said to each:

"I should like for you to send me $140. If this is not done, I will place a sign on your window advertising this place as a handbook. I may also tell the police."

Puts Finger on Bookies

Federal authorities said some of these bookies did not believe Gus was in earnest. Sure enough, they said, Gus did tell police and, after being raided, the bookies believed. As nearly as Gus could total it, the badgered bookies have sent him something like $500.

The federal fellows were puzzled by the whole thing. They recalled that somewhere there is a Chicago law saying that handbooks are not legal. On the other hand, there was an impression that Gus could not legally send out his letters circularizing the trade.

"The matter is somewhat obscure," said Maurice J. Walsh, head of the criminal division of the United States attorney's office. "I think I shall question a few horses to get their reaction."

ARTIFICIAL LIMB MAKERS MEET TO COMPILE CODE

Forty artificial limb manufacturers met yesterday in the Stevens hotel to draft a code of fair trade practices intended to govern competition within their industry. Many of those present at the meeting, held under auspices of the federal trade commission, are among the 34 individuals and 45 corporations indicted last month by a District of Columbia federal grand jury on charges of violating the anti-trust laws.

Chester C. Haddan of Denver, Col., president of the Association of Limb Manufacturers of America, Inc., spokesman for the group, said the conference had been arranged more than a year ago at the request of members of the industry and had no conection with the pending criminal prosecution.

Lowell B. Mason of the federal trade commission, who presided at the meeting, commended the manufacturers for their voluntary effort to raise the plane of competition within their industry and added that 16,000 army and navy amputees of World War II. "have a stake in these proceedings."

CAN'T KEEP GRANDMA IN HER CHAIR

She's as Lively as a Youngster—Now her Backache is better

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

REDS HAND PICK U. S. WRITERS TO TOUR THEIR ZONE

BY HENRY WALES
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

BERLIN, Dec. 12—The opening of the Russian zone of occupation freely to representatives of the American press, which Gen. Eisenhower announced he had obtained from Marshal Zhukov several weeks ago, turned out today to be a series of trips into the Red army area accompanied by a Russian officer for groups of reporters carefully selected by Red political officials in Moscow.

Eisenhower submitted a list of 30 newspaper correspondents stationed in Berlin on Nov. 15 to Zhukov, who referred the request to the Kremlin. A couple of days ago the Russian presented invitations to 20 of these newspaper men to make personally conducted tours.

The first group includes representatives of the Associated Press, the United Press, the New York Times, and the New York Herald Tribune, but among the 20 correspondents invited the Chicago Tribune's correspondent was studiously omitted. Free access to the Russian zone still is denied to newspapers with which the kremlin is angry.

POLES DEMAND BYRNES STOP RED BLACKMAIL

Warnings Show Break on Roosevelt Policies

BY CARL WIEGMAN

Disillusionment has come to the 6 million Polish-Americans who were ardent followers of the late President Roosevelt and a major source of his political strength in several large cities, especially Chicago.

A measure of their disaffection was disclosed yesterday when Charles Rozmarek, president of the Polish American congress, made public two statements delivered to Secretary of State Byrnes on the eve of his departure for Moscow to confer with Soviet Foreign Commissar Molotov and British Foreign Secretary Bevin.

Sanctions Against Reds Urged

One of the statements reached Byrnes by telegraph shortly before his plane departed. It charged that Russian interference lies at the root of all the troubles in Poland and the Baltic and Balkan countries, and suggested that the United States invoke economic sanctions against the soviet union until it fulfills its promises of "no territorial aggrandizement" and "no interference in the internal affairs of other states."

"And as for the atomic bomb, our future would indeed be hopeless if we entrusted its secret to soviet Communist dictatorship," the telegram added.

Truman Regime Accused

The second statement delivered to Byrnes was a printed memorandum, handsomely bound in leather, which summarized the views of the Polish American congress on conditions in Europe and charged that the Truman administration is continuing a policy of sacrificing American ideals "to the insatiable annexationist demands of the soviet union."

"Part of the responsibility must be laid at the door of Mr. Roosevelt's administration," the statement continued. "Appeasement of Stalin was carried far beyond the real needs of military coöperation. There was too much secret diplomacy. Irresponsible personal agents were allowed to make important decisions, often with little regard for American moral and legal obligations."

The statement charged that American policy during 1943-'45 has tended to alienate many peoples who would have been natural allies in a world association of free peoples.

Unnecessary Blackmail Paid

It pointed out that Russia's absorption of the huge area gives Stalin a much larger number of unwilling subjects and greater stores of natural resources than Hitler had acquired when France and England decided that further nazi aggression must be stopped by force.

"Belief that we must always give in to Russia for fear of war is an unjustified as it is craven," the statement told Secretary Byrnes. "If it is desirable for us to 'get along' with Stalin, Stalin has a far stronger necessity to 'get along' with us. Much of the blackmail we have paid to the sovaiet union in recent years was unnecessary."

Byrnes Given Warning

Byrnes was told that the United states should use its economic power to promote our ideals of freedom, justice, and self-determination, but that "it would be criminal madness to employ our wealth to strengthen dictator nations which may become our enemies."

The Polish American congress is composed of nearly all the Polish fraternal organizations, social, civic, and labor groups, and churches in the United States. President Rozmarek is also head of the Polish National alliance, a fraternal insurance society with 300,000 members. Chicago, which has 600,000 citizens of Polish birth and descent, is the center of activities by Polish groups.

NAVY DISCLOSES 'THE BAT,' SHELL GUIDED BY RADAR

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12 (AP)—The navy disclosed today it used a deadly self-guided missile called "The Bat" against Japanese ships and land targets during the late stages of the Pacific war.

"The Bat," launched from a mother aircraft, steered itself to the target by means of radar. If the target dodged, "The Bat" changed course right along with it.

Rear Adm. George F. Hussey, chief of the navy bureau of ordnance, said it was the first fully automatic guided missile ever used successfully in combat.

It is 12 feet long, has a 10 foot wing span, and carries a heavy explosive charge. The missile destroyed many tons of Japanese shipping, Hussey said.

REDS KEEP GRIP ON STETTIN; BIG FLEET IN HARBOR

Awarded Poland by Potsdam Ukase

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Dec. 12—Stettin, Germany's third largest port until handed over to Poland by the Potsdam decision, is not yet a Polish possession, but is a Russian naval base, a Swedish correspondent was able to report after being the first foreigner to visit the area.

Altho rechristened Szczecina, the overwhelming preponderance of the Russian marines on the streets, heavily guarded port area, the concentrated units of the Russian fleet in the harbor, and German labor battalions guarded by Russians are evidence showing the real power in Stettin.

Reds Hold Big Refinery

If this is not enough, here is a statement of the Polish vice governor, Jan Kaniewsky given in an interview:

"The administration of Stettin has not yet been given to Poland," Kaniewsky said, adding, "this means among other things that the big synthetic oil and gasoline refinery in Stettin is still held by the Russians. That plant would be useful to Pland, as she has given up oil resources in the eastern provinces ceded to Russia."

However, even if the Poles got the former German plant from the Russians now, production could not start for some time. The Russians have taken away all the machinery. The same thing applies to other factories in Stettin. Thirty-five per cent of the city was destroyed, according to official figures.

Population Cut to 90,000

Stettin's pre-war population of 300,000 has shrunk to about 70,000 still remaining Germans and 20,000 Poles, Kaniewsky estimated. Only a small trickle of Poles is moving in. The Germans move westward whenever transportation is available.

This winter in Stettin will be pretty grim for whoever lives there, altho the Poles under Russian administration have finally started the power plant again, and the water works are running.

"No gas is available," Kaniewsky said. "We have ordered coal from Katowice—even paid for it—but it has not come. Transportation problems are most difficult."

While the Russian navy has the chore of cleaning the harbor of mines and German wreckage, it is apparent there are far too many units of the Red fleet on hand for just that. Stettin is too important strategically not to be safely controlled by the Russians. It is a vital part of the triangle including Bornholm [Island], sixty miles due north, and the Hela peninsula, which closes the inlet before Gdynia and Danzig.

All Barred from Hela

No one except the Russians can visit Hela peninsula harbor area. The opinion is widely held in shipping circles that the Russians are building strong fortifications there. It is also felt they will demand that the new Poland "lend" that area to the Red fleet.

While it seems certain that the soviet will supply areas under their command, surrounding areas—particularly the Pomeranian agricultural district—have no such hopes. One hundred thousand people moved from eastern Poland into Pomerania, and it is a scene of desolation.

The Red and Polish armies took all the cattle as war booty.

Nightly there is pillaging in Stettin. Shooting can be heard every night, all night—not isolated shots but violent fusilades, as if there were clashes between armed bands.

Pianist's Debut Recital Short of Year's Best

BY ALBERT GOLDBERG

Louise Doschek, a pianist from the Atlantic seaboard, was last night's Kimball hall debutante. In a season of extraordinary good piano playing, her recital was remarkable in that it fell rather widely short of prevalent standards.

Miss Doschek's skills are for the most part still in the formative stage. Practically the entire first half of her program was playing of the type one expects from a talented but unseasoned student. There were flashes of ability but they were intermittently punctuated by passage work that lost all semblance of clarity, by erratic, uncontroled rhythms, by heavy handed playing that obliterated the musical outlines. Four Sonatas by Scarlatti lacked the crisp clarity and rhythmic stability of effective performance; Beethoven's Sonata Pathétique emerged formless and shorn of whatever message it still carries; Chopin's Barcarolle and Polonaise in A flat were tactical errors.

Either the modern French style is more sympathetic to Miss Doschek's abilities, or during the intermission she received her poise, for the three pieces of Ravel's "Gaspard de la Nuit" were a notable improvement over what had gone before. They are of course, in the strictest academic sense, less exacting, but they carry their own considerable hazards. Miss Doschek negotiated their technical difficulties with apparent ease, and tho the elusive "Le Gibet" fell short of the shuddering suggestion it can at best convey, both "Ondine" and "Scarbo" caught a fair amount of the true impressionistic style.

Vanderbilt Heir Weds Cousin of Mrs. Ford in Elopement by Plane

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 12 (AP)—Judge Charles Klein disclosed tonight that Magistrate Nathan A. Beifel had married Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, 33 year old New York heir, and Jeanne Lourdes Murray, 22, a cousin of Mrs. Henry Ford II., today after the two had eloped from New York by private plane. Judge Klein was best man.

Pennsylvania's required three day waiting period between application and issuance of the marriage license was waived, but it was not disclosed who arranged for the waiver. The Vanderbilts returned immediately by plane to New York.

The marriage was Vanderbilt's second and Mrs. Vanderbilt's first. Vanderbilt, recently discharged from the navy as a lieutenant, and the former Manuela Hudson were divorced in 1941. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. John F. Murray of New York City.

WILSON'S WEEKLY Bulletin

By George Rector
Food and Nutrition Consultant to Wilson & Co.

"Peace on Earth"

Since childhood we've all looked forward to the Christmas holidays. Mistletoe, holly wreaths, a festive table laden with plump roast turkey, Yuletide delicacies and soft burning candles are all magnets of good cheer. With loved ones home to share the festivities, we feel the spirit of "peace on earth, good will toward men."

Roast Turkey . . . symbol of festivities

Half Turkeys Available

On the whole, turkeys are very large this year. This means a larger percentage of meat since bones do not increase in proportion with the meat. For small families, retailers are selling half turkeys . . . split down the center back.

To Roast Half Turkeys

Sprinkle cavity of half of a Wilson's Certified Turkey with salt (1 tsp. for each 8 pounds). Skewer skin to breast meat on keel bone edge, to protect breast meat. Tie leg above knuckle joint securely to tail. Leave wing flat against breast. Place half turkey, cut side down, on flat rack in shallow pan. Brush with melted fat (Wilson's Bake-Rite) and cover with clean cheesecloth. Roast at 325° F., allowing 25 to 30 minutes per pound.

Have Stuffing Too

About 1½ hours before turkey is done, remove from oven, place a double thickness of waxed paper on roasting rack, place stuffing on it and shape to fit cavity of the half turkey. Place turkey over stuffing and finish roasting. Add Wilson's B-V to the stuffing to make it extra tasty—about 2 tsp. per lb. of bread.

For that good butter-flavored skin, remove cloth about half an hour before turkey is done and brush skin with softened Clear Brook Butter.

If roasting a whole turkey that is broad breasted or that weighs over 18 lbs., do not stuff the neck cavity and be sure to roast it breast-side-up the last half of the time to insure thorough cooking of the large breast. Allow 13 to 15 minutes per lb. for roasting turkeys 18 lbs. or over.

Holiday Sparkles

A green candle in a cranberry star salad adds sparkle to the Christmas table. Likewise, reindeer on ice (mirror) for the centerpiece.

Plan the Christmas dinner early if you want the most enjoyment and the least amount of work. See that linens, dishes and silver are ready a week in advance; the salad, pies and relishes prepared the day before. There'll be so little left to do on Christmas day, you'll feel like eating as much as the next one.

A Merry Christmas to you,
George Rector

The New Servel
GAS Refrigerators are here!

Quantities are limited! See them at your dealer's or in our display rooms

At last—the postwar refrigerator you've been waiting for has rolled off the assembly line! It's the new Servel—the longer-lasting, ever silent, GAS refrigerator! Two models are here for you—still in a limited quantity, of course—but on display at numerous dealers throughout Chicago and in all Peoples Gas showrooms.

When war stopped refrigerator sales, Servel was the fastest gaining brand in Chicago, outselling other nationally advertised makes in 1941. And during the war women lucky enough to own a Servel really appreciated its dependable operation . . . its freedom from mechanical failures when repair parts were scarce. You see, a Servel freezes without moving parts or complicated machinery. A tiny gas flame does all the freezing. That's the reason, too, why the Servel is completely silent.

So don't wait! Be among the first to see, and the first to own, one of the beautiful new 1946 models. If you can't get one from this first shipment, remember—faster and faster the new Servels will be moving into your dealer's store and our showrooms. So keep watching for them!

They're worth waiting for—and owning!

Christmas Trees Made Ready for Welcome to Santa Claus

BY JUDITH CASS

SANTA Claus' first post-war visit to Chicago will be welcomed by twinkling lights on Christmas trees to be erected in thousands of Chicago homes and on giant-sized versions which will be seen in the city's private clubs. The Casino is busy collecting quaint old ornaments to be strung on the big old-fashioned tree to be decorated by Mrs. Edward A. Cudahy, the club's president; Mrs. John R. Winterbotham, and Walter S. Frazier.

Under the direction of the house committee, headed by Mrs. Alden B. Swift, the tree will be completed in the foyer in time for the club's traditional Yuletide eggnog party Dec. 23. Guests will bring gifts to be sent to the youngsters of the Illinois Children's Home and Aid society.

The staff of the Woman's Athletic club already has completed its huge red, white, and blue tree which greets guests as they step from the second floor elevator. The club had no problem with the present shortage of Christmas ornaments, for a variety of old ones is stored in its attic from year to year. However the charming white trees hung with blue balls and little hand-painted mirror prisms in the dining room are new this year.

The trees, along with the green and silver one outside the dining room door, will cast their glow over t..e annual Christmas party Jan. 2 for children from 3 to 8 years old and their mothers.

Col. M. Thomas Tchou, Chinese philosopher, statesman, and soldier, will speak on "America and the Struggle in the Orient" at 11:30 a. m. today in the club.

Other Christmas Trees

The Saddle and Cycle, which was lucky enough to locate a supply of new blue glass balls, hung them yesterday on a small tree in an alcove by the ballroom's fireplace. The first large group to admire it will be the Forty club, which is having its annual dinner-dance tonight at the club, arranged by the Louis C. Sudlers. Next week a larger tree will go up in the middle bay window of the ballroom.

The Tavern club promises entirely new decorations for its tree in the lounge, which will dominate the club's annual Christmas eve party for members and their guests. Eggnog, Tom and Jerries, and snacks will be served from 5 to 7 p. m. The club also will have a children's party from noon to 5 p. m. the day before.

The Racquet club's twin trees will be erected at each end of the lounge, and the giant tree at the South Shore Country club will occupy its usual spot at the end of the solarium. The Cordon club will have no Christmas decorations but is planning two pre-holiday events—the opening tomorrow of an exhibition of water colors by club members, at which Miss Clara MacGowan, head of the art department of Northwestern university, will speak, and a Christmas tea with special music Dec. 21.

On the Calendar

There will be many dinner parties next Tuesday night preceding a talk Gen. Claire Chennault will give in Orchestra hall under the auspices of the National Society of the Colonial Dames of America in the State of Illinois. Mrs. Paul B. Magnuson, president of the local chapter of the society, will entertain at dinner in the Racquet club for Gen. Chennault, who is famed as the organizer of the Flying Tigers. Others entertaining in the Racquet club that night will be the Henry Babsons and the George Silverthornes.

Some of those giving pre-lecture dinner parties in the Casino club will be the Frederick A. Prestons, Mrs. Hambleton Kirk, Mrs. William K. Kenly, the Herbert Bradleys, the Edward D. Shumways, the John Stuarts, the Alfred Cartons, and the Frederick H. Scotts. The Chauncey McCormicks and the John Broeksmits also have invited friends to dine before the talk.

Following Gen. Chennault's speech, the society will entertain at a reception for him in the foyer of Orchestra hall. Seats are selling rapidly to the event, and the society hopes that students and returned veterans will turn out in force and has reserved the balcony seats at special prices.

On the speaker's platform with Gen. Chennault will be Adm. Arthur S. Carpender, Maj. Gen. David McCoach, Dr. Chang-lok Chen, Chinese consul, and several Flying Tigers, among others. Five of Gen. Chennault's six sons, including Col. John S. Chennault, who served with his father in the 14th air force, were in service during the war.

Members of the Alliance Francaise will witness a Christmas play by Mme. Elina Muller and her company in the clubrooms this afternoon. Tea will follow.

Here and There

The "open house" which Mr. and Mrs. DeWitt Davis III. will give in their Evanston home Saturday from 4 to 7 p. m. will be one of Mr. Davis' first appearances in civilian clothes since his recent release from the navy, in which he served as a lieutenant commander. He was on duty in the Pacific for two years.

The annual Christmas cocktail party which the James Alsdorfs gave yesterday was the last party they will have in their Glencoe home. The Alsdorfs recently purchased the Henry North home on the Indian Hill golf course in Winnetka and will move there in February following a vacation in Florida. They will leave for the south shortly after the holidays.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

Not Easy Money

Perhaps you have heard about the white collar girl who applied for a job and whose prospective employer thought she wanted too much salary. "It seems to me," he said, "that you are asking for a lot of money for a beginner." "But it's so much harder," the girl protested, "when you don't know anything about it!"

Keyboard Capers

I have no chignon to take down, but I do have a confession to make regarding one time my fingers got tangled on the keyboard. It was a Monday morning; the big boss' secretary had begun her vacation, leaving his dictation to me. The first letter I typed, signed, and sent out over his signature was a thank you note for a handsome leather belt. Fortunately we reached the donor's secretary before the letter came into his hands, for instead of "I shall prize it all my life," I had transcribed, "I shall price it all my life." EUGENIA.

No, No Nosey

If I remember rightly, Vice Presidential Candidate Bill Gloer has promised three men to each WCG, "one to support her, one to understand her, and one to make love to her." Will one of these three be Nosey Parker? DOROTHY MARIE

Decoration

White collar girls are not usually entertained during office hours, but the other day our pet pigeon appeared on the window ledge for his morning feeding with a stale slice of bread looped over his head and around his neck. He wore his decoration draped like a necklace and diamond shaped—that is, with a point front and back. It was a mystery to all of us how he came by this burden. We could not get near enough to remove it, since he was timid and flighty. Watching him stagger from ledge to ledge, we practically prayed for rain, thinking a good soaking of the bread was the only thing to help him. However, after two days he appeared one morning full of pep again—and free of his yoke. MELVA A. MUELLER

You're On the Air

"Dealing with the public is a lot like being 'on the air.' During the course of a day you see a lot of folks and you can broadcast a lot of gloom or happiness. . . . Of course, you don't have a 'mike,' and no radio set picks up your broadcast—yet every customer or fellow employe you talk to carries away with him something of your attitude, something he felt in the tone of your voice—and he reflects this to the next six or 10 people he meets. These people just as surely continue broadcasting this attitude—the one you started when you said, 'Good morning.'"—From the Field Glass.

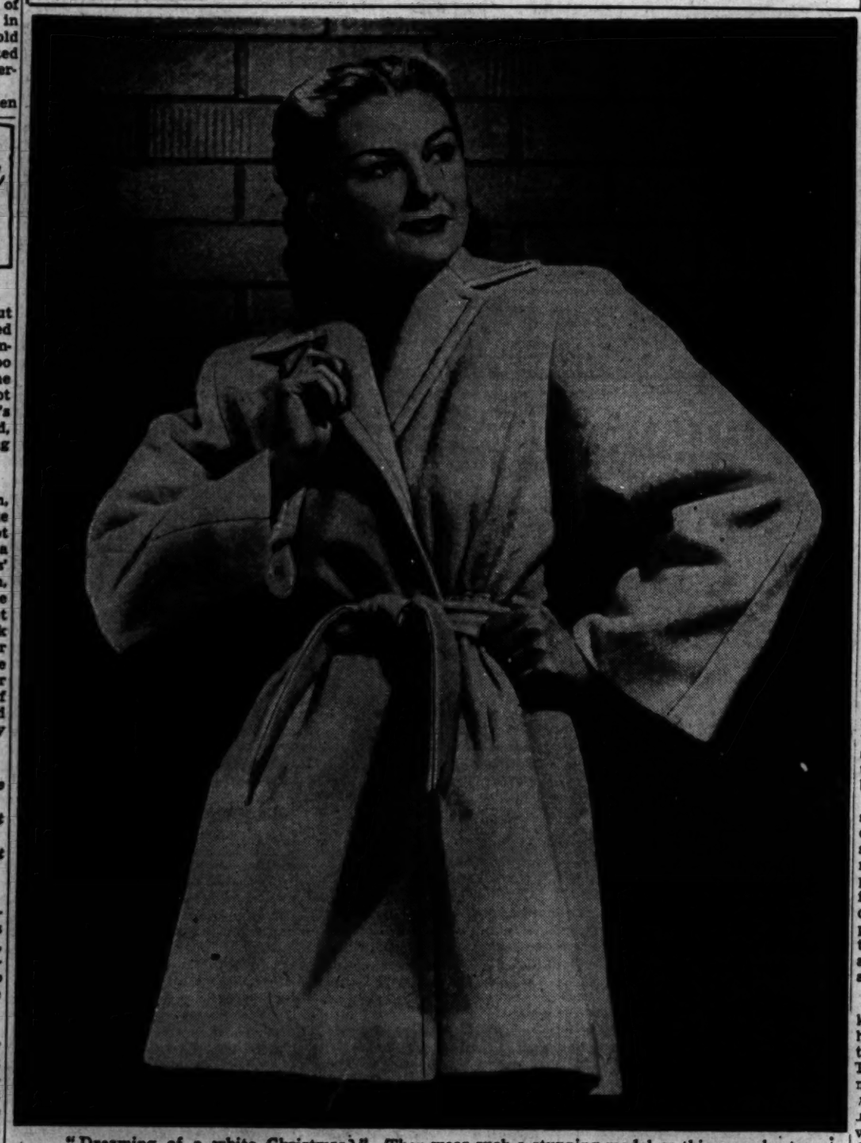
An Answer to Those Dreams of a White Christmas



"Dreaming of a white Christmas?" Then wear such a stunning model as this new short coat of luxurious, thick white wool fleece. It is cinched in at the waistline with a tie belt of the same wool as the coat. Available in a Chicago shop. [TRIBUNE Studio Photo]

Hats, Blouses, Coats Add to Wintry Effect

BY REA SEEGER

Dreamers of a white Christmas are having it exceptionally easy, even without drifted snow here in Chicago, to complete the winter scene. There are white hats, blazing with colorful embroidery or sequins or starkly unadorned, to make the most of the dramatic shape and the fine fabrics such as satin and felt. Also in white are some of the season's most festive wool party dresses, for junior miss and larger sizes. Many of these all-whites gleam with the reflected glory of gold thread embroidery, bugle beads, or the more shiny sequins and paillettes.

White blouses are out by the dozens—from the simple, untrimmed, very brief sleeved models that button down the back to the suave, long sleeved, high neck line suit blouses of jersey, artfully shirred and draped for chest fullness. These are blouses with very high neck lines, perfect background for glittering costume jewelry in big pieces and of either gold or silver metal—especially the barbaric sized chokers and the chokers with large, chunky clips to fasten at the sides, detachable clips that double for choker necklace fasteners and as decorative clips for blouses or jackets.

Most exciting of all the white Christmas gift ideas are the swank all white fleece coats. These are made of thick, luxuriously looking pile fleece lined with white satin and feature the wide shouldered slim waist silhouette. The waistlines are defined at normal line with cinched in belts that tie or clasp, or else with secure double or triple shirrings right into the material. Some have concealed pockets or the visible pockets with effective wide big flaps. All have the casual smartness of notched lapels and wide, snugly fitted collar. Short models that end at the knee line are the most popular.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
Pass	Pass	1 club	Double
Pass	2 spades	Pass	6 spades
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Eight of hearts.

Because a certain line of play will very likely succeed, it does not necessarily follow that it is the proper method to pursue. There may be a method that is even more likely to succeed. That is the basis of the safety play. Where there is no extra cost it is folly to accept anything less than the best, and I say this at risk of sounding like a radio announcer.

The bidding perhaps calls for some comment. West's feeble attempt at psyching is a relic of the gay '90s. Experience has shown that against any one capable of counting as high as 13 this type of bid will not in the long run pay dividends. In the actual hand it should have provided declarer with the clew to the proper handling of the dummy. But unfortunately this contestant was not equal to the occasion. North doubled and had the conditions of vulnerability been reversed, South would have passed for penalties. South preferred to go for game and his jump bid is proper with a holding of two honor tricks, particularly in view of his previous pass. North assured that his partner had at least two high card tricks saw no point to prolonging the agony and barged right into the slam.

The eight of hearts was opened, and declarer went right up with the ace. It was quite evident that West had made a bluff bid and he felt there was no good reason for risking the finesse. He then played the king and queen of trumps and when they refused to clear, he played the ace and king of clubs. East ruffed and cashed the king of hearts.

While it was very probable that declarer's line of play would succeed, and to be sure he was the victim of a very unfortunate break of the cards, nevertheless he had himself to blame for the failure. There was a surer way to make the hand. While it was obvious that West had nothing, nevertheless there was a strong likelihood that he had length in clubs for his psychic bid and that the suit would therefore not break 4-2 which the declarer hoped for.

The safe method to play the hand is to take the first heart and lead immediately to the ace of diamonds. Dummy should be entered with a trump and the king of diamonds is cashed, declarer shedding a heart. A diamond is ruffed in the closed hand and then a heart is given up. After that trick nothing can prevent the declarer from ruffing the losing heart, as well as the little diamond in his own hand, and then the entire dummy is good.

In other words, the proper play was to establish the dummy rather than the closed hand. There appears to be a strange psychological objection to such procedure in many quarters. I am quite persuaded that had the declarer played the hand from the North seat he would have selected the recommended line of play, and there is a strong tendency to keep the eye on the closed hand to the neglect of the dummy which, after all, is many times the dominant hand.

Yule Shopping in Full Swing; Loop Jammed

BY JUNE GESERICK

Christmas preparations were in full swing thruout the Chicago area yesterday as shoppers thronged the loop to select gifts and housewives planned menus that promise to make this first peace time Christmas in five years one to remember.

Chicago's post office Santa Claus, otherwise known as Fred A. Haase, already has received approximately 1,200 letters addressed in childish faith to "Santa Claus, North Pole." Haase, who has pinch-hit for Santa during the holidays since 1935, said some of the writers are conservative and ask for only one or two gifts, while others request 10 or 15 toys.

There will be enough Christmas trees for all this year, said Gust Relias, known as Chicago's Christmas tree king. Relias has sold 25 carloads of Montana trees at his South Water market commission house. He predicted that top quality six foot trees will sell for about $2.50, while eight foot trees will be priced at $3 or $3.25. James F. Riley, director of the Chicago area office of price administration, said only artificial Christmas trees are under price control.

Dr. Cliff D. Carpenter, president of the Institute of American Poultry Industries, said there is a minimum of turkeys up to 20 pounds in this area, but reported a fairly good supply of turkeys weighing from 20 to 22 pounds and a large supply of birds over 22 pounds.

"There won't be enough hens or small toms to come near filling the demand, so bigger birds are being sold for higher prices than ordinarily would be expected," Dr. Carpenter reported. "The situation is fortunate in that there is an abundant supply of other poultry for persons who desire chicken for their holiday meal. These are available in top quality, quantity, and at a fair price."

The large percentage of big turkeys in the last two or three years has popularized the selling of half turkeys, Dr. Carpenter disclosed. The job of splitting the turkeys by machinery at a processing plant, where the birds were cut in half and the skin was pinioned down, was so successful last year that the demand for split turkeys has increased this year, he reported.

Chicagoans who are worried about their Christmas gift selections might well feel fortunate when they consider the job that confronts staff members of the Illinois Children's Home and Aid society, who, with the help of foster parents, are trying to select Christmas presents for 1,400 dependent children in Illinois.

Annual 'Doll' Party for Hospital Benefit to Be Given Tomorrow

The annual "doll" party which Mrs. Patrick J. Newton gives for the benefit of patients in County hospital will be held at 8 p. m. tomorrow in the Columbus Park Community center, Central av. and Congress st. It will be far different from her first benefit party, more than 30 years ago in her Oak Park home, when she invited a group of friends to come and help dress Christmas dolls for youngsters of the hospital.

To accommodate the growing number of persons interested in the project, it became necessary long ago to move headquarters for the annual gathering to the Columbus park center. Around 400 attended last year's fete.

Mrs. Newton has arranged for professional and amateur entertainers to present a festive program at tomorrow night's party, and has extended an invitation to the public. No admission is charged, but each guest is requested to bring a gift, which on Christmas morning will be given to a patient in the hospital. Not only is Mrs. Newton interested in collecting dolls and toys for youngsters in the hospital, but she has asked guests to bring gifts for adult patients as well.

ON THE RECORD

By Claudia Cassidy

Traubel-Rodzinski 'Walkure,' Toscanini-Rubinstein Beethoven, and Monteux-Menuhin Bruch

The telephone rang the other day and a man who collects records but apparently never goes to performances wanted to know how many acts there are in "Die Walküre." He said he has albums of acts 1 and 2, but somehow the whole thing seemed to be left hanging in the air, and wasn't there something more with a fire in it? Columbia has come gallantly to his rescue with the whole third act, sung by Helen Traubel as Brünnhilde, Herbert Janssen as Wotan, Irene Jessner as Seiglinde, and a bevy of valkyries from the Metropolitan Opera, along with the Philharmonic Symphony orchestra under the direction of Artur Rodzinski [M-518; eight 12 inch records].

The result probably will make our friend the complete Wagnerite, lost for the rest of his days in the mazes of the Ring. For it is a solid, authoritative recording, expertly engineered, and Miss Traubel's record entrance after a bout with the yelping valkyries is just as effective as on the stage. It's like having a goddess step in where humans should fear to tread. There is no use pretending Mr. Janssen has comparable stature, but his baritone takes on compassionate beauty deeply effective in Wotan's farewell to his favorite daughter.

Except for the curtain on the Magic Fire scene, where my ear fails to hear licking flames, Mr. Rodzinski has done a spectacular job with the score. Few men know more about music drama, and the best of his "Walküre" has truly molten brilliance. All records are a substitute for the real thing, but this is an admirable substitute.

Every new shipment of records bristles with big names. You can now get Beethoven's Third Piano Concerto, in C minor, recorded from the October, 1944, broadcast by Artur Rubinstein with Arturo Toscanini and the NBC Symphony orchestra [Victor M-1016; four 12 inch records] and Bruch's Violin Concerto No. 1, in G minor, played by Yehudi Menuhin with Pierre Monteux and the San Francisco Symphony [Victor M-1023; three 12 inch records]. Both are extraordinary performances of restless vitality and some imperfections.

The Beethoven is a big, glittering, incisive performance with little repose in its soul, a cadenza that may lift the hair at the nape of your neck, a flawed second movement, and the general effect of music in the grand style, tho much of the Toscanini magic is lost in the broadcast recording. The Bruch is a passionate, headlong performance, intensely alive, poignantly Hebraic, with moments of piercing beauty and moments when Menuhin's tone either turns coarse or the engineer betrays him. The effect is glowing, even exciting, and what Monteux does to that orchestra is—Monteux.

Thru the Looking Glass

Here's another pearl of little price:

It's a trio of bath aids in a box so pretty it will make your fingers itch, and its cost is just $2 plus the inevitable tax. The trio consists of soap, cologne, and dusting powder, and the fragrance and the décor will depend on your choice. You can make it apple blossom, American beauty, carnation, or bouquet. Whatever your decision, you can't lose because they're all pretty. We confess to slight leanings toward the American beauty, but that's purely personal whim.

In the American beauty fragrance [that's the richest rose scent in the world] the little cake of soap is carved like a firm, full blown rose, and the paper that decorates powder container and outer box is exquisitely patterned in the same flower. The whole ensemble makes, for the money, one of the most attractive little gifts we've seen this season. The other sets are equally appealing, too.

If you like the fragrances and want to go a bit beyond this price, you can find more extensive sets. One, at $5, is a special find, since it offers just about everything for the really royal bath: Bubbles, for example; soap in the bath as well as the cake size, dusting powder, cologne, sachet powder, and even body lotion—this last an especially good one that soothes the dry sensitive skin. This, too, is matched in the four fragrances and the packaging is enchanting.

The same house has a pine set you might look up if the scent of the north woods seems the right choice. The bath oil is a breath of outdoors. There's a big bottle of this, a cylinder of bubble stuff, and two fat cakes of pine scented soap. This is $2. ELEANOR NANGLE

Cleva Gets Go Signal on Plans for 6 Week Opera Season in 1946

The board of governors of the Chicago Opera company met yesterday and authorized Fausto Cleva, general artistic director, to proceed with plans for a season of six weeks in the fall of 1946. The artistic committee reported that after discussion with Mr. Cleva a schedule of artists and operas was approved, but the board has not made that schedule public. According to Abner J. Stillwell, president of the company, the 1946 season is contingent upon a satisfactory agreement between the opera company and the unions with which negotiations are pending. If these work out to the management's satisfaction, Mr. Cleva will go to Europe to engage new artists. No statement was made as to the financial outcome of the 1945 season.

Try Making Cough Syrup at Home. Quick Relief

Saves Big Dollars. No Cooking.

No matter what you usually use for coughs due to colds, you'll be more than surprised when you make up this simple home mixture and give it a trial. You'll wonder why you never used it before. It certainly does the work in a hurry.

Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. No cooking is needed—it's no trouble at all. Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, if desired.

Get from your druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle and fill up with your syrup. This makes a full pint—a family supply—and gives you about four times as much for your money. It tastes fine, and never spoils. Children love it.

And for quick action, you've never seen its superior. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, eases the soreness, makes breathing easier, and lets you sleep.

Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, a famous reliable soothing agent for throat and bronchial irritations. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

The original and genuine

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Dec. 12—Paramount has bought another natural for Bob Hope called "Tawny." An original by Jerry Horwin and Boyce Degaw, it's the tale of a writer of best sellers who's chased by all his heroines. Finally he picks his own, but she can't stand him. . . . Lucille Ball, who is deep in "The Dark Corner" with Clifton Webb, has been offered a long term contract if she'll only park her makeup kit at Twentieth Century. Now Metro is trying to get her back at a terrific boost in salary. Her freelance price per picture has gone sky high. She won't make any decision, however, for at least six weeks. . . . When Desi Arnaz finishes his night club stint here he may hike off to South America. . . . I'm told Hedy Lamarr is going to have another baby. I couldn't check this item because both she and her husband are busy on the sound stages. But Hedy said she wanted half a dozen babies, and I got the idea when she came up with that statement that she wouldn't tarry. . . . Kay Francis phones from the east that there's been some rewriting on her play, and she'll stay with it until the middle of May. That means her Monogram picture will be pushed up to the end of June. . . . Both Bing Crosby and Henry Ginsberg were in Philadelphia for the opening of "Nellie Bly," Billy Gaxton and Victor Moore's new play. If it's good enough, Bing and Bob Hope want to co-star in it. But it seems the company is having difficulty with Producer Eddie Cantor, who continues to wrangle with the writer. . . . Effie Shannon is out of "Pygmalion." Hear she and Cedric Hardwicke had a difference of opinion.

. . . And Mine Wasn't Red

Paulette Goddard gave me a hat that stopped the tennis match between Fred Perry and Bill Tilden. However, when I looked at the occupants of a box near me, I thought she ought to buy another one for her ex-husband, Charlie Chaplin. He was wearing an old Panama in mid-December. The poor man with all his millions. We should be that poor! . . . Bobby Riggs beat Donald Budge. Don was overanxious and developed a cramp in his arm, but he'll have the chance to get even at a repeat performance in Pan Pacific auditorium soon. . . . On "Remember Pearl Harbor day," Dec. 7, Jeanne Barbara McCutcheon, niece of John T. and the late George Barr McCutcheon, married Eddie Craven, favorite nephew of the late Frank Craven. This was the first marriage for both.

Tale of Rubin's Riot

You've read about Schwab's drug store, but I'll bet you didn't know we have a country grocery store next door to it. A magazine is writing it up. The place is run by a former New York night club owner, Ben Rubin, but you find half the stars in Hollywood there doing his work. It's the regular hangout of Leo Durocher, who sent Danny Kaye in. Ben put him right to work waiting on customers. Guys like John Carroll, Bill Lundigan, Cliff Edwards, Pat Knowles, and even Charles Laughton may be found behind the counters. And that glamor boy, Jesse Boswell, takes care of the meat department. It was from Ben that Lauren Bacall learned what food Bogey likes. You could have heard him telling her for two blocks. His angle is the customer's always wrong. "Why be difficult," he says, "when it's only a little bit more trouble to be impossible?" On any day the place is a good show. On a busy day it's a mad house!

A Bill of Divorcement

When the Duncan McMartin divorce goes thru, Mrs. McMartin will be one of the richest divorcees in America. I'm told she got a settlement of a million and the palatial hilltop home in Beverly Hills, which was promptly sold for another $200,000. Now she'll be able to have those bracelets right up to her shoulder. . . . Mrs. Mike Todd's apartment was robbed of 11 fur coats last week, proving the little lady hasn't been exactly chilly these snowy evenings. Mike himself is now rehearsing Bert Lahr and Marie McDonald in "The Face and the Body." . . . Turhan Bey had to take his escort by the hand and leave the Beverly Tropics when the watchman said, "Sir, I guess you don't know what time it is, but I gotta lock up this place." . . . Xavier Cugat uses his intermission time at the Troc to go next door and dance with his big moment, Lorraine Allen, at the Mocambo. . . . I wonder if there'll be fireworks at Twentieth Century when Greg Ratoff comes back to the lot and finds they've hired his estranged wife, Eugenie Leontovich, as a writer, there.

"With Bated Breath"

By Alice Campbell

INSTALMENT XXXIV.

IMPERSONATION

Avis sprang up, lashed anew by her feeling of urgency. "I daren't hang about another second. O, I can take care of tonight, but tomorrow? I know this marriage business sounds utterly haywire, but it's horribly true. That poor little thing will be walking straight from the frying pan into the fire. We can't let her do it. By all accounts this beast of a man has got by with one wife murder. The very first minute he's made sure of Erica's money——"

"Ten a. m. you said? By 8:30," the inspector assured, "I shall be at Turrets and allow no one to quit the premises. The sensible solution will be for the unfortunate lady to be persuaded into a nursing-home—tho her agreement to that may be a little difficult to contrive. Was she in bed when you came away?"

"Yes, but—O, mercy! Didn't I tell you? She can't lock her door, for the simple reason that Moravian's thrown away the key."

"Thrown away—?" They both shouted it in unison; she repeated Oscar's logical excuses.

"I believe him, too. Erica might get some fatal seizure. That would be swell after the knot was tied, but not before. For tonight he promised faithfully he wouldn't close an eye—O!"

She sank back, transfigured with relief. What an imbecile she'd been to overlook Moravian's vigilance! She began to laugh.

"Quite," the inspector nodded dryly. "I was wondering when that particular aspect would strike you. For this one night I think we may confidently rely on Moravian to stand between his gullible victim and any—well, accident. Doctor, don't you feel easier? Obviously it's perfectly safe to let Miss Marriott return, in fact safer for her future that no one should suspect——" Glancing at the fragments of mirror he broke to say that he must dig the bullet out of the wall and turn a ballistic expert on to it. "Just this, Miss Marriott. In your own mind how positive are you that Miss Erica Bolles isn't well able to look after herself?"

To Bruce Avis said abruptly: "How much does he know?"

"All I was able to tell him," the doctor answered. "I'd have explained matters before if this shooting affair hadn't jammed the works. Be frank, Avis. You won't do Erica any good by sitting tight on any incident thru loyalty to her. We've still time on our side, you know, and don't underestimate Moravian as a watch-dog. Never mind how pointless it may seem to you or whom it may concern."

She gave the telephone crisis and its amazing sequels. When she repeated as best she could Moravian's implied accusation to Olive she was dumbfounded at the gleam in the inspector's eyes. "The cable the bank manager referred to may have been from any African friend. I'm kicking myself now for being such a beast as to hunt thru her things. She's been nice to me. It was only that if there was a pistol hidden away I felt it was up to me to find it while she was out of the house. I still think Moravian was just fastening the clamps on her the way he did with Maud yesterday when she tried to show him the door."

"And you say this young man Grier tried to persuade Miss Bolles to leave Moravian undisturbed?"

"Yes, he must have guessed what would happen, he wanted to spare her the mortification. You see it was Robin Grier who caught Moravian rummaging thru Maud's private desk; but my hunch is Moravian found something in the car, before the person who'd driven it back from Elm Corners had a chance to clean it up. The murder happened at night, didn't it? If there was blood on the back seat it needed daylight to show it up."

The inspector ignored the suggestion. "Now, then, Miss Marriott, I want you to think back to the Friday of Miss Trimble's disappearance. Which of your house companions was out?"

"Between 7 and 8 in the evening? The whole lot. At least, I suppose Erica was somewhere indoors, and Robin must have been, because he was practically lame with the ankle he'd sprained that morning at breakfast, but——"

"No, no, I'm not interested in the evening program. Can you say if any one besides Miss Bolles quitted the house very early in the morning—before you got up?"

"But what's that got to do with it? Miss Trimble was seen getting into the bus at 7 a. m!"

"No, Miss Marriott. Her hat and coat were seen. They were worn by some one of approximately the same height, some one who when seated drew down a thick veil. That some one did not speak. When the bus left Wyfforde Miss Trimble's corpse had lain for 12 hours in the tunnel."

The warm room reeled. Before Avis' eyes swam the vision of Maud's pre-breakfast return—her mire befouled shoes! But she saw another pair—Erica's. Mud long dried on the heels, bits of coarse green grass. . . .

Erica, tho, was tiny.

Cam had not known. "You're certain about this?" he fired.

"Since my talk with the missing bus passenger, perfectly so. I was convinced from the start it was the only explanation which would fit the known facts. Would any woman trudge three wet miles without shoes? Alternatively, a car parked at Elm Corners in anticipation of the bus would undoubtedly have been noticed. No car was observed. Equally, it is absurd to suppose that a car could have been driven there after dark, for where could a corpse have been concealed?"

"Quite apart from the dropped pansy, I concluded the shooting occurred close by the tunnel—I'd say in the doorway of the old cowshed, where the victim stood waiting in the gray morning mist. Her coat was thrown open, perhaps because she had walked quickly and got warm. Directly she was shot it was stripped off, to be used later on by the murderer as a disguise. This would explain the absence of blood on the coat. There was, however, just a bare possibility that some farmer had noticed a familiar figure loitering in or about the old shed. The murderer allowed for this by convincing a number of people that Agatha Trimble was alive and departing from Wyfforde at the end of the day. The idea to be subsequently accepted was that of a deliberate disappearance, hence the alighting at Elm Corners and the drowning of the outer garments worn on the bus. The packup at Heath Villas bears all the earmarks of desperate haste. It argued some knowledge of Mrs. Briggs' habits. Obviously there was a latchkey in the victim's purse."

The entire setup had changed. Riddles had become plain reading; but had the trend of suspicion been diverted? Avis saw the full import of Aggie's letter. What else could have spurred its recipient to action at daybreak.

"Maud could have done it," Avis spoke her thought aloud. "Her shoes looked as if she'd squashed across that marsh."

Issuing from Bracken was like plunging into a coal mine; but Bruce was with her and fear had taken flight.

Introduce Self to Honeychile, Boy Is Urged

BY SHEILA DALY

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune]

on the SOLID side

"My problem doesn't concern the girl in my life, but rather the girl I'd like to have in it. You see, I've never even met this lovely, young gal, but O, how I'd like to! We go to the same school and I often see her at our town's teen canteen on Friday evenings. She's a pretty, potent young thing and I'd give a lot to know her well enough to ask her for a date. But the problem is in how to go about it. She's very popular—the president of our junior class and never lacks an escort of a week-end evening. But I have a queer feeling she'd like to go out with me if ever I found a way to ask her. Solution, please."

In your junior class there must be at least one fellow or gal who is friendly with you both. So ask to be introduced and take it from there yourself. But if by some quirk of fate you're complete strangers, there's still a solution. You know any girl with whom you've gone to school for over two years well enough to introduce yourself. Probably she's seen you around school, and no gal will think you an eager beaver if you present yourself at the next school party with "I'm Tom Jones—no need to tell me your name because I've known it for a long time now." Then ask her to waltz around with you to the next number. A beautiful friendship can start as easily as that. And now that you've got the ball—well, run with it!

"I dated a special fellow quite often for several months. We were not going steady, for I dated other boys as often as he dated other girls. We liked each other very much and had wonderful times together. Then he asked me to wear his ring, which would mean that we were an exclusive twosome. I thought we were both too young and told him so. When he called for dates after that I refused him. And now, tho I've gone with other fellows and tried to forget about him, I find that he's still the number one man in my life. He still asks for dates, but I wonder if I'd lose my pride if I went out with him."

What was that again? Your pride? And why would you lose it? It was you who made the break, and it's up to you to start the ball rolling again by accepting his date offers. The fact that the fellow liked you well enough to ask you to go steady was flattering, even tho you know you're both too young. So the next time your Joe jingles the phone make with the happy acceptance—you've wasted too much time already!

Key Childish Gift Making to Manual Skill

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

[Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

To continue giving suggestions, started in an earlier column, aimed at helping mothers to help their children happily and successfully thru the gift making hours of December, the making of gifts doesn't exclude very young childr at all.

The simplest thing, made with their own hands, has value to the recipient. Just a star on a card with the name laboriously printed is a real gift from a very little boy or girl. And because their skill is so limited we must not let them attempt too much, and then grow discouraged because they have failed.

In fact, there are several warnings for all ages that I might sound here, based on my own experience in this matter of children and their gift efforts.

Don't let the children choose to make something that you are sure is beyond their manual skill.

Don't let them undertake something that is going to be so long-drawn-out in the making that they grow weary before it is finished.

Having once made their plans and gotten their materials, see that they have a comfortable place in which to work.

Avoid letting them work so long at a time that they get overtired and tense.

Keep an eye on their progress, especially if they're little. Sometimes a suggestion or a bit of help from you will tide them over an obstacle so they can go on to a successful finish.

Be sure that the article or articles they plan to make can be finished in good season. That is, start them well ahead of time so they do not have to hurry. Especially for the younger child does this hurry take the joy out of life, whether it applies to his everyday activities or to the making of a Christmas present.

When possible and no secrets are involved, it's fun to work together on gift making.

Don't expect perfection of execution from a youngster. His skill is limited and we, as well as the one who receives it, must not be too critical. "If a thing is worth doing it's worth doing well" is all right—but must be applied with judgment. The child who loves tools but is very young will necessarily make what is to us a rough job of a bird house for his mother, or a box for grandfather's cigars.

You want the children's gift making to be a pleasure to them. It will be that—and also to you—if you will heed some of these suggestions.

Mrs. Henry G., Chicago—To flameproof a Christmas tree, we apply a strong solution of sodium tungstate with an insect sprayer. It won't blaze after this treatment, altho it may char and even burn a little. We do this a few days before we trim the tree.

Dora J., Peru, Ind.—Iron the edges of your curtains as soon as you take them off the stretchers. In this way you eliminate any risk that pin marks will remain.

GREAT Lakes football teams, in four war time seasons, won 33 games, lost 10, and tied 3. . . . Half Back Frank Aschenbrenner, who scored 13 touchdowns, was the 1945 Bluejackets' top man in that department. . . . Three members of the naval center's last war time gridiron team—Harry Grant, Dave Foley, and Bob Lussow, all ex-collegians—are out for basketball. . . . Schooling of horses already has started at Hialeah, whose officials anticipate the most prosperous season in the track's history. . . . The starting gate is kept busy from 7 to 10 a. m. every day. . . . Eighteen Marquette university basketball players contributed to the Hilltoppers' total of 158 points in their first three games. . . . Forward John Millunzi, a returned war veteran, paced the parade with 32 points. . . . Michigan State's football season produced two 60 minute men in Tackles Kent Esbaugh and Walter Vezmar, both of whom went the distance in the Spartans' 7 to 6 conquest of the University of Kentucky. . . .

Missouri Valley conference alumni are wondering what the circuit has to do to earn its share of the sport headlines. . . . They cite, among its achievements, the following: two 1944 bowl champions in football—the Oklahoma Aggies in the Cotton bowl and Tulsa in the Orange bowl; 14 national championships won in wrestling by the Aggies, and contenders in two big basketball tournaments—Creighton in the New York Invitational and the Aggies in the N. C. A. A.

Henry Iba, coach of the Oklahoma Aggies' powerhouse basketball team, says, modestly, that any coach could succeed with a 7 foot center. . . . Says Jim Phelan, coach of the St. Mary's college football team, "My kids throw the ball around so much, I'm afraid sometimes they are going to toss it to the visiting bench." . . . The New Mexico school of Mines has a basketball center—Emmett Morganthaler—who is believed to be the tallest in the business. . . . He is 7 feet 1 inch. . . . Emmett, a freshman, won all-state recognition in high school. . . . The regular center, Bob Rayner, who is 6 feet 9, will be shifted to forward.

To My Love

Cross my palm with silver moonlight,
Cross my heart with stars—
I will tell, without soothsaying,
I am trapped behind the bars
That sly Cupid has erected,
Fragile but as strong as steel;
Cross my heart with loving kisses
If you'd learn just how I feel.

For Love or Money

You can catch more flies with honey

And that is an old folk saying
Oft heard by me and you.

Some folks don't seem to believe it, tho,
As their manners oft attest,

MAJORS PLACE NO LIMIT ON NIGHT GAMES

Chandler's Ballot Decides Issue

BY IRVING VAUGHAN

The 16 major league baseball clubs closed their annual midwinter get-to-gether in the Palmer House yesterday by voting to continue with unlimited night ball as in the last two seasons. The agreement was reached after some difference of opinion, the deciding vote being cast by Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler.

Net result of the action is that clubs with electric lights in their parks can play as many after dinner games as they wish, altho most of them will continue to confine themselves to 14. The exceptions are the two St. Louis clubs and the Washington Senators.

Sniping Entirely Unofficial

If nothing else, the joint session at least provided further indication that the sniping against Commissioner Chandler since he took office was entirely unofficial. The gentleman from Kentucky conceded after the meeting that it had been delightfully pleasant, so much so, in fact, that a committee working on a post-war promotional plan was forced to back track on a recent move.

At Columbus last week, during the minor league conventions, the committee — which includes the presidents of the two majors — announced that $50,000 set aside for promotional work would be handled by an office separate from that of the baseball commissioner. In other words, Chandler was slightly frozen out of the project, a situation that caused the snipers to declare he was being shorn of some authority. The owners decided yesterday that the committee's action be thrown out and that it make up a new report and present it to Chandler at a meeting to be held in February in New York.

The magnates acted to halt the practice of dipping into high school ranks for material. They added a provision to the rules that no pupil in a National association high school can be signed until he [or his class] has been graduated, except if he has been out of high school for a year.

Commissioner Must Investigate

In such cases the commissioner will have the authority to act and if he decides, after investigation, that the athlete is definitely thru with school the big league clubs can proffer contracts.

The joint meeting also ratified previous separate actions pertaining to another one year extension of the expired major-minor agreement. The extension will include recent amendments.

In connection with night baseball it was decided to abandon twilight-night double headers unless such are made necessary to keep up with the schedule. Night games also will be frowned on as Sunday and holiday attractions. Because the two leagues conuldn't agree on night ball, Commissioner Chandler was forced to vote for "ne restrictions" as advocated by the National league. However, a visiting club retains the right to refuse night dates.

$20,000 for Legion Ball

Among other things, the magnates voted $20,000 for junior American Legion baseball and emphasized that there would be no change in the rights of players returned from the national defense list. This includes the fact that players cannot be released until after spending two weeks of the season on salary.

Club owners of the two majors heard Gen. Jacob L. Devers, army ground forces commander, in a short speech yesterday morning to open the final session. Gen. Devers paid tribute to baseball for its part in the war effort.

"Why were we a great team and a great army?" the general queried. "Because we know something of team play and have the best competitive spirit of any nation in the world. Baseball, football, and other sports teach competitive spirit."

Phils Buy Newsome from Red Sox; Bagby to Boston

BY EDWARD BURNS

Four deals involving major league playing talent, three of them including the Phillies, formed the grand total for the minor league convention and the major league meeting in Chicago as the latter conclave came to an end in the Palmer House yesterday.

The third and fourth of these were made a few hours before the nabobs completed their legislative sessions. In the third Pitcher Jim Bagby returned to the Boston Red Sox after being property of the Cleveland Indians for exactly five years. In exchange for Bagby the Red Sox gave Pitcher Vic Johnson and some cash, possibly $5,000. The fourth transaction saw the Phillies purchase Shortstop Skeeter Newsome from the Boston Red Sox for a reported price of $15,000.

The earlier deals involving transfers between major league clubs resulted in First Baseman Frank McCormick being sold to the Philadelphia Phillies by the Cincinnati Reds and Pitcher Johnny Humphries going to the Phillies from the White Sox.

Rosters Will Be Plump

Several reasons were given first in forecasting and then reviewing the skimp activity in the player market at this time. Because of the obligation to give all players returning from military service a chance to be around for 15 days salary, all rosters will be loaded in the early weeks of the season. Thus, at the two conventions most of the owners and managers were out to trade from three to 10 ball players of uncertain value for one of established talents. This idea, of course, soon hit a stalemate.

Reduction of income taxes after the first of the year retarded some clubs with actual values for sale. There was little object, it was pointed out, in taking money for stars in 1945 who will be just as salable, or more so, a few weeks hence, when the tax collectors will not be taking quite so deep a dip. This may have accounted for the reason the St. Louis Cardinals, with an admitted overflow of desirable players, did nothing.

Grimm Adds No Players

Manager Charley Grimm of the Cubs, who cut down his roster by a quantity of transfers to the Los Angeles and Nashville affiliates, took off for his Missouri farm before the convention adjourned—without having added a player to his list for 1946.

Just before closing their convention headquarters the Cubs announced the sale of Shortstop Charley Brewster to the San Diego club of the Pacific Coast league. Brewster was on the Cub roster last spring, but never reached camp and last season played 65 games with Los Angeles and 61 for Nashville.

Vic Johnson

Jim Bagby

He was on the Cub roster for 1946 until yesterday's transaction.

Manager Jimmy Dykes will linger in town for several days before returning to California. He expects to make some changes in personnel before spring training, but says that most revision will come after the start of the regular season.

Dawson New Yank Scout

H. P. Dawson, for several years business manager of the New York Yankees' Piedmont league farm club at Norfolk, Va., has been transferred to the Yanks' scouting staff. He will do scouting and field work, Yankee officials at the convention said.

The New York Giants yesterday signed as coach Ralph [Red] Kress, one time major league infielder with the St. Louis Browns and White Sox and former manager of the Minneapolis American association club. Kress pitched for Baltimore's International league Orioles in 1945.

Johnny Cooney, veteran former big league pitcher-outfielder, was signed as a coach by the Braves, with whom he played for most of his two decades in the majors. Cooney was a players' coach with the Kansas City Blues of the American association last season.

PRO FINAL MAY SET GATE MARK

9,000 Bales of Straw Cover Playing Field

BY EDWARD PRELL

Sunday's professional football championship meting between the Cleveland Rams and the Washington Redskins in Cleveland's huge Municipal stadium will set a record for gate receipts in the 13 year old competition. This prediction was made yesterday by National league officials in snow blanketed Cleveland.

"It must have snowed a foot and a half here Tuesday," reported George Strickler, the league's publicity director. "But we had our biggest ticket sale. We have 9,000 bales of straw covering the field and are hoping for a clear day."

The Green Bay-New York title game last year in the Polo Grounds was witnessed by 46,016 who contributed to a record gross gate of $146,204.15. Strickler said that by the time the Redskins arrive Saturday morning from the east this figure will have been surpassed in the advance sale.

No Talk of Sellout

The stadium is scaled for $300,000, but not even the most enthusiastic among the pro people are talking of a sellout. The game day sale, of course, will be dependent upon the weather. In the past the Cleveland fan has not been noted for being as hardy as fans, say, in Chicago or Detroit. But the Ohioans are steamed up over the Rams, and especially Bob Waterfield, the forward passing genius from California. Snow and cold failed to bother Bob on Thanksgiving day in Detroit when the Rams clinched the western championship by whipping the Lions.

Each member of the victorious Packers received $1,449.71 in last year's title game. This was the juiciest cut in the East-West series, which started in 1933.

The Redskins are working out in the Georgetown university fieldhouse in Washington. Strickler has been in communication with the eastern champions and reports that Turk Edwards, veteran line coach, declares the current Redskin back field is the finest in the team's history.

De Correvont Showing Form

Bill De Correvont, said Edwards, is beginning to show the hard running form which made him famous as a Chicago prep and at Northwestern. Berlyn Condit, former Brooklyn back who returned from war service in midseason, also will be at peak form for the game, Turk believes. The Redskins' Frank Akins was second to Steve Van Buren in ground gaining this season. Frank slashed opposing lines for 797 yards in 147 smashes.

The Rams have the fourth, fifth, and sixth places among the league's top runners—the three G's. These are Fred Gehrke who whirled for 467 yards at a 6.3 average; Jim Gillette who gained 390 yards with a 6.1 average, and Don Greenwood, whose 101 trips from full back netted 376 yards and a 3.7 average.

DEMONS WHIP BOWLING GREEN FIVE, 59 TO 54

Hoosiers Defeat Hamline, 54-43

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN

De Paul university and Indiana State of Terre Haute, Ind., stepped into the semi-finals of the first annual De Paul invitational basketball tournament which opened last night in Chicago Stadium before a crowd of 8,329.

De Paul, led by George Mikan, playing his fourth year of college basketball, defeated Bowling Green university of Ohio, 59 to 54, in a thriller which followed Indiana State's 54 to 43 victory over Hamline university of St. Paul, Minn. De Paul now will play the University of Washington five and Indiana State will meet the University of Oregon tomorrow night in the semi-final round.

Don Otten Plays Well

Mikan, with 21 points, was high scorer for the evening as he played up to his brilliant form tho opposed by an able foe in big Don Otten, 6 foot 11½ inch giant, who gave a fine performance and time after time came off best in struggles with the 6 foot 9 inch De Paul star. Otten scored 13 points.

De Paul's attack was by no means a Mikan triumph, for much credit was earned by Gene Stump, whose all around play stood out. Stump was able to hit the basket from the floor seven times to Mikan's eight and wound up with 15 points. Mikan made five free throws good.

Bob Royer, just a little fellow when you talk of Mikans and Ottens, was Indiana State's leading scorer with 17 points on seven baskets and three free throws, but he had to bow to big Kenneth Merrit in the matter of points. Merrit, whose brilliant play kept Hamline in the running most of the preliminary, wound up with nine field goals and a free toss for 19 points.

Mikan and Stump carried the brunt of the De Paul attack in the first half of the second game, the big center scoring four baskets and a like number from the foul line as Gene, probably the busiest player on the floor, racked up four two pointers and still found time to break up many Ohio surges.

De Paul Trails Early

Otten held his own with Mikan early in the period as the Ohioans went into the lead and kept it for some 12 minutes or until Mikan and Stump, with the aid of Jack Allen and Charley Allan, really got into the swing of things. Bowling Green was ahead 18 to 17 when Mikan first tied the score with a foul shot. The Ohioans then went two points ahead, but Allen tied it up. Otten put the visitors in front at 22-20, but Stump deadlocked it, then added another to put De Paul in the van for the first time. The half ended with De Paul leading, 30 to 26.

From then on thru a rapid fire second half, De Paul managed to keep the lead, but never was permitted an opportunity to coast. In fact, Otten, Jim Knierim, and Tom Inman made the going tough for the victors in the later stages.

Royer's Play Stands Out

Neither Hamline nor Indiana State could get going until nearly five minutes of the first half of the opening game had expired, but the tempo increased markedly as John Bennett and Royer put on a nice display of close-in shooting for the Hoosier lads and Rollie Seltz and Merrit countered effectively for the Minnesotans.

Seltz sank three from close in and contributed a like number while adding a free throw. Royer's play stood out, however, for the little fellow slipped his guards and poured in four baskets on two occasions after stealing the ball in Hamline territory and going the length of the floor to score. Bennett took advantage of his six feet, six inches to score two from far out.

It was in the second half, tho, that Merrit and Royer really got going as the game's pace was speeded up by Hamline's rally. Merrit scored six times, one of the baskets tying the score at 31-all. Royer made three field goals and sank a like number of free throws.

Hawks Risk 2d Place Tonight in New York

New York, Dec. 12 [Special] — Chicago's Blackhawks, faced with the prospect of winning or dropping to third place in the National Hockey league standings, will oppose a greatly strengthened Ranger team tomorrow night in Madison Square Garden.

In the teams' only previous meeting on New York ice this winter, Chicago won, 5 to 4. However, Manager Lester Patrick has received reinforcements in the return of Mac Colville, Lynn Patrick and Alf Pike after war-time absences of two seasons. Recent victories over the Detroit Red Wings and the Toronto Maple Leafs also have served to increase the optimism of the Ranger fans.

George Gee, recently brought up from Kansas City by the Hawks, will get his first chance to compete against a major league team tomorrow night. He will perform at center for Chicago.

The Hawk-Ranger contest will share interest tomorrow night with the meeting between the Toronto Maple Leafs and the Canadiens in Montreal.

AWARD I. C. 4-A TRACK MEET TO NAVY ON MAY 25

New York, Dec. 12 (AP)—Award of the 1946 I. C. 4-A track meet to the United States Naval academy on May 25 and organization of an eastern championship regatta to be held at the same school on May 11 were announced today at the annual convention of the Central Office for Eastern Intercollegiate Athletics.

The track event was held in 1945 at West Point. The regatta is a new event, probably designed to replace the Poughkeepsie event for at least one year. A definite vote on the Poughkeepsie regatta will be taken tomorrow but it likely will not be resumed in 1946.

Columbia, Cornell, Harvard, M. I. T., Navy, Penn, Princeton, Rutgers, and Wisconsin, all members of the Eastern Association of Rowing Colleges, will compete on the Severn for the championship but cup competition will not be resumed.

BUDGET PRUNED HEAVILY TO AID CITY EMPLOYES

Mayor and Aldermen to Work Tomorrow Night

Altho its tentative action is subject to approval by the mayor and the city council, the aldermanic finance committee headed by Ald. Bowler [25th] yesterday cut 1¼ million dollars from the estimates of the city budget. This almost assured 6,500 city employes who are members of labor unions that wage increases granted them by the war labor board will be met in 1946.

The committee, which has been struggling with the budget since Dec. 4, is still trying to cut an additional 3 million dollars from the $65,787,913 corporate fund estimate set up by City Controler Robert B. Upham in order that 17,000 other city employes may receive a pay raise amounting to approximately 8 per cent. Executives will be excepted.

All-night Session Possible

The committee will meet tomorrow night with Mayor Kelly in a session that may last all night. The committee hopes to get the final estimates in to the printer's hands by Saturday.

Among the larger items cut from the estimates were $250,000 for the purchase of a new fireboat; $155,000 for the replacement of the timber breakwater north of Navy pier; $95,000 for planning new bridges and viaducts; $45,000 from the city sewer department; $25,000 from a bridge repair fund, and an unestimated part of a $300,000 item which would be used for the purchase of new fire apparatus.

More Revenue Estimated

These additional revenue sources were suggested by a subcommittee headed by Ald. Lindell [9th]: $350,000 from juke box licenses; $150,000 from increased gasoline station licenses; $50,000 from increased livery car licenses, and $250,000 from an increased number of liquor licenses expected in 1946.

Bowler questioned an $8,000 item for the department of building maintenance that City Architect Paul Gearhardt Jr. had set up for replacement of city hall fire pumps. Gerhardt said that the pumps had not operated in several years, and admitted that the fire department had repeatedly asked to have them repaired.

$5,000 Item Wins Out.

"How do you get away with that?" Ald. Orlikoski [35th] demanded. "If private citizens did a thing like this, they would be taken to court and fined."

"The fire department just never took us to court," Gerhardt told him. The aldermen approved the item.

YOUNG FUGITIVE ADMITS PAL SHOT HIM IN QUARREL

Robert Dosch, 12, of 1507 Fullerton av., an escaped inmate of the Chicago Parental school who is recovering in County hospital from a bullet wound in the shoulder, was shot while quarreling with a young accomplice over possession of a .32 caliber revolver, Police Chief Ted Heinz of Skokie disclosed yesterday.

Dosch previously had told authorities he was shot Saturday night by a farmer in Dempster rd. when he and another boy sought refuge in a barn.

Chief Heinz and Lt. G. W. Milz said the second boy, William Barry Jr., 13, of 7221 S. Peoria st., who also escaped from the Parental school but now is held in the Juvenile home, admitted wounding Dosch with a .22 caliber rifle stolen in the first of two burglaries in Skokie. The revolver also was stolen in a burglary in the suburb.

TELLS OF SEEING MANSFELDT AND NURSE TOGETHER

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 12 (AP)—A sailor testified from a stretcher at the Annie Irene Mansfeldt murder trial today he had met Dr. John H. Mansfeldt and Mrs. Vada Martin together one night at a San Francisco night spot.

The defense witness, George Gregorio, seaman 2d class from South Boston, Mass., identified Mrs. Martin from a large courtroom picture of her, and said he had recognized Mansfeldt from newspaper pictures. The physician committed suicide soon after the shooting, Oct. 4.

Gregorio made no explanation of his stretcher appearance other than that he had been "beaten up."

CITY OFFICIALS DRAFT GARBAGE LAW WITH TEETH

A new city ordinance making both property owners and tenants responsible for equipping homes and other buildings with garbage cans or suitable refuse disposal facilities will be submitted to the city council Monday, Corporation Counsel Hodes said yesterday.

Tentative details of the ordinance were drafted at a meeting of Hodes, Lloyd M. Johnson, commissioner of streets and electricity, and City Prosecutor Michael L. Rosinia. It is designed to plug loopholes in the present city code that permit evasion of responsibility.

Court Aid to Be Asked

The three conferees also decided to ask judges of the Municipal court, where cases involving refuse disposal will be heard, to grant no continuances to defendants, who actually will be second offenders. Only a warning will be issued for the first offense.

Johnson also promised the council finance committee considering the city budget for 1946 that Chicago will have a city-wide weekly garbage collection by next June if 150 new trucks now on order are delivered. The committee is considering a $7,932,235 appropriation for the bureau of streets for 1946.

Free City Cans Ignored

Weekly service in areas where the city recently distributed 30,000 free garbage cans is in effect, tho much refuse is still thrown into the alleys instead of the cans, Johnson said. He urged more money for salaries to better the garbage service.

The committee rejected a suggestion by Ald. Waller [43d] that an appropriation be set up for the purchase and city-wide distribution of garbage cans.

Altho nearly $200,000 was cut from the department's appropriation, the aldermen decided to increase a $100,000 appropriation for rat extermination, if the money could be taken from some other department.

REPORT FINDING BODIES OF SIX MARINE FLYERS

TIENTSIN, China, Dec. 12 (AP)—Unofficial reports reaching here today from Shantung peninsula said the bodies of six marine flyers who bailed out of Hellcat dive bombers during a storm Dec. 7 had been found.

Rescue planes have been searching for six dive bombers carrying two men each, last seen over Tientsin after a rendezvous with 10 other dive bombers on Pearl Harbor day maneuvers. Headquarters of the third amphibious corps has not made public any announcement concerning the missing flyers.

Likewise there has been no further news of the six marine flyers who went down on a routine flight between Peiping and Tientsin Nov. 10. They were last reported in a communist-held village and plans were made to drop them winter clothing and supplies. Efforts to obtain their release from the village have so far been unsuccessful.

BROOKMAN—Pfc. Robert [Bob] Brookman. In loving memory of our dear son and brother, who was killed in action in Luxembourg, Germany, Dec. 13, 1944.
War hit home a year ago today,
When God came and took our Bob away,
God whispered so softly and called him by name.
So he left, and our home just isn't the same.
God took him and stationed him at the gate,

We'll still have our beautiful memories of him.

BIG BURLINGTON ISSUE OFFERED TODAY AT 100.80

Halsey Wins 49 Millions of 2⅞ Pct. Bonds

A new $49,765,000 issue of Chicago, Burlington, and Quincy railroad bonds yesterday was awarded to Halsey, Stuart & Co. on a bid of 100.13999 for a 2⅞ per cent interest rate. Morgan Stanley & Co. bid 99.60. The winners will offer the bonds today at 100.80.

Directors of Standard Power and Light corporation rejected an offer from an undisclosed source to buy the company's 1,160,000 shares of Standard Gas and Electric company common stock. Under the recapitalization plan of Standard Gas and Electric, now being contested in federal District court in Wilmington, Del., Standard Gas common is excluded from participation in the new company.

Alleghany Shares Sold

Books were closed on Otis & Co.'s offering of 700,000 shares of Alleghany corporation common stock at $5.75 a share. It did not represent new financing by Alleghany.

Consolidated Biscuit company, Chicago, registered with the securities and exchange commission 80,750 shares of $1 par common to be offered to present holders at $10 a share, one for each four held. Proceeds will be used to enlarge the Chicago plant and purchase new equipment for the Chicago and Boston plants.

Gray Manufacturing company gave stockholders until 3 p. m. Dec. 21 to subscribe at $10.25 a share to one total of 42,180 common shares, one new for each four held. Proceeds will be added to working capital.

Plans 13 Million Loan

Pacific Gas and Electric company is seeking permission to issue and sell 13 million dollars of first and refunding mortgage 3 per cent bonds to Crocker National bank, San Francisco. Proceeds will be used to set up a trust fund for the company's pension reserve and for plant improvements.

Monogram Pictures corporation called for redemption on Jan. 15 all 5½ per cent cumulative convertible preferred stock.

Buffalo-Niagara Electric corporation registered 350,000 shares of $100 preferred stock, to be sold at competitive bidding. Proceeds will be used to redeem 5 per cent preferred.

OUTPUT OF BEEF DIPS, BUT SETS NOVEMBER TOP

Production of beef last month declined 10 per cent from the all time record established in October, but set a new November peak, the department of agriculture reported yesterday. Packers under federal inspection slaughtered 1,410,261 cattle, topping the November record set last year by 74,524 head.

Sheep and lamb slaughter of 1,772,114, smallest in November in four years, compared with 2,018,282 in October and 2,012,588 a year ago.

Inspected packers killed 4,349,504 hogs, the most in a month since January, tho the smallest November kill since 1939. October butchering aggregated only 2,329,666 head. In November last year 5,256,194 were slaughtered, and two years ago a record of 6,971,752.

Nearly all hogs offered at the Chicago stock yards yesterday sold at ceiling prices as demand soared far ahead of the supply. The average rose 5 cents to $14.80 per 100 pounds, a maximum under the two ceiling system.

Mostly steady prices were paid for cattle, tho some plainer classes were clow.

PRICES OF RYE DECLINE, OTHER GRAINS WEAKEN

Grain markets were weak yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade as a result of the decline in securities and light snow in parts of the western and southwestern winter wheat belt. A drop of cash oats below ceiling prices also was an influence.

Rye led the decline with the active futures closing ⅝ to 3¾ cents a bushel lower. Oats lost ⅞ to 1⅛ and the distant deliveries of wheat were off ⅝ to ⅞. December and May wheat, all deliveries of corn and December barley finished unchanged at ceiling prices.

CORN LOANS RAISED

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12 (AP)—The department of agriculture today announced it will offer loans to growers on 1945 crop corn at rates averaging $1.01 a bushel nationally. Loans last year averaged 98 cents.

EARLY DECISION IS EXPECTED ON PULLMAN SALE

Arguments of Four Bidders End

BY CHARLES GOTTHART

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 12—Disposition of the Pullman sleeping car fleet was taken under advisement by a special United States expediting court today after the four groups of bidders entered final pleas for acceptance of their offers. An early decision was expected because the Pullman company's operating contracts with the railroads are canceled as of Dec. 31.

Protracted hearings in the government's monopoly case ended with a demand by George Wharton Pepper, Pullman, Inc., attorney, that the court preserve the parent's legal right to select any buyer that would meet terms of the anti-trust decree.

The company has contracted to sell the 75 million dollar sleeping car business to a group of railroads that haul nearly all of the 7,000 cars in the Pullman fleet, and the contract will be carried out unless the court selects one of the other bidders.

Course Termed Dangerous

To rule otherwise would be to follow a "tempting and dangerous" legal course that never has been upheld in any other anti-trust case, Pepper told Judges John Biggs Jr., Albert B. Maris, and Herbert F. Goodrich.

Pepper asked approval of the rail groups' offer because it was the most favorable for Pullman stockholders and employes, and because "a legitimate contract negotiated in good faith" should not be upset.

Under any of the other three proposals, Pullman was likely to receive less than the 20 million dollars the rail group is pledged to pay for the more than 6,000 heavyweight sleepers, Pepper said. The plan calls for the payment of another 20 millions for shops, laundries, and working capital, and 35 millions for the more than 600 modern, lightweight sleepers.

Presents Government Views

Holmes Baldridge, assistant United States attorney general, made another plea for acceptance of the Robert R. Young-Allan P. Kirby-Otis & Co. bid as the one offering most promise of materially expanded service and the leart threat of railroad or banker domination. He termed the rails' offer one of "monopoly," the Standard Steel Spring company's offer one of "liquidation," and the Glore, Forgan & Co., bid one of "hope."

Thurman Arnold, the New Deal "trust buster" who was Baldridge's superior in the justice department when the government began the long case, reiterated the intention of his clients, the Young interests, to spend half a billion dollars in building a vast, modern, sleeping car fleet. He charged the rail group with planning to milk the property and avoid providing better service.

The hearing developed further controversy over asserted domination of the railroads by J. P. Morgan & Co., and Kuhn, Loeb & Co., and possible new domination by Young, who is chairman of the Alleghany corporation and the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad.

Incident in Long Struggle?

John Dickinson, counsel for the rail group, alleged that the Young rail and banking interests were attempting to make this lawsuit an incident to the long struggle between Otis & Co. of Cleveland and Halsey, Stuart & Co. of Chicago and the "traditional" New York railroad bankers. He accused Arnold of attempting "coercion."

Robert J. Bulkley, attorney for the C. & O., asserted that the public eventually would demand government ownership of the railroads unless Morgan "domination" were eliminated.

Atty. Francis H. Scheetz urged the Glore, Forgan proposal as the only one that had not been revised since it was submitted. He attacked the rails' plan as designed for eventual liquidation of Pullman company.

Lewis M. Stevens, for Standard Steel Spring, emphasized this plan's provision for reconversion of present heavy weight sleepers, and said his group was prepared to finance construction of light cars for roads that did not choose so to invest their own funds.

Forman Creditors' Suit Is Dismissed by Court

A petition filed by creditors seeking reorganization of the Forman Realty Trust was dismissed yesterday by Federal Judge William J. Campbell on grounds that it contained no concrete charge of an act of bankruptcy. Reorganization proceedings for the company are pending in Superior court. The trust controls 15 buildings in Chicago and one in Cleveland, most of them apartments and hotels.

N. Y. C. Orders 22 Trains; Monon, Burlington Dieselize

Cost 34 Millions

Placing of a 34 million dollar order for passenger equipment, said to be the largest single order of the kind in the history of American railroads, was announced yesterday by Gustav Metzman, president of the New York Central system. The order is for 22 streamlined, lightweight steel trains, totaling 312 sleeping cars of new design and 108 baggage and mail cars.

The 420 cars are in addition to 300 de luxe passenger coaches now under construction for the road's day time service at a cost of 22 millions.

Sleepers of All-Room Type

Each of the sleeping cars will be of all-room type, including modern developments in single rooms, double bedrooms, and de luxe suites. The new type dining cars, lounges, and observation cars were planned by the railroad's engineers and designers in conjunction with the manufacturers.

Of the new order, 200 sleeping cars will be built by the Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing company of high tensile, low alloy steel, with welded girder construction. The Edward G. Budd Manufacturing company will build 112 cars of stainless steel, and the American Car and Foundry company will build the 108 baggage-mail and railway postoffice cars. All will be of high tensile, low alloy steel except two baggage-smokers, which will be of aluminum.

First Expected Next September

The first of the new trains, which Metzman said will embody the most modern ideas in safety, comfort, and decor, are expected to be ready next September, with continuous delivery until completion of the order in March, 1947. As the cars are received they will go into service on the Twentieth Century Limited, Commodore Vanderbilt, Advance Commodore, Southwestern Limited, Detroiter, Wolverine, Cleveland Limited, Iroquois, Ohio State Limited, New England States, and Motor City Special.

Many of the new ideas for more comfort and luxury in the cars are the result of suggestions made by passengers in response to questionnaires submitted by the road during the war, Metzman said.

Purchase Approved

Plans for completely dieselizing the Monon railroad between Chicago, Indianapolis, and Louisville were disclosed yesterday. Harry C. Murphy, vice president of the Burlington Lines, announced that road's thru passenger service between Chicago, Omaha, and Denver had been completely dieselized.

Federal Judge Igoe signed an order presented by Atty. Harold A. Smith, representing L. F. De Ramus and H. D. Pettibone, trustees, authorizing the Monon to buy 19 diesel electric locomotives and 15 streamlined passenger cars at a cost of approximately $5,550,000.

Will Make Up Three Trains

The 15 new cars will be used in three trains to run between the three principal cities on the line, which is a "bridge road" connecting Chicago with southern and southeastern roads. No schedules have been worked out for the new trains, which will link numerous college and manufacturing towns in Indiana with the cities.

Of the 19 locomotives, four will be in passenger and 15 in frate service. The cost of the frate locomotives is estimated at $3,200,000 and the combined cost of the passenger locomotives and cars $2,350,000. The road has cash resources of approximately 12½ million dollars.

Gets 10 New Locomotives

Murphy said the complete dieselization of the Burlington's thru service was made possible by recent delivery of 10 new 4,000-horsepower diesel-electric locomotives and the pooling of these with five of the same type bought before the war.

"Including its Zephyrs, the Burlington, which introduced diesel passenger service on American railroads in 1934, now has 27 diesel passenger locomotives, one of the largest diesel passenger fleets in the world," Murphy said. "Use of the 10 new locomotives will assure improved on-time performance with present heavy trains and probably will permit some schedule reductions when traffic conditions return to normal."

A few local trains and Chicago's suburban service will continue to be powered by steam. The road's thru frate operations also have been largely dieselized.

OLD LAND GRANT RAIL RATES DIE NEXT YEAR; PRESIDENT SIGNS BILL

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12 (AP)—President Truman today signed legislation repealing next Oct. 1 the old "land grant" rail rates under which government military property is moved at half the regular rates. The cuts were granted the government for large gifts of government lands during the early railroad development era.

Proponents of repeal contended the government had been repaid many times over for the land it gave the carriers.

In opposition, Rep. Cochran (D., Mo.) said in house debate that "repeal of the rate reduction will cost the taxpayers 300 or 400 million dollars a year additional" for movement of government property.

DENIES ELECTRIC GOODS ARE KEPT OUT OF MARKET

Altho some electrical manufacturers must store unfinished products awaiting parts from strike-bound suppliers, they distribute completed items as soon as they become available, R. L. White, president of the National Electrical Manufacturers association, said yesterday.

White answered union charges that industrialists were withholding production from the public by contending electrical appliance output difficulties were retraining of workers, labor shortages, and work stoppages. He said some refrigerators are being shipped without metal trays which will have to be installed by dealers.

MORRISON HOTEL LAND PURCHASED BY FARNSWORTH

Ward Farnsworth, realtor, yesterday bought the land under the tower section of the Morrison hotel, fronting 99½ feet on S. Clark st., for $1,130,000 in open court before Circuit Judge Julius H. Miner. He said he represented Chicago interests. Louis J. Jacobson, attorney, was understood to head the group of buyers. The next highest bid was $1,127,000 by Albert H. Wetten & Co., for undisclosed interests.

The property was sold by the Chicago Title and Trust company, trustee for the Edward W. Morrison trust. Proceeds will be used to build the Morrison Home for the Aged, an institution created by the late Mr. Morrison.

The Morrison hotel has a long term lease on the land sold and owns the 43 story structure on it.

Directors then authorized the issuance of 14,500 shares of common and 48,334 shares of 5½ per cent cumulative preferred as dividends on outstanding common. Holders of record Dec. 14 will receive one third of one preferred share and one tenth of one common share for each common share held.

STEEL, MOTOR STOCKS LEAD IN BROAD DECLINE

Strike Call a Factor in Market Dip

New York, Dec. 12 (AP)—Steels, motors, and aircrafts declined fractions to about three points in today's stock market. Most other groups joined the downturn. Of 987 issues traded 765 closed lower and only 115 advanced.

The slump was interpreted largely as a technical correction of the list's recent lengthy advance to 15 year peaks. Contributing factors were the stalemated automotive labor-management negotiations and the call for an industry-wide steel strike on Jan. 14.

[President Truman said at his news conference yesterday that he was not looking into possible inflationary effects of the currently active stock market.]

Index Drops a Full Point

Some pivotal issues recovered slightly from their lowest prices. Dealings totaled 1,680,000 shares against 1,690,000 yesterday. The Associated Press 60 stock composite fell 1.0 point to 76.0, largest drop since 1.1 on Nov. 21.

Among losers were United States Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet, General Motors, Chrysler, Packard, Goodrich, Montgomery Ward, International Harvester, Douglas Aircraft, Glenn Martin, North American, Anaconda, Phelps-Dodge, Westinghouse Electric, du Pont, Union Carbide, Allied Chemical, Santa Fe, Great Northern, and Standard Oil [N. J.].

BOND PRICES MIXED

New York, Dec. 12 (AP)—The bond market was mixed today, altho some railroad issues advanced more than a point. Gainers included Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Northern 5s, Monon 5s, and most Katy and Northern Pacific liens. Declines were recorded for most Baltimore and Ohio, Missouri Pacific, Southern Pacific, and New Haven issues. Commonwealth Edison convertible 3⅛s weakened. Sales were $7,605,000 compared with $8,920,000 yesterday.

CHICAGO STOCKS FALL

Prices declined on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday in reduced turnover of 56,000 shares. Of 140 issues traded, 92 closed lower and 25 higher. Among the most active, Chicago corporation was down ⅜ at 9; Electric Household up 1 at 23, a new 1945 high; Oak Manufacturing 11⅛, down ½, and Peabody Coal 10⅝, down ½.

HIGGINS GIVES BUSINESS TO 3 LOYAL WORKERS

New Orleans, La., Dec. 12 (AP)—Andrew Jackson Higgins played Santa Claus today, presenting a $100,000 electric appliance business to three employes. One of the trio, J. O. Crary, said they were "completely overwhelmed."

Higgins, whose boat building properties here are in liquidation after labor difficulties, said he had turned over the electric appliances division of his Higgins Industries, Inc., to the division's three present operating heads "to show that management appreciates loyalty and efficiency." The new owners are Crary, former division manager; L. V. Busenlener, and W. H. Bramblett.

The new company, to be known as Industries Sales corporation, will distribute to retailers a variety of electric appliances manufactured by 38 firms, Crary said, and will employ about 30 men.

Chicago Paper Firm Wins 2d Bout with OPA

The United States Emergency Court of Appeals in Washington, D. C., for the second time has ordered an office of price administration regulation set aside because it discriminated against products of the Consolidated Water Power and Paper company, whose headquarters are in Chicago, the company disclosed yesterday.

The court's decision termed the regulation "defective, in that prices were fixed on the basis of quality, but all products of equal quality were not given the same price," said Walter L. Mead, vice president and director of sales. The company manufactures book and magazine papers.

Uses Continuous Operation

The history of Consolidated's difficulties with the OPA began in 1939, when the company perfected a system to make and coat book papers in a continuous operation. Using the new method, the company was able to market No. 4 and No. 5 glossy coated white book and magazine papers at prices substantially lower than competitors, Mead said.

OPA established a system of pricing book papers according to grades "accepted by the trade" in 1943. Consolidated's papers, however, were not included in the classification listing similar grades made by 17 competitors, but were left in the "unclassified" list.

The 1943 price regulation, MPR 451, was ordered set aside last December when Consolidated sued the OPA. The OPA then "attempted to nullify the court's order," Mead said, by issuing an amended regulation containing the same discrimination. The court's recent decision sets aside the amended order.

Not Represented on Committee

"If quality is to bear upon the prices of the products of complainant's competitors, it should also bear upon the prices of the complainant's papers," the decision said. "Conversely, if quality is eliminated as a pricing factor for the complainant's products, it should also be eliminated as a factor in the pricing of competing products."

An industry advisory committee assisted OPA in drafting the regulations, Mead said Consolidated is the only one of the nine largest book paper manufacturers not represented on the committee or within the OPA. The committee chairman is vice president of one of Consolidated's leading competitors, and a former employe of the same competitor was with OPA when the pricing regulations were drafted, he said.

COMPANY ASKS COURT JUDGMENT ON WORK STATUS OF VETERANS

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 12 (AP)—A petition seeking an interpretation of the section of the GI bill of rights which promises war veterans their old jobs was filed today in United States District court by Olin Industries, Inc., of East Alton, Ill.

The petition raised the question whether service men must be reinstated in their pre-war jobs even tho it may require the transfer, demotion, or discharge of nonveteran employes with more seniority. A hearing was set for Dec. 27.

John M. Olin, president, said an agreement with the AFL and affiliated groups to petition for a declaratory judgment ended a three weeks' labor dispute involving 5,000 employes of Western Cartridge company, an Olin subsidiary.

RISE IN CANADA'S LATIN AMERICAN TRADE FORECAST

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 12—Canada's trade with Latin America has increased 70 per cent in exports and 400 per cent in imports since before the war, J. A. McKinnon, minister of trade and commerce, reported to commons.

"Our exports to Latin America for the first nine months of this year are nearly double our total exports in 1939," he said. "Canada is destined to enjoy a steadily rising trade with these countries."

BIG OUTPUT ERA FORECAST FOR STEEL MAKERS

Survey Estimates Peace Time Need

The steel industry faces one of the most productive peace time periods in its history, with a potential output of 75 million tons of ingots annually during the next three years. This optimistic estimate for the country's No. 1 heavy industry is contained in a survey of the industry and its principal companies by the research department of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Beane.

The one big disturbing factor shadowing the outlook is the country-wide steel strike scheduled for Jan. 14.

A three year production at an annual rate of 75 million tons of ingots would total 225 million tons. The industry produced 210,058,000 tons of finished steel during the war period January, 1942, thru July, 1945. However, instead of three years the survey predicted the peace time high production period might well extend for five years.

Markets Are Expanding

Despite the growing competition of plastics and other metals the outlook for steel remains favorable, the survey said.

"It seems safe to assume that the demand for steel will increase rather than decrease in a more progressively mechanical and electronic civilization and the steel men are neglecting no opportunity to expand their markets thru product and market research," the survey said. "For example, alloy and special steels are the subject of intensive research by metallurgists and engineers within and without the industry.

"Alloy production grew from 3.2 million tons [6.1 per cent of total production] in 1939 to 10.5 million tons [11.9 per cent of total production] in 1944—almost doubling in five years. Among the alloys, stainless steel, thru the increasing variety of its uses, advanced from 55,000 tons to 500,000 tons during the 10 years between 1934 and 1944. This, added to the relative insignificance of competition from other materials and the ample reserves available, should push the industry even beyond its present gigantic dimensions."

BIG OUTPUT ERA PREDICTED FOR STEEL MAKERS

Survey Estimates Peace Time Demands

Low Price Held Aid

The survey said that the sales price of 2 cents a pound for ordinary steel gives the metal a strong competitive position. It predicted an average annual production of 51 million tons of finished steel in the period 1946-'48. It would be divided among the principal users as follows:

Agriculture, 3 million tons; aircraft and automobile, 9 million; construction, 9 million; containers, 3.5 million; machinery and tools, 2 million; oil, gas, water, and mining, 3 million; railroads, 5 million; shipbuilding, 500,000; press, form, stamp, 3 million; export, 4 million, and all others, 9 million.

Ore Reserves Ample

The survey said ore reserves are ample altho most companies will run out of first grade Great Lakes ore reserves in about 8 years and United States Steel has first grade reserves for only about 20 years. About 5 billion tons of lower grade ore reserves are in the Great Lakes region—enough to keep blast furnaces going for at least 100 years. Use of the lower grade ores would raise the price of steel only a few dollars a ton, the survey said.

The survey traced the growth of the industry in the United States to its present world dominant position. In 1724 when the first tiny company was formed invested capital was $5,000 compared with 4½ billion in 1944. Production capacity rose from 1,350 tons to 95.5 million tons.

Commonwealth Edison's Power Output Decreases

Electricity output of the Commonwealth Edison group of companies last week, excluding sales to other electric utilities, totaled 192,198,000 kilowatt hours, a decrease of 7.8 per cent from a year ago, the company reported yesterday.

ALUMINUM INDUSTRIES

I should like information on the products and earnings of Aluminum Industries, Inc.—N. A.

The company makes aluminum alloy pistons and several other aluminum alloy, steel, and bronze engine parts for automobiles, aircraft, and marine craft; parts for industrial machinery; and other products, including aluminum paint. Reflecting war time demands, sales rose from $3,589,000 in the fiscal year ended June 30, 1940, to more than 11 millions in both 1944 and 1945.

Profits in the six years ended with 1940 averaged only about 74 cents a share. In more recent years they were: 1945, $1.75; 1944, $3.20 as adjusted to give effect to tentative renegotiation settlement; 1943, $2.53, adjusted; 1942, $3.09. Sole capitalization consists of 97,755 shares.

In the 1945 fiscal year sales were $11,332,000, and costs and operating expenses before federal taxes were $10,789,000, with net income of $171,030 equal to only 1¼ per cent of sales. Because of accumulated civilian demands, the early peace time sales outlook appears favorable, compared with pre-war volume, altho a substantial decrease from the war time level would not be surprising.

Dividends have been paid, with some interruptions, since 1928. In each of the calendar years 1945 and 1944 the rate was 60 cents. Current assets last June 30 totaled $3,668,000 and current liabilities were relatively large at $2,828,000.
